

When one so universally loved and respected by all who knew her, has been taken from our midst, it is with a sorrowful heart that we speak, even of her poodness, for it brings fresh to mind the sad truth, ihat an ornament to the eitele in which she movied has been called from her worthy position among the liting and laid within the narrow limits of the tomb. Though the memory of the dead brings with it a sad-them through all the relations they bore to those and them, and call to mind the frequent acts of kindness shown to their companions. They may have had faults, but the grate has covered them all. It has been thus wisely ordered, that the tomb scal-all remembrance of error on the part of its immate; we only recollect how good and kind they have been to us, and how much we are indelted to them for their kindness; and this I think is one of the wisset orderings of Providence, for, the vacched memory every thing wrong and fresh recollection of their goodness, is the better calculated to teach us one of the great leasons that God designs us to learn from the sudden removal of a friend from Earth to Elemin ty, which is, no matter how much poodness we pos-sens, or how highly we are esteened, are drown. In Susquehanna Depot, on the 20th ult., MELISSA, only child of Henry and Ellen A. Hall, aged 4 years, 6 months, and 10 days.

Farewell my child, my darling one, Thy spirit's fled, thy spirit's gone To Heaven above with Christ to reign, Where thou wilt never feel a pain.

In vain the tears thy parents shed, In van their hearts with anguish bled, In van their anxious care and grief, God, God alone could give relief.

No more shall sickness pain thy breast, No more shan backless pair in orders, But with thy Savior's love possessed, Thy pains, thy griefs, thy groans, thy sigh, Are all exchanged for joys on high.

Prepare, O Lord, our hearts to feel Submission to thy heavenly will; May we our child, our all resign To thee, for all we have are thine.
