a clear and vigorous reasoning faculty, and a chaste and prolific imagination. He possessed in a rare and beautiful proportion these cardinal mental qualities. In the discussion of any subject, he seized hold of the main points with the vigor of an intellectual giant, and handled them skilfully, gracefully, and with ease. No matter how abstruse the details of a discussion or an inquiry might be to other men his well-trained and powerful intellect followed out and unravelled all its intricacies. and showed them up clearly to view. No matter how profound and deep a theme might be, Hamilton easily and perseveringly sounded its lowest and obscurest depths, and revealed them plainly to the observation of men. He was always thorough and exhaustive in his researches, as his reports as Secretary of the Treasury will clearly evince .-He dived to the bottom of every subject .--Having laid down his premises plainly and fairly, he argues from those premises with the most logical clearness, accuracy and force. His reasoning forms a chain of iror, which a giant cannot break. But that iron chain, tho' ponderous and powerful, was a gilded one .--It was burnished with all the beauty and polish of a rich imagination. Few writers in our language, not even those who have cultivated elegance and euphony of style as their. sole accomplishment, and whose entire attention has been devoted to the labor limae, excelled him in this particular. His essays; pamphlets and reports are masterpieces; each perfect, symmetrical and finished in itself.

This merit becomes the more extraordinary when we remember the vast quantity of ry when we remember the vast quantity of Profession, so as to perform all the operations in its his writings. He did not confine his powers to the elaboration of a few great productions, and exhaust upon them all suavity, melody pain. I am doing it almost daily. I insert plate dwelt forever on his lips. In a deliberative erate. I employ no "stool pigeons," hire no editor-dwelt forever on his lips. In a deliberative or in the the four the openation of a few great of instance or in the two the two woman to "pipe" for me, and the openation of a line to plate the openation of the assembly, in the courts of justice, or in the halls of the academy, the eloquence of Hamilton was a model of perfection. He was the pride and delight of all who could appreciate the beauties of a polished, consummate and masterly oratory. Even his great rival and enemy. Aaron Burr, was reluctantly compelled to concede Hamilton's supremacy, in this respect.

His literary and scientific attainments were by no means limited. His knowledge was extensive and accurate. Possessing a retentive memory, clear discrimination and indomitable industry, he soon mastered the details of every branch of learning to which his attention was directed, and made them his own. In his youth he spent only three years in Columbia College; yet during that period he rendered himself familiar with classical languages and learning, with general history, with mathematics, and with the exact sciences. We have already seen how, in four short months, he acquired a competent knowledge of the dry and abstruse learning, both of the common and the statute law, and prepared himself for admission to the bar .--Smucker.

A BABY AND A BASKET .- The I hiladelphia Pennsylvanian' has the following good stury among its police reports : As Mrs. Esther Stansbury, residing in a court running from Race, below Sixth street, was about to bring a bucket of water from the hydrant last night, she found a basket suspended from the knob of the front door. Putting her hand into the basket, she felt something slive and kicking, so wrapped up in rage that no further discovery could be made without unwrapping the object. A piece of paper folded like a letter, lay by the side of the animated bundle. Mrs. Stansbury immediately returned into the bouse, and by the light of the lamp examined the billet. It was directed to her husband. She tremulously broke the seal and read as follows :

"To Joe STANSBURY :- SIR I send you the baby, which you will please take good care of, and bring up right, so that it may
