EDUCATION. FAMILY LIBRARIES, &c MESSAS. EDITORS :--- I think it must be apparent to every observer that the discussions upon the subject of education which have been had in the Republican. from time to time through the last three or four years, have served to initiate a very salutary interest, for which the public are greatly indebted to you and your valuable paper, and for which I for one very cordially thank you. But I have shought that possibly these discussions may have regarded too much the means and agencies of education, and too little | years ago, or even twenty, has very poor conceptions the substance-wo much the modes and forms, and too little the sets-according to their just importance relatively. I do not however pretend to decide. I and discoveries of science. The old-style far merely suggest. I wish- wooden-bottom chairs with high backs, is superseded with your permission-merchy to make a remark upon the nature and design of education generallythe end and ecope of it, and to offer, more particularly for the consideration of parents and guardians, a single suggestion bearing upon the subject.

Our English word educate and its cognates are de rived-as every smatterer knows-from the Latin edu- cosses of the culinary art are now conveniently done co, which primarily imports to lead out, to draw and regulated by the clock that ticks on the mantelforth. The word is sppropriate in reference to one of the leading objects of education-to develops the the day are done, a clean, carpeted sitting-room, well strengthen and expand them. There are two principal objects of education, in the usual limited sense of the term, to farnish the mind with leading facts and principles in the Arts and Sciences, and to uevelope it, to train it to sustained independant thought. Acquisition and reflection, this is the simple profarm life. gramme of education in the first and proper sense; they read. Important as they are and are justly considered to be, they are really, after all, only a very subordinate means. They may contribute to lay the foundation, but the superstructure must be reared by the individual himself.

"Knowledge and fame are gained not by surprise He that would win must labor, for the prize." It is of fittle importance that persons finish a cer tain prescribed course of study, if they come to consider it-which they often do-as the completion of their education. The truth is, education is the hudness, the duty, and the amusement of life, and youth should be taught so to consider it. "And besiden this, giving all diligence, add to your faith, virtue &c."

as a part of the perfect character-" to your virtue. knowledge," &c., a positive duty, and perhaps not the least important part of the category. But education is also a most unfailing and independent source of innocent amusement. The acquisition of knowledgethe habit of investigation and reflection-the constant and agreeable surprise of new truths; serve to impress upon all our faculties an active and lively and delighted consciousness of existence, pervadirg all their operations-filling every leisure moment, and constituting a sure antidote to listlesmess, ennui, and there are also, in large measure, the refined and ex- the feeding time comes, to take all the boys ated pleasures of combining, digesting, deducing, he can muster, each with a beech gad, and expressing, in all the infinite types of thought, and himself with an old pail for the enlyes to the gratification of the innocent and laudable ambi-the gratification of the innocent and laudable ambi-the gratification of the innocent and laudable ambi-the image of the image of t portance of these considerations and many others with rods, and the poor calves are severely which might be mentioned, are abundantly attested chastised for acting from the dictates of naby the eagerness and zest with which men of every ture, to obtain each his share of mills, which, grade of intellect and culture enter into any employ- under such circumstances, must be unequally ment or matter of business which affords any degree divided, as, many times, two or more calves

The second of these incidented results is that pota-toes and roots thus stored begin to sprout a little earlier than they would otherwise do. The articles to be preserved may be put into a pile on the cellar floor, and sand, andy to put or some other " clean dirt," if any such Hibernian article can be found, may be sifted or showeled over them, so as to exclude air and light.

The Farmer's Fireside.

Few spots are happier, or more coay, at this ses-son of the year, than the rural fireside He who forms his views of it from the recollections of fifty of the place. There is really no class that has shared more largely in the general prosperity of the country, or that has been more benefited by the investigations and discoveries of science. The old-style farm-house, in many parts of the country, and well-built, substantial houses in modern style have taken their places. The old kitchen, which formerly served almost all purposes, except that of a dormitory, his been suc-ceeded by a well-furnished parlor and dining room, and by a kitchen that boasts more comforts than the old house afforded. The cooking apparatus is complete, from gridiron to teakettle, and the various pro-

And when the meals are over, and the labors o the enjoyments of the fireside. There is light enough upon the centre table, no longer dispensed from a single tallow candle, with a wick of spun tow, that only served to make the darkness visible. The farmer, and the farmer's wife and children, have a taste for reading, and the religious, miscellancous, and ag-ricultural papers are fast becoming the necessines of farm life. No class digest more thoroughly what. business, over-taxing the brain. At this season of the year there is comparative lesisure, and the sug-gestions of agricultural papers are turned to good ac-count in forming plans for the coming season. These plans pertain to all the departments of hushandry, and are eagerly participated in by the female part of the household. It is electring to see the progress of foriculture, and to notice how the flower border gains upon other parts of the garden as the younger members of the family come upon the stage. The sgri-cultural matter that is now sown broaddest over the land, through the columns of the religious and polit-ical, as well as agricultural, journals, is hearing fruit.

There is a change for the better coming over the rural districts. New attractions are thrown around farm life, and many more of the sons and daughters of farmers will be induced to abide by the old pomestcad.

> For the Independent Republican. How to Feed Calves.

MESSRS. EDITORS :- I have noticed in an agricultural paper some remarks on the method of renring calves. One thing struck my mind as susceptible of improvement, hamely, the manner of feeding milk, which was, to teach the calves to drink from a pail. I know the usual practice among farmers is to put the calves in a lot together, say from constituting a sure antidote to listlessness, ennui, and 6 to 12 or more, if he raises more, and when will be sold at a very low figure, Bypochondria. HOME TESTIMONY. We have received the following letter in relation to Dz. MORST'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS.

AUBURN FOUR CORNERS, Susq. Co., Pa., Sept. 28th, 1856. Messrs A. J. WHITE & Co., New York :-"The Morse's Indian Root Pills had from you give universal satisfaction, in EVERY INSTANCE, and our farmers use them for almost everything. The Dys-ENTERT has been raging in this section to an alarm-ing extent, for the last six months, SCARGELY a SINGLE nily having escaped, EXCEPT THOSE WHERE your pills have been USED AS A PREVENTIVE, in which case they have REFER FAILED. I will inform you shortly how to send a further supply. Your ob't. Serv't." ALPHONSO H. SMITH.

ALPHONSO H. SMITH. Such letters as the above need no comment from us, they ought to convince all of what we firmly believe, that Dr. Moree's Indian Root Pills are the very best Pill ever made. Sold in Montrose by S. H. & D. Sayre, and by one person in every town, and in all country stores. A. J. White & Co., 2 St. Peters Place, New York, sole Proprietors.
