UNPARALLELED (1 1mm) CASE OF MALPRACTICE All the Teeth of the Upper Law Torn out in Extracting a Molar. DR. H. a Dentist of considerable distinc-tion called at my office a few days since, and while examining a set of new instruments "recently brought with me from Dental College, took us the "Universal Molar Forcep," for the "Experise Haxf-lary," and expressing his admiration of, is surned to several gendemen in the room and loquired if none one of them hadn't a tooth he wished extincted that he wight try the instruments. The of this is below one of them hadn't a tooth he winhed extricted, that he might try the instrument. ' One of them' replied that he had, and took the chain. Now the Doctor is a man of powerful physique, and, seeining 'the' south without even the usual ceremony of "cauting round." he gave it an unmerciful twist, when oh! frightful ! out-came the entire upper jaw, took, pume and dR. The heart rending hortors of the steine that whereas shall not attempt to describe. The yells the critani, the convulsive leaps in frantic agory, of the poer sti-forer, were enough to pluck the beart out of a decent-man, and cause the gravel stones in the gizzard of the miserly Shylock to shake like a still box. But before your hearts go quite to smash my friends, just let me ease you a little, by stating that both the torth and guns in this case were Artificial, but its overy natural in their appearance, that even the Doctory practiced cyc fuiled to detect them, and bence the catastrophe.
