From the Westminister Review.

THE LOVES OF THE LIONS. Let us first sketch the history of the lion's life, beginning with his marriage, which takes place toward the end of Jinuary. He has first to seek a wife; but as the males are farmore abundant than the females, who are often cut off in infancy, it is not rare to find a young lady pestered by three or four gallants, who quarrel with the acerbity of jealous lovers. If one of them does not succeed in disabling or driving away the others, Madam, impatient and dissatisfied, leads them into the presence of an old lion, whose roar she has appreciated at a distance. The lovers fly at him with the temerity of youth and exasperation. The old fellow receives them with calm assurance, breaks the neck of the first with its terrible jaws, smashes the leg of the second, tears out the eves of the third. No sooner is the day won, and the field clear, than the lion tosses his mane in the air and roars, and then crouches by the side of the lady, who as a reward for his courage, licks his wounds caressingly. When two adult lions are the rivals, the encounter is more An Arab, perched on a tree one night, saw a lioness followed by a tawny lion with full grown mane; she lay down at the foot of the tree, the lion stopped on his path and seemed to listen. The Arab then heard the distant growling of a lion, which was instantly replied to by the lioness under the tree. This made her husband roar furiously. The distant lion was heard approaching, and as he came nearer the lioness roared louder, which seemed to agitate her husband, for he march ed toward her as if to force her to be silent. and then sprang back to his old post, roaring defiance at his distant rival. This continued for about an hour, when a black lion made his appearance on the plain. The lioness nrose as if to go towards him, but her hus band, guessing herautention, bounded towards his rival. The two crouched and sprang on each other, rolling on the grass in the embrace of death. Their bones cracked, their flesh was torn, their cries of rage and excruciating agony rent the nir, and all this time the liouess cronched and wagged her tail slowly in sign of satisfaction. When the combat ended, and both warriors lay stretch. ed on the plain, she rose, snjelt them, and satisfied herself that they were dead, and trotted off quite regardless of the uncomplimentary epithet which the indignant Arab shouted after her. This Gerard tells us, is an example of the conjugal fidelity of my lady, whereas the lion never quits his wife, unless forced. and is quite a pattern of conjugal attention. Our lion, then, is married, let us say. He is the slave of his wife. It is she who always takes precedence; when she stops he stops. What kind of a shock?

Why sir, one of your subscribers came in during your absence, and offered to pay a year's subscription, which produced such an effect upon me, that I have been perfectly belpless ever since.

No wonder, Tom, but cheer up; if you survive this, you are safe, as there is but litthis office.

From Putnam's Monthly. A Child's Wish.

Be my fairy mother, Give me a wish to-day: Something as well in sunshine As when the rain-drops play.

And if I nere a fair. With but one wish to spare. What should I give thee, darling, To quet thy earnest prayer? I'd like a little brook, mother, All for my very own.
To laugh all day among the trees

And shine on the mossy stone; To run right under the window, And sing me fast a leep.
With soft steps and a tender sound, Over the grass to creep.

Make it run down the hill, mother With a leap like a tinkling bell, So fast I hever can catch the leaf That into its fountain fell. Make it as wild as a frightened bird,

As crazy as & bee, And a noise like the baby's funny laugh, That's the brook for me!

From Dickens' Household Words. Drip, Drip, O Rain! Drip, drip, O Rain! From the sky-beclouded eaves; Vail, wail, O wind,

That sweepest the withered leaves. Moan, moan, O Sea ! In the depths of thy secret caves; Utter thine agony,
With the roar of thy striving waves.

Sigh, sigh, O Heart! That vainly seekest rest; Moan, moan, O Heart! By grief and care oppressed. For the drip of the falling rain, And the wail of the wind shall cease;

Ere-long shall be at peace. Then fear not, O sad Heart! To let thy grief have way; For the grief that bideth not Shall the sooner pass away.

The roar and strife of the waves

1 Drink Less with your Meals.

One great error we commit is that we drink too much at our meals. Before we have sufficiently masticated and insalivated our food to enable us to swallow it, we force it down by taking water or warm drinks --This not only dilutes the saliva, but weakens the action of the gastric juice after the food gets into the stomach. Most persons take a swallow of fluid with almost every mouthful of food. Look along the side of the dinner table in any of our hotels, and you, will be surprised at the quantities which are drank during the meal; and it your mind be not too much taken up with observing the errors of others, you may discover the same evil in yourself, and thus be led to correct it. This halit somer or later, ends in producing dyspepsia and constitution, than which there are no affections more destructive of comfort and spirits and bad health, take from four to eight Pills at first, and smaller doses afterwards, until activity and streingth is restored to the system.

For Nervousness, Sick Headache, Nauska, Pain in the Stomach, Back, or Nide, take from four to dight pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently, take more the next day until they do. These complaints will be swept out from the system. Don't wear these and their kindred disorders because your stomach is foul. For Schoffla, Enystferias, and all Disonses of the Skin, take the Pills freely and frequently, to keep the bowals open. The cruptions will generally soon begin to diminish and disappear. Many dreadful ulcets and sores have been healed up by the purging and purifying effect of these Pills, and some disgusting diseases which seemed to saturate the thole system have completely yielded to their influence, leaving the sufferer in perfect health. Patients! Your duty to society forbids that you should parade yourself around the world covered with pimples, bloches, ulcers, sores, and all or any of the unclean diseases of the skin, because your system wants cleansing.

To Purity the Blood, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which sow the seeds of incurable diseases will be went out of the system like chaff before the wind. By this property they do as much good in preventing sickness as by the remarkable cures which they are making every where.
