only man there is-send for some other man

Katarina's heart fell at this news, and the Justice was growing impatient. Just then old Dr. Johnson, that "of all flowers, he ad-Katarina-looked out of the window and saw mired none more than the cauli-flower!" Katarina-looked out of the window and saw a short and thick young German going by, when she rushed to the door and hallooed, "Fritz! Fritz!" Fritz shortly made his appearance at the door, when Katarina's mother said, "Fritz, you loss mine Katarina?" Fritz allowed he did, more as sauer-krout. "Then stand up here," thundered the Justice; and before Fritz could realize his position, he was man and wife, and Katarina's arms were around his neck, and her lips pressed to his, she crying between the calisthenics, "mein husband—mein Fritz." Our duty as a correct historian compels us to say that Fritz hugged back as well as he knew how. The Justice, with head erect, stepped smilingly out, leaving the lovers to themselves, and walked away meditatively, a boly calm stealing all over his massive proportions, the consciousness of having done his duty gleaming in his eye, and honor, honesty, and rectitude in his footstep.—Buffalo Rep.

Slight Misconception.

NUMEROUS are the blunders of freshly im ported servants, but the one we are now about to relate, which occurred recently at Buffalo city, appears to be the latest. A family engaged the services of a servant girl who breathed the sweet accents of the Green plicity was only equalled by her good nand anxiety to please.

"Old Whity," was a venerable charger, years of faithful service, and being a favorite. was allowed the free and unrestricted range of the back yard. One day Bridget was directed to do the ironing, and hang the different articles on the clothes horse in the rear of the house. She proceeded cheerfully with her duty, and after it was completed, her mistress went below to ascertain how well the task was done. Bridget looked weary and out of patience.

"Did you put them all on the horse?" inquired the lady. "Faith I did, and a mighty troublesome its seed-like vessel when swollen, to the season I had with him, sure. What with Greek letter, Beta. A. Durch Juny.-Judge Jones, of Indianna, who never allows a chance for a joke to pass him, occupied the bench when it became necessary to obtain a juryman in a case in which L — and B.— were employed as counsel. The former was an illiterate Hibernian, the latter decidedly German in his modes of expression.

The Sheriff immediately proceeded to look

THE HAG. -This curious little fish, about four or five inches in length, seems to be the parasite and scourge of the shark. It fixes having been brought from South America to Virginia, in 1584, and thence carried over to Stores. As I deal in many departments of trade, and have more articles than I can well enumerate in the itself on the shark by creating a vacuum with its lips. Once firmly fixed, it lacerates the skin and flesh with its lancet-like steeth, and sucks the monster's blood and fat. But, being unprovided with defensive armor, and But it soon made its way to popularity, and Providence has provided it with the power of emitting an excrement, which, adhering to from sight. The substance is so abundan that it surrounds the animal to the distance of eighteen inches or two feet, and is so disgusting to all the inhabitants of the water, that none will come near it. Thus, the hag is, in one respect, a sort of sca-skunk. "The Cinque Ports" are those havens of Great Britain which lie toward France, and therefore have been thought to require to be vigilantly guarded against invasion.-The word cinque signifies five, but these ports are now more than five, namely, Dover, Sandwich, Rye, Hastings, Winchelsen, Rumney, and Hithe—some of which must either in every garden, where liked.—American Montrose, Nov. 24, 1858. The word cinque signifies five, but these ports have been added to the first institution by some later grant, or accounted as appendants to some of the rest. These ports have a particular policy, and are governed by a keeper with the title of "Lord Warden of the Cin-que Ports." The office of Warden is now a rinecure. It was held by Lord Wellington at the time of his death.

Success.—Every man must patiently abide his time. He must wait, not in listless idleness, not in useless pastime, not in querulous dejection; but in constant, steady, and cheerful endeavor; always willing, fulfillinent and successful farmer of Carrigun, Ire-ing and accomplishing his task; that when the occasion comes he may be equal to the crops, at the rate of about four cwt, per livish occasion. The talent of success is noth acre, which tends to stiffen the straw and ing more than what you can do well, without prevent lodging. It is generally applied at two different times, which is far the best plan come because it is deserved, not because it is when used as a top-dressing. sought after. It is very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame; about what the world says of us; to at the world might do well to reflect that i be looking in the face of others for approval; is as good a world as they ever were in to be always anxious about the effect of what and without an immediate reform, it is a Soda & Sweet crackers.

Garden Vegetables and their Origin. Enjoying as we do, a succession of healthful and delicious vegetables throughout the year, it is interesting to learn as much as man house in the city and marry a country. Putting on a clean coller, and putting a marray possible of their origin and matory. When her a catalogue before us, we notice that one messenger returned, Katarina, determined seedsman advertises twenty-two sorts for not to give it up, said, "Send mit Shosepha" sale. The cauliflower and broccoli belong Shoseph was sent for, but he couldn't be to the cabbage tribe; but they require more care in their management. The first named of these always reminds us of the saying of Lettuce came from the coast of the Levant and from one of the islands of the Greek Archipelago, as the name of one of its varieties (the Cos.) indicates. It was introduced into England in the year 1562. In its wild state, it was only a weed, so bitter and so strongly scented as to be disagreeable to the taste. Some sorts were even poisonous.— It has now been run into many varieties .-Lettuce has some of the medical properties of opium, soothing the nerves and inducing sleep. It is one of the most cooling and agreeable salads for the table.

The Tomato is a South American, and received its name from the Portugese colonists. It is of the same botanical family as the potato, (solanum) and is now about as widely diffused. No vegetable has attained so great in popularity so suddenly. Twenty-live years ago, it was but little known, and much detested. Then shortly it was introduced into gardens as an ornamental plant, called "love apple." Then it became an ingredient in all sorts of pills and panaceas. Now, it is everywhere cultivated as a delicious and healthy article of diet; it is served up raw and cooked, stewed and seasoned, stuffed and fried, and roasted; is used as a pickle, a catsup, and a sweetment, and is preserved in Isle of the sea, and whose single-hearted sim. air-tight cans for Winter use. It contains a cooling acid, and possesses some of the med-icinal qualities of calomel. Speaking of its use abroad, Mr. Loudon says: "Though a and had won the right of indulgence by good deal is used in England, in sonps, and as a principal ingredient in a well known sauce for mutten, yet our estimation and uses of the fruit are nothing to those of the French and Italians, and especially the latter. Near Rome and Naples, whole fields are covered with it; and searcely a dinner is served up in which it does not, in some way or other, form a part." The Beet root came from Southern Europe, and was first found growing wild on the shore of the Mediterranean Sea. It got its name in Greece, from the resemblance of of them so much, that in France, sugar is extensively manufactured from them. Turnips were found wild in England and Holland; but in their primitive state they there stood "Old Whity" looking supremed are small, worthless weeds, almost destituted by sheepish, enveloped in sheets and pillow of roots. They have been cultivated in gardens is long stockings hanging pendant from the dens and fields for 250 years past. Cultivation has done as much for this vegetable as arms, making him look like an overgrown for any other. Experience, as well as analysis, show that the turnip is nutritious, nearly as much so as the potato; and in late years, when that crop was cut off in Ireland, great use was made of this valuable root. importance of the turnip for feeding stock is too well-known to be dwelt upon here.

The Carrot hails from Spain, and has long been cultivated. Fessenden says it has been found growing wild in England; and Buist adds that "it is supposed to have been introduced into Europe from the Island of Crete. their hair with its beautiful green leaves, be-It was once supposed that the carrot was peculiarly beneficial in pulmonary affections:-As a food for horses and cattle, it is unsur-

A writer happily observes, "With the lower classes of pe ple, it is one of the greatest blessings the soil produces, forming flour without a mill, and bread without an oven; and at all seasons of the year, an agreeable, wholesome dish, without the use of expensive condiments." The Artichoke originated everywhere; at least, it has been found wild in Europe and Asia, and in both North and South America. It is a maritime plant, grows best in a moist soil, and likes an occasional dressing of salt. The Radish is a Chinaman, and was first introduced into-England in 1584.
