The Propositions.

Pursuant to the resolution passed by the Harrisburg Convention of June 21, authorizing the Republican State Committee to use all honorable means to promote harmony in the party, the said Committee, acting in conjuction with the Republican candidates on the State ticket, respectfully submits to the State Committee and candidates of the Independents the following propositions:

FIRST. The tickets headed by James A. Beaver and John Stewart respectively, to be submitted to a vote of the Republican electors of the State at primaries as hereinafter provided for.

SECOND. The selection of candidates to be voted for by the Republican party in November to be submitted as aforesaid, every Republican elector constitutionally and legally qualified to be eligible to nomination.

THIRD. A State Convention to be held, to be constituted as recommended by the Continental Hotel Conference, whereof Wharton Barker was Chairman and Francis B Reeves Secretary, to select candidates to be voted for by the Republican party in November; its choice to be limited to the candidates now in nomination or unlimited as the Independent State Committee may prefer. The principles or Convention referred to in the foregoing propositions to be held on or before the fourth Wednesday in August next under regulations or appointments to be made by Daniel Agnew, Hampton L. Carson, and Francis B. Reeves, not in conflict, however, with the acts of Assembly regulating primary elections and the candidates receiving the highest popular vote or the votes of a majority of the members of the Convention to represent the united support of the party.

RESOLVED, That in the opinion of the Republican State Committee the above propositions fairly carry out the letter and spirit the resolution passed by the Harrisburg Convention of June 21, and that we hereby pledge the State Committee to carry out in good faith any one of the foregoing propositions which may be accepted.

RESOLVED, That the Chairman of the Republican State Committee is directed to forward an official copy of the proceedings of this meeting, together with the foregoing propositions, to the Independent State Committee and candidates.

Egypt is now receiving iron hail of England but we fear after the bombardment is over it will reveal the fact, that fearful atrocities and cruelties have been committed upon the Europeans and Americans in that country. The Mohammedans are a fanatical set, and in their rage may stop at nothing. We have often thought, not only Egypt, but Turkey, too, deserved to be severely dealt with for their practices, as well as treatment of foreigners and christians in their several countries. —Ex.

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, widow of the great war President, died at Springfield, Illinois, Sunday, July 16th, from the effects of a paralytic stroke. Mrs. Lincoln has not enjoyed good health since the assassination of her husband. She was at the side of her illustrious husband when the assassin's bullet crashed through his brain and she never recovered from the shock—she was a mental and physical wreck from that moment until her death.

The Secretary of the Treasury on Monday issued a call for $16,000,000 of the 6 per cent bonds continued at 3½ per cent. from July 1, 1881. The principal and accrued interest will be paid at the Treasury Department on the 15th of September next, and the interest will cease on that day.

The Daylight Dawns.

The Republican State Committee, we rejoice to say, met its duty in a wise and honorable spirit. With great unanimity, after frank discussion, it adopted broad measures for peace and harmony. The patriotic course of General Beaver and his associates happily prepared the way. In a manly and chivalrous letter, declaring their earnest desire for the redunion and success of the Republican party, they released the Committee from all obligations to themselves, and urged it to seek a just settlement of Republican differences. With this freedom, the Committee proceeded to broad and comprehensive action.

It offers to the Independent Republican candidates and Committee three alternative propositions. The first is the submission of the Beaver and Stewart tickets to a vote of the Republican electors at primaries. The second is the selection of the candidates of the party without limit by a popular vote of all Republicans, practically under the Crawford county system of a direct nomination to the people. The third is a new State Convention to be held on the 23d of August, under the new rules adopted by the Continental Peace Conference and under the regulations and apportionment of a Committee consisting of Judge Agnew, Hampton L. Carson and Francis B. Reeves.

The first two propositions, however fair in spirit and in essence, could not be satisfactorily carried out, because of practical obstacles which need not here be discussed, and for this reason they cannot be entertained. The third proposition is of a different character. We are bound in all frankness to say that it is fair, feasible and honorable—fair because it relegates the whole question to the judgment and will of the Republican masses; feasible because there is no difficulty in its practical operation; honorable because it establishes popular rule and involves no humiliation of either element but places them on an equal footing in a just appeal to the highest tribunal of party action. In its details this measure embraces very large concessions. It provides that the new Convention shall be elected, not even under the new rules of the Harrisburg Convention, but under the still broader and better rules of the Continental Peace Conference. These rules not only require the election of all delegates by popular Conventions—never by County Committees—but base the representation upon the Republican vote. To adopt this plan would necessitate a new apportionment, and the proposition entrusts this duty, together with all other arrangements, to a Committee consisting of two avowed Independents and one other who is as Independent and upright as any man in the State. Ex-Chief Judge Agnew is eminently worthy of confidence. Mr. Reeves is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Committee of one Hundred, and Mr. Carson was last fall the Independent Republican candidate for City Commissioner and is one of the most prominent representatives of the Independent Republican cause.

Such is the proposition in its terms and such is its character. The prescribed regulations guarantee popular rule if the people choose to exercise their unchallenged right; the designated Committee guarantees fairness and protection in the machinery of the election; the very nature and circumstances of the Convention will, we believe, assure free action and a free party. The measure is broad and fair. It is as much as the State Committee could be expected to offer. Rightly followed up it opens wide the door for the harmony and success of the party. The Independent Republican representatives will make a grave mistake if they do not treat it with the same fairness with which it is proffered. In our judgement they should receive it as made in entire good faith and entertain it in the same honorable and Republican spirit. Representatives are nothing without constituencies, and it is of the highest importance that any action taken shall carry the honest Independent Republican masses. There are thousands of Republicans who have halted and waited to see whether reason and harmony would prevail. They will recognize this proposition as showing a fair and reasonable purpose, and will hold that it should be accepted. There are others who may be led to regard it with suspicion and who will be told by the enemies who seek to keep the party divided that it is delusive and hollow. But we believe that the appeal can be made to this element with full confidence in the result. We have strong faith that the new Convention called in this way, elected under these auspices and with its manifest obligations, will meet the just demands of public sentiment, and thoroughly unite the party.—Philadelphia Press.

PRINCIPLES VS. LEADERS.

We seriously question the propriety of placing too much stress upon the outcome of the present struggle as respects the position of leaders of the Republican party. Every year brings its own peculiar issue and there will be, as there always has been, some one perfectly adapted to marshal the force necessary to accomplish the purpose desired. There is a moral power or undercurrent that is sure to effect the well-being of communities and States. A quiet revolution may be in progress, whose influence can not be perceptible on the surface, and yet will surely produce its effect. A cloud-banked sky may hide the process, but the sun with equal regularity, reaches the horizon at sunrise and sunset. This is not the first period in the history of political factions, when serious complaints have arisen respecting the methods by which the leaders have reached certain results, and yet there has no great calamity ensued. Step back ten years, and stand at the threshold of the campaign of 1872, as we are now standing upon that of 1882, and what will you discover? Senator Cameron had not commenced his political life, but there was not wanting a sufficient pretended cause for tumult and revolt. Meetings were called and the opposition was established; after several caucuses were held, a new convention was demanded, but at this time by the parties opposed. Sufficient concessions have and are being offered to indicate the readiness of the friends of the Harrisburg ticket to take any reasonable course that may or can be suggested, but when humiliation appears to be the only purpose sought—when it becomes apparent that we are asked to make offers only to be repudiated, then the time has come as to-day, fellowmen, our appeal to your leaders have failed; we now carry it to the people—a jury sure to give a just verdict. It may be long or late, but we dare resist the conviction, that, if peace offerings fail, the same commanding dignity that characterized the course in '72 will best conserve the welfare of the party to-day.

We suggest this course simply because we have a record outside of leaders upon which we can rest our case. Principles, like truth are eternal, and it matters not how you clothe them, or by whom supported, we are assured that a certain degree of antagonism must, by virtue of their inherent nature, be the result, and by this test are we to prove our friends and foes; for it is incontestable that just to the extent of a constituent's departure from them will his opposition be manifest. The real issue of the day is not whether Cameron, or some other loftier intellect shall stand forth to give the signal for action, but shall these principles—for which men shed their blood and gave their lives; which have been our watchword these twenty years past, and have been supported by the martyrs, Lincoln and Garfield—shall they be maintained? It scarcely seems possible that these principles associated with such hallowed memories, could call forth a doubt as to their perpetuity, but what other conclusion can we reach, when those who have been for many years their most strenuous advocates, through a spirit of pique, are willing to trail the banner on which they are emblazoned in the dust and under the feet of our enemies. The good they seek to accomplish can only be known to themselves.

Two unsuccessful attempts were made the latter part of last week by a 14 year old daughter of Mrs. Simson Long, to poison her mother and brother by placing Paris green in drinking vessels. Prompt medical attention saved the lives on a farm near Schuylkill Haven. The child has made a statement that she was prompted to the act by an older sister, now living in Philadelphia, who left home on account of family troubles.

Charles Longheimer, who on Chas. Dickens found in the Eastern Penitentiary on his first visit to this country, and about whom he wrote, has been in that institution ever since, for about forty years. As soon as he gets out he goes to stealing and goes back again. He was discharged a few months ago, but was arrested again last Friday for stealing money from a drawer in a store in Philadelphia.

The official report of the post mortem examination of Guiteau's brain has been published and it shows that those people who expected that the assassin's irresponsibility would be demonstrated after his death are doomed to disappointment, everything being normal.

The two-hundredth anniversary of the landing of William Penn, in Chester, will be celebrated by a grand industrial, military and civic parade, speaking and fire works, on Oct. 23.

The Secretary of the Board of Agricultire of Kansas, reports the harvesting of the largest wheat crop ever gathered in that State. The area was 1,462,736 acres, and the product is 30,264,711 bushels.

During the last fiscal year Uncle Sam sold 13,000,000 acres of his farm. The various railroads and States parted with at least 7,000,000, and most of it was sold to actual settlers. That means wealth and prosperity in the future. It is not the men in cities, but those on the fertile acres, that hold the keys that will open the vaults of the world.

Three hundred and sixty-nine soldiers' orphans will be discharged from the various schools in the State this year, having attained the age of sixteen years, and the superintendent of the department has prepared a list of the scholars arranged by schools, to which he has added the date when each child will be discharged. Copies of this list will be sent to each post of the Grand Army of the Republic, and to numerous soldiers and citizens, the object being to interest as many as possible in obtaining homes and employment for the orphans.

Col. McClure of the Times is determined that the ticket in the Republican party shall not be left-handed. By one of his letters a few days ago we were almost persuaded that he was about to clothe the chaos with sweet flowers and soft music, but Alack, is sort of erratic.

The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Bowen recently proved in the case of the Emperor William and other cattle in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, Hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times, July.

How to Save.

All head worknes are subject to bilious attacks which may end in dangerous illness. Parker's Ginger Tonic will keep the kidneys and liver active, and by preventing the attack save much sickness, loss of time and expense.—Detroit Press. June 1w.

Thousands bear witness to the positive curative power of the GREAT GERMAN INVIGORATOR, the only remedy that has proved itself a specific for general debility, seminal weakness, impotency, etc., and all diseases that arise from self-abuse or unrestrained lust, finally ending in consumption, insanity and a premature grave. Sold by all druggists or will be sent free on receipt of $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00. Address F. J. CHENEY, Toledo, Ohio, sole agent for the United States.
