Hon. Charles S. Wolfe.

We have always admired Mr. Wolfe for his "pluck," but was of opinion that his love of notoriety—his dash and super abundance of zeal would bring about just what has transpired. We are truly sorry for Mr. Wolfe. He certainly would have accomplished much in bringing about a proper condition of affairs within the party, but he has lost everything.

In addition to the break-neck course he is pursuing in his candidacy for State Treasurer, his sincerity as a reformer is being badly damaged in his prosecution of a claim for more salary when no legislator knows better than Mr. Wolfe that they did not render services for more than they have already received.

And we would inform those who are of opinion that the "counties of this section of the State will rally about Mr. Wolfe" that is a great mistake.

As a matter of course we can only speak for Snyder to any degree of certainty, but it is our best judgment that Mr. Wolfe will not poll a dozen of votes in Snyder County.

The Press, Mr. Wolfe's friend in everything except his Treasurer candidacy, reflects the views and feelings of the party in this county in the following:

We recognize the force of what Mr. Wolfe says as to the refusal of the managers to heed any warnings. We concede that they showed themselves incapable to just and patriotic appeals. It is not surprising that they are punishing the bosses for their arbitrary and offensive course, we should make no issue with Mr. Wolfe. But what shall we gain if, in defeating them, we destroy the party? What shall it profit us, if in pulling down the temple and crushing the Philistines, he himself perishes in the attempt? How are the bosses to be de-throned from the full control of the party by leaving them in undisputed possession? If the independent were to follow Mr. Wolfe, what hope would remain of the independent gaining the mastery of the organization? It would defeat the party, but how would it drive the managers from their entrenchments and how would it advance the independent flag?

The result of such a course would be to defeat the party, but to leave the managers in absolute command of the organization and to put the independent in a position of no account. Those who follow Mr. Wolfe go outside of the lines. When this battle is over how are they to come back with the lines and renew the contest? To manipulate the party from personal spite? How are they to regain the position where they can wage the fight for the way of the popular will? And even if they could return and make a successful struggle, how could they demand acquiescence in the action of their majority when they refuse acquiescence in the present result?

STAND BY THE FLAG.

To the Editor of The Phila. Press:

Lewisburg, Pa., September 9.—The black flag has been raised against the Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania. Please announce that on my own responsibility I am an Independent candidate for State Treasurer in full sympathy with the Administration and against the rule of the bosses. I will stamp the State and give my reasons for such action.

CHARLES S. WOLFE.

We are equally amazed and grieved at this extraordinary action of our respected and valued friend. If his dispatch had not reached us last night at an hour after the telegraph office in his rural town had closed, and too late to admit of further communication, we should earnestly have begged Mr. Wolfe to desist from this ill-judged and unjustifiable purpose, as we now counsel him to retract his hasty and impetuous step. There was little need of saying that he takes this remarkable and astonishing course upon his own responsibility. No other Independent leader would have advised it, and we cannot believe that any other representative Republican will approve or sustain it. The member from Union, fearless and impulsive as he is, has boldly raised the standard of revolt without any consultation and without full reflection.

The Press has accorded, and still accords, Mr. Wolfe high honor for his brave and manly struggle for reform. Even in the face of this mistake it has nothing to detract from the value and the courage of his great public service. There was a time when he stood almost alone within the walls of the Capitol, battling against corruption and jobbery and, however much his present error may be deplored and resisted, we cannot forget his intrepid and heroic fight. Our profound regret is that at last his fiery and impetuous zeal has betrayed him into an ill-considered resolve which, honest as his motive doubtless is, will impair his usefulness and strength for the contests which are still to be waged. It was right to protest against the blunder and the wrong at Harrisburg. But it is an exaggeration to declare that the black flag has been raised; or if it be not an exaggeration, then so much the more need of standing by the guns and holding the venture-ground for the battle. It is no time to desert the post of duty no time to go out of the Republican camp; no time to leave the quarters of the machine with an excuse for claiming to be the true and sole defenders of the Republican flag. This is a battle within the party, and the duty of wise and patriotic men is to remain within the party and fight it out in the right way and at the right time.

But if, in spite of the remonstrances and the appeals which will be addressed to Mr. Wolfe, he still persists in the course he has marked out, it is a calamity to the cause which must not be underrated. The part of wisdom is to recognize the larger and sounder every safeguard against it. The Republicans of the State will the more easily balk it if they appreciate its gravity and rise to its importance. It will be said that Mr. Wolfe has put himself outside of the party, and that he has forfeited his position and influence, and that he will carry no Republicans with him. We certainly hope that we will see no followers in this movement, and that our full party loyalty will remain under his standard. But we will not do so to render any aid to him on this subject. Mr. Wolfe is earnest, courageous and unflinching. He has the fiery spirit of the enthusiast. He has seen too much of the position where they can wage the fight for the way of the popular will? And even if they could return and make a successful struggle, how could they demand acquiescence in the action of their majority when they refuse acquiescence in the present result?

Mr. Wolfe's appeal is to the Independent Republicans. The Press will not be surprised in true independence. Its record and its attitude speak for themselves. Without arrogating more than its services warrant, it feels that it has some claim to the attention of those who pendence at Harrisburg, and by the right it invokes the Republicans of the State to stand by the Republican flag. It knows the wrongs of the Convention, and has not hesitated to reprobate them. But it knows, too, the greater wrong and danger of striking down the cause of Republicanism in the hour of trial and clouding the future with a Democratic triumph. Upon what valid ground can such a result be sought or justified? Not because it is necessary in order to continue the fight for popular rule within the Republican party, for that will go right on. Not because there is no hope of success without it, for the onward march of the past two years will soon bring victory. Not because it is required to save a public trust from unworthy hands, for General Baily's honor is stainless. This is not one of those great emergencies which justify and demand revolutionary action—least of all revolutionary action which can have no other result but Democratic success. The protest has been made. The lines have been strengthened for the next contest. The candidate is personally unexceptionable. Republican defeat would carry deep regret through the Republican ranks of the whole Union and Democratic success would be a sad refrain to greet a President saved from the jaws of death and to sustain the great work of which he is the leader. And so, for the sake of Republican principles for the sake of the President himself, let the Republicans of Pennsylvania now that their ticket is in the field, postpone their differences to the appropriate time and stand together in following the Republican flag—*Phila.
