Effect of Trees on the Health. As the season for planting trees has arrived the consideration of their effect upon the salubrity of the atmosphere should be taken into consideration by those who are doubtful whether they ought to plant or not. We give part of a letter from our zealous correspondent, Dr. R. W. Piper, which may have some effect in determining their course: "I do not know that I have ever spoker, to you of the hygienic effects of trees upon animal life. The Medical Times and Gazette has an article upon this subject, advocating the planting of trees in cities, on account of their influence upon health. The writer takes the researches of Dr. Richardson for his basis, showing that animal bodies constantly give off ammonia in large quantities, and this combined with carbonic acid and poisonous gasses from other sources, is the fruitful source of disease, producing that state of the blood which is observed in those who are afflicted with the low fevers so fearfully prevalent in crowded and filthy localities. Trees plunted in our principal streets,' says the 'Times,' would not only help to free the air from the excess of carbon, but from the ammonia, which produces the diseased state of the blood alluded to above. 'Plants require as steady a supply of ammonia as they do of carbonic acid, and in the midst of luxuriant vegetation the putrid emanations from the dung heap and cess-pool are thus rendered innocuous. Let us then have shrubs and trees, by all means, wherever we can find room for them. Timothy Flint, in his 'Valley of the Mississippi, states that the yellow fever never invades the sacred precincts of the pine groves.

I may mention two instances of apparent cure of patients, far gone into consumption whom I sent to the pine woods of Maine af ter they had despaired of help from any source. One of these patients was in such a state as to have entirely lost his voice. After remaining about a year in the woods, living with the lumbermen and sharing in their labors, they returned to their homes in robust health. have a friend in Boston, who, every season, takes a party of valetudinarians with him from the city, with the avowed purpose of restoring them to health, through the balsamic influence of the health of the groves. And notwithstanding in these excursions they are compelled to endure many hardships, often wet with ram, and sleeping in hastily constructed lodges, they invariably return after a few weeks absence with renewed health and vigor. As you are aware, the rank, decaying vegetation of the Pontine marshes gives off such poisonous emanations, that it is almost surely fatal to the unacclimated to pass a single night in their neighborhood; while our Dismal Swamp, which would seem for many reasons to be more liable to be unhealthy, is on the contrary, reputed to be very favorable

Thus, in planting trees in cities, either in considerable masses in parks or pleasure grounds, or more thinly in the streets, we contribute to the health of the people in a way which has been but little in derstood or tho of. For this as well as other reasons, I congratulate you on the new park which, I see by your paper, you have begun to create in your great and growing city. Would it not, allow me to inquire, be an economy of time and money and health, to adopt Mr. Tucker's thus early secure the advantages you have in view? Surely in a city so celebrated for the generosity of its citizens, you have only to convince them that trees of a foot or more in diameter, and fifty or sixty feet in height, can as surely be made to live as smaller ones, to induce them to encourage the undertaking. convince them that trees of a foot or more in induce them to encourage the undertaking .-I wish to ask, through your paper, for communications upon the subject in which I am engaged: I shall be grateful for the smallest fact connected with my subject, and will make due acknowledgement for the same. I would suggest that a fact, which seems of but little importance to the observer, may be of much consequence when connected with others, and may serve, in some cases, to establish a law."

CARE OF YOUR MEADOWS.—1. Close thein now against cattle and all kinds of animals.

Do not allow even your geese to ramble over them. Every young blade of grass cropped off now, will diminish the crop of hay four or five times the appearant of a statistical and the rest of mankind in general, we would say, that we dont believe that "Dress riskes the man," yet we do think that he can be made to look wonderfully like one, by off now, will diminish the crop of hay four or piling" himself into some of the materials which we have nevided for his indicates. five times the amount of nutriment received by the stock from the grass. This is the kind of profit you cannot afford to indulge in.

2. You will probably find portions of your meadows on which the water stands after a rain. It these are of any size, dig a little trench which will drain them into some water course. This will pay. You may add the penders, Pearl and Gold Shirt Stude and Sleeve Buttorf which you will remove to make the tone, Carnelcan Coat Fasteners and Buttons, dc., dc. drain, to your manure heap. It will thus be saved, and will not leave the meadow rough.

3. Pick up all the stones which the winter frosts have brought to the surface. The Montrose, April 29, 1857. frosts have brought to the surface. The scythe or mower should not encounter one stone during the whole season. Do the same with all sticks and roots, and, as far as possible, with the stumps too. A clear even surface is at once a great beauty in a meadow. and a necessary condition of getting he whole

4. Cut away all hummocks and ant hills with a spade, unless you have some more compendious way of removing them. Rolling the meadow, though a good operation, if done so as not to leave the ground too "heavy," will not always press down these projections; paring them off is the only sure way. The economy of this operation will be plain to you, if you remember how many scythes and snathes have been broken, and how many mowers have been blunted or injured by coming against these masses of turf. 5. Scatter manure generously over the higher and poorer ground in your meadow. This will of course pay.—Ohio Farmer.

CURE FOR HORN AIL .- EDS. CO. GENT. --I have a cure for the horn-ail, that I do not recollect of ever seeing in your paper. It is very simple, but I have known it to cure when nothing else that could be thought of would. Take a piece of alum as large as a walnut, pulverize it and put it into about a wine-glass full of sharp vinegar—turn up the flead, and pour it into one ear. In two or three days, pour the same quantity in the other car. A third application is seldom necessary. A. ALLER, Jr. Littles, N. H.

INDEPENDENT AND IMPARTIAL PREM.-The

AMERICAN REPUTATION, -Rev. C. L. Brace, he European correspondent of the N. Y. Sun hus speaks of American reputation in Europe:-The truth is, all through Europe now American reputation is at a low ebb. We are regarded as a dollar-worshipping, unprincipled, sharp, grasping, jubbhng race, whose mean faults are only redeemed by an unquestionable courage and the most unbounded ambition. The brutalities, such as this of Brooks; the civil war of Kansas; the barbarisms of slavery, and jobbings in New York 18 and Washington, are rung over Europe, The glory and beroism which, six years ago, I found to surround the American name, with the middle and lower classes of Europe, is tive franchise for the lower classes, and it is ifficult for the democrats of Europe to justify us. For my own part, I am not sorry for this change of public opinion. It may serve, henceforth, to shut off forever, the miserable boasting and gascenade which have ever made our people ridiculous in the eyes of sensible men. We have been vain under the world's applause; now, under its frown, we can show the true stuff in us. We do not need any one's approval. The questions fighting with us are too grand for these members of petty states, far away, to understand. The very scum on our surface in America, and the boil ing agitation, show the immense powers at work below. It is, really, the redemption of mankind that is being struggled for in our country. Stormy years, with grand events, are before us. God help the right.

There it is," (pointing to a pile of Valentines.) "The gentlemen may admire me as much as they please, but they should know better than to annoy me so." Ma faints, and is carried out of the room.

The following is printed in sober earnestness in the Spiritual Telegraph. To laugh would be improper:

"A MEDITATIVE DOMESTIC WANTED .- One of our patrons in Kalamazoo, Mich., wants a female domestic in the family, who is meditative and would be willing to sit in the fainily circle for communion with Spirits."

WHITE MEN SOLD IN KENTUCKY .- In that State the barbarous practice of selling paupers into slavery still exists, and it was but recently that a man named Hugh was sold at Covington, Ky., for a term of four months because he was a pauper. There is no difference in principle between enslaving a white man and black man, and it is in accordance with that public depravity, which allows black men to be enslaved, to reduce also the whites to bondage, who may be so unfortunate as to be pour,

The heart rending horrors of the scene that followed I shall not attempt to describe. The yells, the screams, the convulsive leaps in frantic agony, of the poor suf-ferer, were enough to plack the heart out of a decent man, and cause the gravel stones in the gizzard of the miscrly Shylock to shake like a rattle box. But before your hearts go quite to smash my friends, just let me ease you a little, by stating that both the teeth and gums in this case were Artificial, but so very natural in their appearance, that even the Domor's practiced eye failed to detect them, and hence the catastrophe. But please bear in mind that this de-ception can be produced by no other kind of Artificial Dentures, except the "Improved Mineral Plate," in which the teeth and plate are one solid piece, carved and colored in so exact imitation of nature as to render it hard to believe that they can be Artificial, when seen in the mouth. We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it all ready known: Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent without some personal experience of its effects; and fewer yet the communities any where which have not among them some living trophy of its victory over the subtle and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. While it is the most powerful antidote yet known to man for the formidable and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, it is also the pleasantest and safest-remely that can be employed for infants and young persons. Parents should have it in store against the insidious enemy that steals upon them unprepared We have abundant grounds to believe the Curary Preceast saves more lives by the consumptions if prevents than those is cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, nor neglect them until no buman skill can master the in secreble canker that, fastfened on the vitals, eats your life away.

All know the dreadful fatality of lung disorders, and as they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need not do more than assure them it is still made the best it an id. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to produce it the midd perfect possible; and thus afford those who rely on it the best agent which our skil can furnish for their cure.
