Republicans, now is the time to prepare for an active and aggressive campaign.

Mrs. Lincoln is said to have left $74,000 worth of government bonds. That was her entire estate.

John Church Hamilton a son of Alexander Hamilton who was shot by Aaron Burr, died at Long Branch on Monday aged 76.

Nominate Mr Jefferson Davis as Minister of War in Arabi's Cabinet. Arabi is a new hand at running a rebellion.

The Democrats are alarmed about Beaver, because, they say, he talks too much. There is something in that. He is mingling with the people a great deal now-a-days.

England will fight Egypt. France will protect the Suez canal. This is the old story illustrated, of two dogs fighting over a bone which a third dog runs away with during the battle.

A number of individuals are making a poor show of themselves in continually abusing Grant. It seems to fall to the lot of some men to abuse another because he is great. After a while we will be taught there was no war, no great victory gained, nor a race given over to freedom—no tattered or torn battle flags, no wounds nor bruises, no persistent heroes, no Grants, no Sheridans, no Hancocks. Got out with your foolishness.

Even the big guns that poured their mountains of iron into Alexandria were not so destructive to life as the by no means phenomenal heat of New York 'Sixty. Two hundred deaths in one day from this cause alone, suggest something beside the sun as the cause of this appalling mortality. It will probably be found that the greater number were in squalid tenements, where air not sunshine could not come, and that these poor levered bodies were simply sweltered into death. New York heat is at all times a dry, burning breath that tries the strongest bodies. That it should decimate the weak and unfortunate is not at all surprising. The metropolis is not alone, however, in suffering the breath of the furnace. From every part of the country come reports of exaggerated temperature and wide-spread fatalities.

William Hufnagle was kicked to death by Henry Myers, a youth of 18, in a quarrel about a pail of cherries at Nescopeck township, Luzerne county, Friday evening. Hufnagle had drawn a pistol on Myers. Both were drunk at the time. Myers escaped but was captured in Wilkesbarre, Monday.

The cow population of the United States is 12,611,148, or about one to every four persons. This includes only milch cows, for the cattle upon a thousand plains have not yet been numbered, or at least their numbers have not yet been announced. These cows are estimated to be worth $329,746,045, and the average value of each cow is about $27.

The Tariff.

TRUST ITS FATE ONLY TO ITS REAL FRIENDS.

It is the common plea of those who are directly or indirectly aiming to bring about a Democratic triumph in Pennsylvania, that a Democratic victory in this State cannot in any way affect the tariff as the Democrats are as good Tariff men as the Republicans, and that Tariff will be as safe in their hands as in ours. Even they say, if a majority of the delegation in Congress from Pennsylvania should be Democrats, their election can, in no way, imperil the safety of Protection.

To some, this may seem plausible, but when carefully examined, it has not the merit even of plausibility.

The difference between the Republican and Democratic parties, stated broadly is this: That while the mass of the Republican party is for protection, with here and there an occasional Free Trader, the mass of the Democratic party is for Free Trade with here and there an occasional Protectionist, as in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England. The Republican Congressman, therefore, who is a protectionist, has his party behind him to back him up and sustain him, and the Republican Congressman who is a Free Trader, has his party against him with the effect to render him nearly powerless. The Democratic Congressman, on the contrary, who is a protectionist, has his party, with its organization, its caucuses, its power and its influence allayed against him, and he is as powerless in his party for good on the tariff question, as the Free Trader in the Republican ranks is for evil. Such a position for party servants to differ from his political associates on that question, but each, is without influence in his isolated condition.

Now, while it is true that a Pennsylvania Democrat in Congress feels compelled by the force of public sentiment at home to vote in favor of Protection, when occasion offers, it is equally true that he is not allowed to shape, or aid in shaping the policy of his party on the tariff as all the force he has to wield or can yield in his vote on the final passage of measures falls. The only force he can so operate with is that to be found in the Republican ranks and as, in any contesting for local political favor in the two parties, he is naturally unwilling to be found working with Republicans unless driven to do it by the stern necessity of keeping his Tariff record clear.

An instance of the total inability of Pennsylvania Democrats in Congress to maintain Protection, their assumed position as Protectionists is furnished by the Forty-seventh Congress. That Congress as it will know was largely Democratic. In the House Democratic caucus to nominate a Speaker there were two candidates. Kerr of Indiana, an avowed Free Trader and Carlisle of Ky., a conservative protectionist. The Democratic protectionists from Pennsylvania supported Randall; but they were utterly helpless and were overwhelmed in the caucus. The free traders rallied around Kerr and nominated him.

What did the Pennsylvania Democratic protectors do in that emergency? They knew as every one else knew, that the Speaker would appoint all the committees that are to constitute shape and control the legislation of the House; that a Free Trade Speaker would appoint a free trade committee of Ways and Means, and to vote for such a man for Speaker, was to put all the power of the House into the hands of the enemies of protection. Yet with this fact staring them in the face, and with the full knowledge that they were in effect, playing into the hands of the Free Traders by so doing they, every one, without flinching or bolting, voted in the House for Kerr, and voluntarily placed in the hands the power to shape the legislation of the House in favor of Free Trade.

A vote for Kerr in this case, was practically a vote for Free Trade. The Pennsylvania Democrats in that Congress, professed to be Tariff men just as they profess to be now, but they were Democrats, and they had to follow the lead of their organization. In the next Congress, if it is Democratic, they will have to do the same thing; and when the legislation of the House is shaped in favor of Free Trade through their agency and by their aid, they will have the poor privilege of voting against the legislation they have aided to frame. The real bulwark against free trade will be in that case, the Republican phalanx, and not the few scattering votes from the Democratic side.

Every one who has watched legislation at Washington closely knows that there are many occasions in which a member is called up to vote besides those in which the yeas and nays are taken. When in committee of the whole, when all Tariff legislation is considered, there can be no yea or nay vote, and the same is true when the House merely decides without a call for the yeas and nays. In nearly all such cases, where there is no record of votes, it has been noticed by observant men, that the Democrats professing to be Tariff men, frequently either do not vote, or vote directly with the Free Traders. There is abundant opportunity in this way, to keep up their status in their own party, without being liable to be called to account for it by their constituents at home.

The fact is, they are, at least most of them, Tariff men only because they had to be, and not from conviction. They are not at heart devoted to the principle of protection. They know that their party lost seats with their colleagues by voting against them. To put the fate of Tariff into the hands of such men is to put it into the hands of lukewarm and utterly inefficient men. Pennsylvania will be betrayed and deceived if she trusts to such a broken reed as this. The only salvation for Pennsylvania interests is to place them in the hand of her real, tried and true friends—men who belong to a party, which believes in Protection. That party is the Republican party, and any thing which tends to the defeat of that party, and to keep its representatives out of Congress, tends to the defeat of Protection and to the destruction of our home industries.

The conclusion to be drawn from these facts is: Do not trust the cause of Protection in the hands of men who belong to a party known to be hostile to it.

This is the season of forest fires, and the fire-fiend is raging fiercely in the woody slopes of Michigan. With vegetation parched and dried up by the excessive summer heat and long drouth, the margins of railroad tracks are becoming a vast tinder-box waiting for the ready spark of the locomotive to start the blaze.

The news from the Egyptian war has been of no great importance the past week, though Arabi has been able to do considerable mischief. The British are not in a condition to attack him by land and are waiting reinforcements. When they can provoke him to a fight he is liable to learn more of the power of the "Mistress of the Seas." A great deal of blood-shed, murder and rapine is liable to follow.

It used to be considered a wonderful thing to engrave the Lords Prayer on a three-cent piece.
