A HENNERY.
A Mr. De Sora, possessed of an old dilapidated estate near Paris, having discovered the most of making hens lay every day in the year by feeding them with horse flesh, raw and minced, bethought him of going into the fresh egg business on a large scale.— This estate was just what he wanted in the way of grounds, and its proximity to Paris assured him of a ready market.

He began his experiment with three hund-red hens, and found that they averaged the first year some twenty-five dozen eggs each. Last season he had ten thousand hens at ork, with a fair proportion of male birds, ork, with a mir preportion of male birds, and the report on the result was the same, and the fiftees, and other buildings are The sheds, and other buildings are around a quadrang. ground. This is acres, the general feeding paling so that sub-divided by fences of open re allowed only a limited number of towls and in different formiter and these are range. to herd together, and these are ranged in dif-ferent apartments, according to their age; no bird being allowed to according to bird being allowed to exceed four years. the end of the fourth year, they are placed in the fattening coops for about three weeks, fed entirely on crushed grain, and sent to Paris alive. The breeding rooms are warmed by steam, and the heat is kept up with remarkable uni-formity to that evolved by the female fowl during the process of incubation, which is known to mark higher on the thermometer than at any other period. A series of shelves one above the other, form the nests, while blankets are spread over the eggs to exclude my accidental light. The hatched chicks are removed to the nursery each morning, and fresh eggs laid in to supply the place of empty shells. A constant succession of chickens be glad to furnish any infermation, or any of the Ma is thus insured, and, moreover, the feathers are always free from vermin.

A hen is never allowed to set. The males and females mingle freely at all seasons.
All the Shanghai, Cochin China, and other fancy fowls have been got rid of, as the old fashioned barnyard breed is found to be more cheaply and easily raised, and to give better eggs and flesh.

To supply the great consumption of meat, the numerous disabled and worn out horses in and around Paris are depended on. They are neatly and scientifically slaughtered at M De Sora's own abottoir. The blood is sold for art purposes. The tanners buy the skins. The glue makers and manufacturers of Prussian blue, get the heads, hoofs, shanks, &c. The button makers buy the larger bones. The agricultural merchants take the remainder of the bones for bone dust, or ivory black making. The marrow is made into fashionable ointments, lip salve, &c .-Even the entrails are put to use. The flesh is cut into certain proportions, passed thro a series of revolving knives, and comes out in the shape of a mountain of mince meat, which is slightly seasoned with salt and ground pepper-the hens are epicares, it appears-then put into barrels, headed up and ent per railroad to the Hennery. There it is kept in the store rooms, the temperature of which is just below the freezing point all the year round, and thus the mince meat is never sour or offensive. The fowls eat it with avidity, are always in good condition, and the bens lay each an egg almost every day, in all weathers and seasons. They have on Cloth, and Matting, Looking Glasses, Wall Paper, besides plenty of pure water with gravel and

The average consumption of horses per day is twenty-two, and so well arranged is the system that the proceeds of the sale of hides, bones, &c., make a profit on the original cost of the horses. Another item of profit is the manure. From the fowl yard, keeping articles, Builders and Mechanics Hardware, which is engerly sought for by the gardeners Farming Articles, Scales and Balances, &c., &c., which is engerly sought for by the gardeners in the neighborhood.

About one hundred persons, mostly fe-males, are employed in the various departments of the honnery. The expenses of the establishment, including repairs, interest, &c., amount to about $75,000 per annum. The sales of eggs last Winter were 40,000 dozen a week, at four francs for six dozen, or $5, 000 per week, which is $250,000 per annum. So that Mr. De Sora can both cluck and crow over his hens, that bring him in a clear revenue of nearly $175,000 a year.—N. O. Pic-

"AN AX TO GRIND."-A late number of the Bucks County (Pa.) Intelligencer enters the name of another claimant to the honor of having first given currency to this common colloquial phrase. That journal says: "It was not Dr. Franklin who gave to the world this convenient and expressive phrase. It would be a grievous wrong to attempt to rob him of any of his honors, or to call, in question his authorship of any of the sayings who had the ax to grind, from which the present story is garbled, was written by Charles Miner, under the from de plume of Poor Robert the Scribe. Those articles of 'Poor Richard,' but the story of the man were afterward published in a small volume, and were printed at 'Miner's Press, Doylestown.' The book was entitled 'Essays from the Desk of Poor Robert the Scribe.' The first piece was headed, 'Who'll Turn Grindstone?' And from this the phrase 'an ax to grind' has obtained more than a land-wide circulation."

POULTRY AND EGGS.—Fowls like a warm southern aspect, where they can huddle to-gether in the sun during the middle of the day. Provide them such a place and plenty of food, such as corn, cob-meal mixed with scalding water, or hot potatoes, with occasional feeds of the flesh of young calves, plucks of sheep, and constant access to pure water, gravel, old mortar, oyster or clam shells, and bones, all broken finely, and they will yield eggs in abundance through the

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A WATCH AND A CLOCK.—A watch differs from a clock in its having a vibrating wheel instead of a vibrating pendulum; and, as in a clock, gravity is always pulling the pendulum down to the bottom of its arc, which is its natural place of rest, but does not fix it there, because the momentum acquired during its fall from one side, carries it up to an equal height on the other—so in a watch a spring, generally spiral, surrounding the axis of the balance wheel, is always pulling this toward a middle position, but does not fix it there, because the momentum acquired during its approach to the middle position from either side carries it just as far past on the other side, and ries it just as far post on the other side, and the spring has to begin its work again. The from their date. C. L. WARD. balance wheel at each vibration, allows one tooth of the adjoining wheel to pass, as the pendulum does in a clock; and the record of the beats is preserved by the wheel which follows. A mainspring is used to keep up the motion of the watch, instead of the weight used in a clock; and as a spring acts equally well whatever be its position, a watch keeps time although carried in the pocket, or in a moving ship. In winding up a watch, one turn of the axle on which the key is fixed is rendered equivalent, by the train of wheels, to about four hundred turns of beats of the balance wheel; and thus the exertion, during a few seconds, of the hand
