The Philadelphia Election—The Country to the City, Greeting.

BY JAMES AIKEN, LEWISBURG, PA.

Philadelphia redeemed! For the people have spoken,
And their voice echoes loud over mountain and plain;
The base "English swindle" lies shattered and broken,
And who shall e'er gather its fragments again!

Poor Bigler! He wanted a slave and a free State,
"Good Lord and Good Devil," says Billy so meek;
Small chance has the devil when freemen awaken,
And Christians in truth through the ballot-box speak.

The stuffers, and bruisers, and Molly Maguire,
All skinn'd and dumbfounded and put to the rout,
Like rattle-snakes caught in a whirlwind of fire,
And frightened to death by the Peoples' loud shout!

O brave Philadelphia! the country now glories
To honor thy freemen so gallant and true;
And when we're a chance in the coming October,
We'll "do the thing up," Philadelphia, like you!

O heard ye that throch, ye brave men of Kansas,
In your dark, dismal Lucknow or terror and gloom?
The brave Philadelphians, by Havelock marches,
Advance to consign your mean foes to their tomb.

Philadelphia redeemed! For the people have spoken,
And their voice echoes loud over mountain and plain,
The base "English swindle" lies shattered and broken!
What fool shall e'er gather its fragments again?

The Chivalry and the Law.

THE "chivalry" are showing us a new phase of their character. Last year, and in fact in all time past, they figured as the fighting men of the federal capital—the bloods of the metropolis—who avenged all insults at the sword's point or the pistol's mouth. They absolutely howled for battle. The Northern men were sneered at daily for their pusillanimity and unwillingness to engage in pugilistic and other encounters. The religious, intellectual and moral superiority were all on the sunny side of the Potomac.

This year, somehow, the tables seem to be turned. In the recent Homeric combat in the House of Representatives, Keitt, as the representative of the Palmetto chivalry, went into action with his usual impetuosity, but, on being knocked down for his pains by the unchivalric Grow, of Pennsylvania, seems to have suddenly subsided into a devoted peace-maker and asserter of the authority of the law. If he had been annointed by a Cardinal, the effect could not have been more marked.

The good work seems to be progressing. A Mr. Helper, of North Carolina, has apostatized from the faith of his fathers, and refuses any longer to believe in the righteousness and profitableness of slavery. He published a book sometime last year, in which he declared it to be his opinion that "a crisis" was impending over the sunny South, in consequence of its devoted attachment to the peculiar institution, and, moreover, supported his opinion by a number of arguments to which, for a long time, the South has not pretended to have any better reply than assault and battery and banishment. Mr. Helper was, however, not within reach of this sort of logic when his book appeared; so, as the next best thing, they charged him with theft and embezzlement—charges which he refuted, and which were, last winter, withdrawn by their promulgators in this city. His work was largely quoted by Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts, in the recent debates on Kansas; and in reply, Senator Biggs, as usual, had nothing better to allege than the old accusation of swindling, directed against the author. Helper forthwith proceeded to file a rejoinder, telling Mr. Craige, Bigg's informant, that in circulating such a story, he had committed a cowardly act. Craige thereupon committed an assault, but Helper, it appears, is the better pugilist of the two, and although Craige measures seven feet, or thereabouts, he was "punishing" him severely when the combatants were separated.

The "law" now intervenes. Helper is brought up before "Justice" Arnold; Craige, whose countenance doubtless bore marks of the strife, declines to appear, but the wrongs of the chivalry must be redressed, their broken noses and black eyes atoned for; in spite of the fact that no one appeared to prosecute, the delinquent was sentenced to find bail in the sum of one thousand dollars to keep the peace. The best remains to be told. The soberly, orderly, discreet, fastidious, gentlemanly Keitt, of South Carolina, suddenly conceived, while Mr. Helper was in custody, the horrible thought that he procably carried weapons about with him, and at his suggestion he was disarmed of a bowe-knife and revolver. He was then arrested a second time, and fined twenty dollars for carrying concealed weapons.

In view of the violence and crime which have so long been permitted to go unpunished in Washington, these prompt and vigorous peace measures are highly encouraging, though it must be confessed that the satisfaction we take in recounting them would be somewhat increased if the person who was arrested and punished had been the man who had committed the assault, instead of the man who was assaulted. The fact that it was Mr. Craige who struck the first blow was sworn to by Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, and testified to by Mr. Wright, of Georgia, in a letter published in the Union; so there can be no doubt of it. The only thing of a serious nature charged against Mr. Helper was the statement by Mr. Wright that he was "tall" and "dark," and had "a rather savage and sinister look." Mr. Helper, considering that he is an opponent of slavery, has been let off very cheaply. He has been villified by a North Carolina Senator, assaulted by a North Carolina member of Congress, fined for doing what every man in Washington is known to do, and put under bonds to keep the peace for six months. Mr. Wright gives it as his opinion that Helper intended to assassinate somebody, though he only used his fists to defend himself when he was struck, and thinks it was "one of the most determinately wicked and unprovoked assaults he ever witnessed." But after all it must be a great satisfaction to know that somebody has been punished for an assault in Washington, even though it was the man who was assaulted.—N. Y. Times.

KNOWING WHOM TO KICK.—The late Col. McClung, of Mississippi, once got into a dispute in the office of the Prentiss House, at Vicksburg, with a rowdy, when, to end the matter without further delay, he took the rowdy by the "nap of the neck," led him to the door, and kicked him into the street.—The kickee picked himself up, walked away, and here the matter ended. Some weeks afterwards McClung was in New Orleans, and when walking up St. Charles street, saw the fellow he had kicked out of the Prentiss House kicking a third party out of a drinking saloon. McClung walked up to his old acquaintance, once kickee, but now the kicker, and scanning him closely, said:

"Look here, my fine fellow, are you not the man I kicked out of the Prentiss House the other day?"

"Softly, softly, Colonel," replied the rowdy taking McClung by the arm, "don't mention it—I'm the man—but—but—you and I know who to kick."

A PETRIFYING STREAM.—There is a little stream which empties into Shasta Valley, California, about twenty miles west of the great butte, which possesses the singular property of incrusting everything which falls into its waters with a complete coat of stone. Flowers, leaves, grass, pine buds, and things of that sort, will become completely enameled in the course of a week or so, retaining in the process their natural form.

REVIVAL INCIDENT.—A correspondent of the Boston Bee, writing about the revival at Providence, says: "At one of these prayer meetings in a church in this city, whose summit is graced with a dome in imitation of St. Paul's in London, there arose a man, dressed poorly and with want depicted upon his aged countenance,' who, offering up a pure and holy prayer to his Creator, closed in the following strange manner: 'I have been afflicted with the curse of poverty since last fall. My poor wife and children have almost starved with hunger and perished with the cold; and for what reason? This, brethren: the men who have this morning exhorted you to come to your Saviour have failed to pay me for my labor in repairing their boots and shoes; and if this is religion, I'll have none of it.' It made a sensation in that audience. It was as if a sudden squall had struck them flat aback, and they going at the time with studding sails out on both sides. It took some little time ere the parson could brace the headyards forward; and the craft had made a long stern way before she filled upon the port tack. In justice to the parson, I must say that he got his ship very cleverly out of irons, by saying that 'he hoped the admonition would cause those who had laid such stumbling blocks in their brother's way to remove them before the sun went down.'"

SHAD.—The most interesting to housekeepers, of all fish is the common shad, which may be regarded not only as a source of wealth but as a miracle of nature in its multiplication and continuance. Notwithstanding thousands of myriads are destroyed by the agency of man, and tens of thousands of myriads in the ova state, we find an undiminished abundance year after year, which can only be accounted for by their extraordinary creative ability. They spawn about forty-five thousand to each female. They ascend our rivers from the 1st of April to the 10th of June, for the purpose of spawning, which they accomplish in the same manner that bass do, except the male fails to cover the ova. This necessary operation is formed by the ebbing and flowing tide.

The organization of this fish, says Mr. Pell, enables it to breathe either salt or fresh water, and, taking advantage of this fact, I have been able to breed them in ponds, and, from numerous experiments, am led to believe that shad live but a single year, and thus, when they pass down our rivers, after spawning, they are so weak and emaciated that they fall an easy prey to voracious fish.—They take the circuit of the sea, commencing in the regions of the North Pole, in schools equaling in extent the whole of Great Britain and France. When they reach the coast of Georgia they separate into immense squadrons, and, as the season advances, run up all the rivers on our coast, followed, a little later, by the herring. The shad lives upon suction, and feeds upon the animalculæ in the water, while swimming. Food has never been discovered in the body of shad when opened, and they never bite a baited hook.

THE THEORY OF LONGEVITY.—Every man is born with a certain stock of vitality, which can not be increased, but may be husbanded. With this stock he may live fast or slow—may live extensively or intensively—may draw his little amount of life over a large space, or narrow it into a concentrated one; but when his stock is exhausted, he has no more. He who lives extensively—who drinks pure water, avoids inflammatory diseases, exercises sufficiently, but not too laboriously, indulges no exhausting passions, feeds on no exciting material, pursues no debilitating pleasures, avoids all laborious and protracted study, preserves an easy mind, and thus husbands his quantum of vitality—will live considerably longer than he otherwise would do, because he lives slow; while he, on the other hand, who lives intensively—who beverages himself on liquors and wines, exposes himself to inflammatory diseases, or causes that produce them, labors beyond his strength, visits exciting scenes, and indulges exhausting passions, lives on stimulating and highly seasoned food—is always debilitated by his pleasures.—Live Illustrated.

AGES OF OUR DISTINGUISHED STATESMEN AT THEIR DEATH.—The following table, says the Cincinnati Inquirer, will be interesting at this time, as showing the age of many of our distinguished statesmen at the time of their death:

	Born.	Died.	Age.
General Washington,	1732	1799	67
Benjamin Franklin,	1706	1790	84
John Adams,	1735	1826	91
Thomas Jefferson,	1743	1826	83
John Q. Adams,	1767	1848	81
Andrew Jackson,	1767	1845	78
Henry Clay,	1777	1852	75
John C. Calhoun,	1782	1850	68
Daniel Webster,	1782	1852	70
Thomas H. Benton,	1782	1858	76

It will be seen that Benjamin Franklin was born at an earlier period than any statesman who figured in our Revolutionary history. He was the oldest man who signed the Declaration of Independence, being at the time seventy years of age, and had filled the allotted time of the Psalmist. He was twenty-six years older than General Washington, and was thirty-seven years the senior of Thomas Jefferson. In the number of years that he lived, John Adams was the patriarch of our statesmen, dying at the extraordinary age of ninety-one years. He lived twenty-four years longer than General Washinton, who was appointed, on his motion in the Continental Congress, Commander-in-Chief of the American armies during the War of the Revolution. His son, John Q. Adams, was also very aged, being eighty-one years old. The Adams stock was distinguished for its longevity.

CHEERFULNESS.—Try for a single day, I beseech you, to preserve yourself in an easy and cheerful frame of mind. Be but for one day, instead of a fire-worshiper of passion and hell, the sun-worshiper of a clear self-possession; and compare the day in which you have rooted out the weed of dissatisfaction with that on which you have allowed it to grow up—and you find your heart open to every good motive, your life strengthened, and your breast armed with a panoply against every trick of fate—truly you will wonder at your own improvement.—Richter.

☞ The origin of the word "wife" has recently been the subject of some discussion. Trench, a high, authority on the "study of words," remarks that the word belongs to the same family as weave, woof, web, and the German webun. It is the title given to a person who is engaged at the web and woof, these having been the most ordinary branches of female industry and wisely employment when the language was forming. So that in the word itself is wrapped up a hint of earnest, indoor, stay-at-home occupations, as being fittest for her who bears this name!

A JEWEL OF A GIRL.—One of our exchanges speaks of a beautiful girl who would prove a capital speculation for a fortune hunter of the right sort. Her voice is of silver, her hair of gold, her teeth of pearl, her cheeks of rubies, and her eyes of diamonds.

☞ It is not work that kills men: it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more on a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction. Fear secretes acids; but love and trust are sweet juices.

Just Published:

BRIGHTLY'S UNITED STATES DIGEST, 1789 TO 1857.

From the adoption of the Constitution to the end of the Thirty-fourth Congress.

One Vol. Imp. 8vo., pp. 1149.

THE matter is arranged ALPHABETICALLY, with ANALYTICAL DIVISIONS and SUBDIVISIONS, under which the CHRONOLOGICAL arrangement has been, as far as possible, preserved. It possesses MARGINAL REFERENCES to each section whereby its CONTENTS can be seen at a glance. The notes of JUDICIAL DECISIONS, including not only those of the SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, but also those of the CIRCUIT and DISTRICT COURT and COURT OF CLAIMS, many of which are scattered throughout the LEGAL PERIODICALS and not to be found elsewhere; many DECISIONS of the STATE COURTS, the OPINIONS of the ATTORNEYS GENERAL and HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS are placed at the foot of the page, and refer to the respective SECTIONS of which they are the JUDICIAL INTERPRETATION. There is an accurate TABLE OF CASES, and also a CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF STATUTES. The REFERENCES to the ACTS are placed conspicuously in the margin of the page. The CONTENTS comprises not only the TITLES of each SUBJECT, but also the various subdivisions into which each Title has been distributed. The INDEX is thorough and comprehensive, and refers not only to the LAWS but also to the CONSTITUTION of the United States. The matter is arranged under LOCAL as well as GENERAL TITLES; for instance, the names of STATES, TERRITORIES, CITIES and many of the PORTS of the United States, will be found in their alphabetical order with a SUMMARY of the LEGISLATION in which each of them is interested. The SECTION as well as the page is given, by means of which greatly increased facility and speed in the use of the work will be obtained, not merely by PROFESSIONAL GENTLEMEN, but by those unlearned in the LAW.

In order that ERRORS might be avoided, the PAGE OF EVERY REFERENCE has been carefully verified, (in the case of the NOTES, by examination of the Authorities, and in the INDEX, by comparison with the TEXT) after the matter was in type.

LASTLY, Careful regard as to the convenience of SIZE and FORM has been had in the choice of the type, to produce a book, which, though typographically clear and legible, should not be untenable to the charge of great bulk and unwieldiness.

In order that no impediment may be thrown in the, way of the purchaser of this Digest, but that, on the contrary, it may become a Legal Manual in use in every Court, Law-chamber, and Counting-house, as well as in the Legislative Halls and Public Offices, we have determined to sell the Work at SIX DOLLARS per copy; and we flatter ourselves that a Law Book so costly in its preparation has rarely before been offered at so low a price.

From the Hon. R. B. Taney, Chief Justice of the United States.

"It is a work of much value and well executed. The heads under which the different Acts of Congress are arranged, are well chosen and appropriate; and what is still more important, the Index, as far as I have been able to examine it, is complete. The book has evidently been prepared with much care and judgment, and will, I doubt not, be very acceptable to the public."

From the Hon. R. C. Grier, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"The work does honor not only to the learning and industry of the author, but to the publishers for the very handsome manner in which it is executed. Those who prefer to have the statutes in a digested form will find it a very valuable book."

From the Hon. Isaac F. Redfield, Chief Justice of Vermont.

"I esteem it a most excellent work of the class."

NEW SERIES.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.

Publishers' Prospectus.

ON the 5d of April, 1858, commenced the NEW SERIES OF LITTELL'S LIVING AGE, enlarged to Eighty Pages, handsomely Printed on Fine Paper with Cut Edges, issued weekly.

The long established and deservedly high reputation which this eclectic work has enjoyed, renders it superfluous to refer to its claims as a best choice and ably conducted compendium of

The Best Selected Literature of the Times.

Comprising, as it does, the "cream de la creme" of all the world-renowned Reviews and Periodicals of Europe, as well as original articles and occasional selections from the best fugitive literature of our own country, it will be at once apparent that it possesses a character alike unique and unrivalled, suitable for all classes of readers—the Statesman, Student, Philosopher, & Family Circle.

In addition to the intrinsic quality of its literary contents, the quantity of reading matter embodied in a single yearly volume of this work amounts to FOUR THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY PAGES, the subscription price of which is only SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM; thus constituting it the Best and Cheapest Periodical in the World.

This work has received the universal approval of the press, religious and secular, and also the cordial approbation of many eminent men of our country—such as

Chief Justice Story,	Chancellor Kent,
W. H. Prescott,	Hon. Geo. Bancroft.
Geo. Tickner,	J. Q. Adams,
Hon. Jared Sparks,	Rev. Albert Barnes.

Complete sets, handsomely bound, packed in neat boxes, and delivered in all the principal cities, free of expense of freight, are for sale at Two Dollars a Volume.

Any Volume may be had separately, at Two Dollars, bound, or a Dollar and a Half in Numbers.

Any number may be had for 12½ cents; and it may be worth while for Subscribers or Purchasers to complete any Broken Volumes they may have, and thus greatly enhance their value.

IN THE FIELD AGAIN.

THE SUBSCRIBER IS AGENT FOR THE

Greenleaf Improved Water Wheel,

the greatest improvement in that kind of machinery known. They are warranted to do one third more business, with the same head and quantity of water, than the Rose Wheel, or any iron water wheel known to the subscriber. They are admirably adapted to either or in fact any place you choose to put them. For particulars and certificates, enquire of LORENZO VANCE, Lakeville Center, Susquehanna County, Pa.

Grist Mills or Saw Mills,

I would also offer my services in the construction or repairs of the different kinds of believing that my experience has been sufficient to give general satisfaction.

MACHINERY,

Feeling disposed to encourage improvements, I would make the following offer: All those interested in Mills, may select the smartest and best-running Mill that they can find, and I will bind myself by contract to insert, instead of the kind now in the Mill, a which will make one-third better per centage than the Rose Wheel, Flutter Wheel, or any other of the different species of reaction wheels; twenty per cent better than the Centre Vent, and within twenty per cent as well as the Overshot, in any place. In case on a fair trial, I cannot fulfill any or all of the above, I will forfeit the whole job and pay all actual damages. Let us hear from those in favor of Improvements.
