

President Garfield's Inaugural.

President Garfield's inaugural address admirably matches the character and quality of the man. It is pitched in the highest key of patriotic and enlightened statesmanship. It is candid in tone, elevated in view, philosophic in thought, positive in policy, chaste in style, lofty in its standards and broad in its horizon.

The address begins with a succinct and comprehensive review of the foundation of the Republic, of its trials and triumphs and of its growth and greatness. Passing to the expression of the recent election, it recognizes the duty of the Executive to enforce the registered will of the people.

On the other hand, the difficulties and duties growing out of it are frankly stated and bravely met. No plea can palliate the denial of equal suffrage, and the highest public obligation is to maintain the freedom and sanctity of the ballot.

On the financial and industrial questions President Garfield repeats his well-known views in pointed terms. He is for honest money in the broadest and highest sense, recognizing gold and silver as the only safe foundation for a monetary system.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather the pageant and the pomp of circumstance which on Friday attended the inauguration of President James A. Garfield exceeded anything ever before witnessed in Washington.

A new invention is reported from Turin. It consists in the application of light-giving materials to printing ink, by which print becomes luminous in the dark.

est standard of public credit and security; it sustains the broadest industrial and commercial advancement; and it proposes practical civil service reform. In every part it breathes the spirit of the high-minded patriot and statesman, and confirms the confidence with which the country looks forward to a wise, honest, progressive Administration in full sympathy with the best popular impulses.—Philadelphia Press.

The Legislature of Delaware celebrated the 4th of March by adopting resolutions denouncing "the fraud of 1876," and requested the Governor of the State to transmit a copy of the same, "duly attested by the Speaker and Clerks of both Houses of the General Assembly, to the Hon. Samuel J. Tilden who was legally elected President of the United States in 1876."

The Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona are building a locomotive of the "Class K" pattern, with driving wheels 78 inches in diameter and cylinders 18 by 24 inches. The boiler has 201 flues of 1 1/2 inches outside diameter and a fire box 49 1/2 inches wide and 36 1/2 inches high.

An old clock weight with a plug in it attracted the attention of Officer Cooper as he examined the premises of Addison Howland, the miser who died recently in Meadville. Upon knocking it out $61 in silver pieces, of dates from 75 to 150 years ago, rolled out.

The prophecy falsely imputed to Mother Shipton, that the world will come to an end this year, was firmly believed by Emma Vanter-smucker, of Maclus, Ohio, and it made her insane. She went to religious meetings, and eloquently exhorted the people to prepare for the great event.

THE NEXT STATE FAIR.—The committee on location of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Society has finally accepted the offer made by the Pittsburgh Exposition Company, which is a very advantageous one and similar in many respects to that given by the Permanent Exposition Building, Philadelphia, for several years past.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather the pageant and the pomp of circumstance which on Friday attended the inauguration of President James A. Garfield exceeded anything ever before witnessed in Washington.

A new invention is reported from Turin. It consists in the application of light-giving materials to printing ink, by which print becomes luminous in the dark, so that in future it will be possible to read at night, in bed or during a journey, without the assistance of candle or lamp.

All the furnaces in Armstrong county are in blast. Michael Boyle was killed by cars near Catawagus Webbsbay morning. Adams express charged $92 for bringing a corpse from St Louis to Chester.

The Nebraska Legislature passed a high license law, taxing saloon keepers in cities of over 10,000 inhabitants $1,000 and $500 in towns less than 10,000, making it a misdemeanor to treat or give away liquor, forbidding the use of acres, &c., a prohibitory law, prohibiting both the mfg. and sale of intoxicating liquors was defeated by only two votes.

An appalling catastrophe, resulting in the death of seventeen children, fourteen boys and three girls, occurred on Sunday night at St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum, Hyde Park, a suburb of Scranton, by the bursting of the Asylum. The building was occupied by a number of Sisters of Charity, and under their charge were forty children, whose ages ranged from six to twelve years.

The New York World concludes that "Mr. Hayes has at least done nothing to check the prosperity of the country, which has increased from the beginning to the end of his term, and if it be true to say of a President that our annual estimate the record of no Administration on the whole more harmless than his, that praise may be fairly accorded to him."

Matthew Hale Carpenter, United States Senator from Wisconsin, died at his residence in Washington, last Thursday morning, aged 57 years. Mr. Carpenter was a consummate lawyer, a brilliant orator, an ardent politician, a bold leader, and a general humorist.

At Bloomington, Ill., Stealy, Wm. Dowery, a young man, playfully pointed an "empty" pistol at his sister Mary, pulled trigger, and shot her in the neck, severing the jugular vein and causing death. Realizing his terrible mistake he attempted to shoot himself, but was quickly seized by a bystander.
