From Indiana. Mr. Ed.—We have noticed that several individuals of your county have been paying considerable attention to educational affairs while the time was approaching for the directors to elect a Co. Supt. We are still as much interested in the general and individual school management of Snyder Co. as we ever have been.

Therefore, we do not think it out of order to say a few words, in regard to what we have seen and know of the manner in which schools have been taught and conducted. We used to convey the idea, as well as nearly all the teachers, that the method of teaching, which some folks thought originated in Solingrove from the sagacity of Prof. Needing, and which was often termed the "Common Sense Method," was the method, and that to teach any other way was to fail. There was a reform made under Neotling's supervision. A reform was necessary, but we claim that it was carried to extremes for spelling books must be cast aside, and we are convinced that we can and do use spelling books advantageously.
