The Republican State Convention Called.
Bedford, Pa., July 22.—Hon. John Cessna, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has issued the following call:
HARRISBURG, Pa., July 20, 1881.—A convention of the Republican party is hereby called to meet in hall of the House of Representatives, in Harrisburg, on Thursday, the eighth day of September, 1881, at 12 o'clock m. of said day. Delegates, equal to the number of Senators and Representatives, to be chosen in the several districts of the commonwealth. The convention when assembled shall nominate a candidate for the office of State Treasurer and transact such other legitimate business as may be brought before it. By order of the Republican State Central Committee.
JOHN CESSNA, Chairman.

President Garfield's situation, at this writing, is again hopeful. The situation on Saturday was alarming and was induced by the closing of the wound. It is hoped that there will not be a recurrence of Saturday's situation and that President Garfield may be speedily restored to health to discharge the duties of his high office.

The Albany Contest Ended.
The following is a brief history of the newly elected Senators from New York:

Warner Miller, the newly elected U. S. Senator from New York to fill the Platt vacancy, of Herkimer, was born in Oswego county, New York, August 12, 1838; graduated at Union college in 1860; commenced teaching in the Fort Edward collegiate institute, but on the breaking out of the war enlisted as private in the Fifth New York cavalry; served in the Shenandoah Valley; was promoted to be sergeant-major and lieutenant; was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester; is now engaged in the manufacture of paper and farming; was a delegate to the national convention at Philadelphia in 1872; was elected to the New York Legislature in 1874, and also in 1875; was elected to the Forty-sixth Congress, and was re-elected to the Forty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,792 votes against 15,906 votes for Dennis O'Brien, Democrat.

Hon. Elbridge Gerry Lapham, who was elected to succeed Mr. Conkling in the Senate for the term ending in March, 1885, is the son of the late Judge John Lapham, and was born in Farmington, N. Y., October 18, 1814. He was brought up on a farm and during the winter months attended the public schools. He spent some time at the Cannadagna academy, where he was a classmate of Stephen A. Douglas, and also studied civil engineering. After spending some time in work upon the line of the Michigan Southern railroad, Mr. Lapham studied law, and in 1844 he was admitted to the bar. He settled at Cannadagna, where he has since practiced law. Soon after his admission to the bar Mr. Lapham formed a partnership with Judge James C. Smith, which continued until the latter was raised to the bench. He attained a high rank in his profession, and has always been a most successful advocate and dangerous antagonist, especially in jury trials. As a lawyer he stands among the first of the members of all the New York bar.

Governor Hoyt has appointed Chas. Thomson Jones, Henry C. Howell, Mahlon H. Dickinson, of Philadelphia; James K. Moorhead and John Reul, and Wm. Nolan, of Reading, a Board of Commissioners to superintend the construction of the State Industrial Reformatory, at Huntingdon.

Harrah for Snyder County!
Miss Blood, daughter of Vic Woodhull, and a great-grand daughter of a Mrs. Hammet of Snyder Co. (now dead) about to marry an Englishman and a Lord at that.

From the N. Y. Sun we learn that a daughter of Mrs. Victoria Woodhull is about to marry an English lord. This news ought certainly tickle Vic's friends in Snyder county, where her mother and grand-parents named Hummel, (long since deceased,) resided. The Sun says:
By the marriage of Miss Blood, the daughter of Mrs. Victoria Woodhull, to Lord Colin Campbell, fifth son of the Duke of Argyll, which is announced, will take place this week, another alliance between the nobility of England and the youth and beauty of America will be effected. In this case, too, the fair representative of the republic will become by her marriage connected with the most distinguished family in the world. Lady Colin Campbell will be the sister-in-law of princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria. Marital alliance between the English aristocracy and the daughters of this republic, which knows no social distinctions, are by no means infrequent in these days. As a rule, the aristocrat is after money and beauty in a republican bride, and her social connections at home, no matter how high they may be according to the fashionable notions prevalent in New York, are not regarded by him with any great pride. If he takes an American wife he is not apt to boast of her family, though her father may be a merchant prince and her mother's feet may be on the topmost round of the ladder of republican fashion. What he is more interested in is the amount of the dowry and the ability of the girl to sustain herself in the society to which he proposes to introduce her. If Miss Blood becomes Lady Colin Campbell, however, it will not be because she goes to her husband munificently dowered. Mrs. Woodhull, her mother, has fame rather than riches. Lord Colin Campbell must have really given his heart to his chosen bride, for no worldly considerations could have induced him to offer her marriage. Princess Louise, we see, is to be at the wedding which will give her a new sister-in-law, and when the nuptial ceremony is over, for the first time in our history one of our country-women will be connected by marriage with the reigning family of England. Neither New York nor Boston fashionable society have been consulted in this matter. Very likely, if their opinion had been asked, they would have frowned on the proposed marriage; but it is not at all probable that they will hereafter be any the less eager to get into the circle to which Miss Blood is to be admitted and in which she will shine as Lady Colin Campbell, daughter-in-law of the Duke of Argyll and sister-in-law of Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria.

Gaitau's Case.
Colonel Corkhill, United States District Attorney, appeared before the Criminal Court Monday morning and asked that the Grand Jury be discharged until September 12, as it was unnecessary to hold them long-ert to take action upon the President's case, as the physicians are not prepared to say what the effect of the wound will be, although they believe and hope that he will live. The District Attorney presented a letter from the President's physicians, in which they say: "While we anticipate recovery, it is not possible to assert with confidence that his injuries may yet prove fatal."
Dr. Bliss is as black as an Indian. The circles under his eyes are a positive blue-black. He appears in the visitors' room at intervals through the day and is eagerly plied with questions even by the Cabinet, who seldom have an opportunity of talking with him. He smokes almost incessantly, and uses long and very strong cigars, which often go out while he is speaking. He clutches at his gray side-whiskers in a nervous way. While he is one of the greatest surgeons in this country, remarkable for his courage and nerve in the most trying cases, he appears at times to be fairly trembling with excitement.

The story is told of an absent minded farmer in Iowa who lost five of his cows. He discovered his loss in the evening when he went to drive them from pasture, and spent all night and the next day searching for them. He finally discovered them in the stable, having neglected to leave them out the day before.

To prove that it takes all kinds of people to make a world we note the fact, that a few days ago a Washington woman took some broiled chicken, jellies and other delicacies to the jail with the request that they be given to the assassin, Gaitau. Her request was not granted much to her disgust.

The murder mania in New York is spreading to horses, judging from accounts from that city of a horse that deliberately beat the brains out of one man and attempted to kill another. This horse was very valuable and always had been very good tempered, until he suddenly showed murderous motives. He was deemed so dangerous that it was necessary to kill him.
The pension list now absorbs two-fifths of the whole amount expended for the support of the Government. Yet still more than a hundred million dollars of the public debt has been paid off during the fiscal year just closed, and the payments for several months past have been at the rate of one hundred and fifty millions a year, and are still increasing in volume.
There is no place in the world under any government where so immense a revenue is paid as at the custom house in New York. A million of dollars in gold coin is not unfrequently received in a single day, and the average for two-thirds of the secular days of the year exceeds $500,000. These enormous duties are paid on imported articles that are consumed by 50,000,000 of American people.
A New Jersey militia captain who was indiscreet enough to make a slighting remark about the wounded President, was obliged in consequence to remain in retirement while his company was out on parade the other day and was a witness of the burning of himself in effigy by an excited crowd that would have severely handled himself in person had he fallen in their way. In several other instances men learned that it was a good time to keep either a civil or a silent tongue in their heads.
