Rev. E. H. Chopin,

Jerrold said to an ardent young gentlemen who had burned with a desire to see himself in print: "Be advised by me, young man; don't take down the shutters before there is something in the window."

Influence of Song. Most of us have experienced the luxury of a tear when listening to an old ballad. We knew an old man, who lived a long career of vice and crime, and was at length banished from his country; and who, while undergo. ing his period of banishment amid the wilds and jungles of a distant land, heard in the summer eventide a sweet voice, singing in his own language the very song which had lulled him to his infant slumber, when he knew the crime by name, and knew it only to abhor. It had been sung, too, by the cradle of an infant sister, one who had died young, and now was in heaven; the mother. oo, was no more.

But the song-the old song had not lost its influence over him yet. Back came trooping upon him the old memories which had so long slumbered down there in the uniconsumed depths of his heart; the mother and the father; the household gathering; the old school house; the time-worn church, hal hidden by the yew trees, where he had heard the bible read, all came back upon him as fresh as if it were yesterday, he gave vent to a flood of tears, and then the eld man grew calm, and his latter days were his best days: and when the term of his punishment had expired he came back to the old village graveyard, amid whose grassy hillocks he had played and gamboled, and where the mother and her little ones were sleeping, he laid down his weary limbs, and sank peacefully away into the common grave. - Eliza Cook's Journal.

THE GERMANS. + Mrs. Jane T. H. Cross, n the Charleston and Nashville Advocate, writing from Dresden, says : ...

The Germans are at once the most ethe real and most earthly people. Music is mingled with Bairish beer, septiment, with sausages, and women who never read a line of poetry fill their windows with flowers,-The homeliest habits and customs are intertwined with the most graceful. Their reglect of their teeth is so universal that it makes one almost nervous to see a. German oven his mouth; and yet from that mouth often proceed the most practical and tender expressions. The mother of a family toils as if life were one long working day, and yet, when the birthday of her little daughter arrives, the birthday table is set out, decoratwith beautiful wrealls and boquets of flowers. Amid these, wax tapers are blazing, one for every year of the child's life. Fruits, and cake, and nuts, crown the board, and presents from every member of the family, and from other friends, are arranged in the most graceful manner about the table. The little girl receives the joyous congratulations and kisses of all the fam ily, and the whole house presents a scene of gayety. These charming and simple coremonies are repeated at every birthday of every member of the household; and Christmas is still a greater occasion, not to speak
