Horse-Shoeing for Overreaching.

We have found a new way for shoeing horses that overreach, to remedy this per-plexing evil. It is of value, and I send it for the benefit of all who may own such horses. not to yield to the erroneous notions of blacksmiths any longer. They reason thus:
—if a horse overreaches, the forward shoes must be made short and placed as far forward as possible on the forward feet or they will be torn off, and the hind ones as far back, to prevent them from clicking together.

I have opposed this method for years, and have tried to reason with our smiths, but it is of no use, as they seem to know it all. 1 could not give it up but what my theory was correct. At any rate, I wished to see it tried before I could be convinced. This was impossible, as every smith would pettifog his erroneous belief and say: "I will warrant it you will follow my directions, or charge you nothing." This, of course, would take, and the owner would obey and fall in with, and try the same old way as before, with the saine result, clicking at every step. My reasoning is different. In the first place I was anxious to know the reason why horses overreached, in order to remedy this evil, if possible, in shocing. I have studied much for a preventive, and reason teaches them the reverse of the above upon the subject. My theory stands alone and but little known as yet to the public at large, and will be unless we can convince these blacksmiths, and I know of no better way than to publish the facts through the Ohio Cultivator, and then advise every one to be sure and have their horses shod as I direct, and my word for it. it will be worth more than one year's sub-

In the first place, you must increase the speed of the forward feet and retard the hind ones-not spread the horse farther apart, unnaturally, by setting the forward shoes on his toes and the hind ones on his heels, as they do it, for the shoes will hit when shod in this way. Nature should teach man this. Make the forward shoes long and the roe-calks short and standing a little under, and then set them as far back as convenient, in order to let the feet roll over as soon as possible to get out of the way. And in setting the shoes on the hind feet, reverse this order, to keep them back, to give time for the forward feet to get out of the way. Make like other horses. This may be remedied in part in the mode of paring the hoof. This is essential in all cases and where too many all. Try it once and be convinced. We Yours, E. L. GIEBS. -Ohio Cultivator.

Blankets on Horses.

EDITORS VALLEY FARMER: -While visiting your city, (St. Louis) a short time since, the weather being cold, I saw a great many horses, driven with blankets on, in many cases quite fast, so as to be sweating profusely. had seen this done before, and determined, when I got home, that I would give your decidedly opposed to working horses or driving them blanketed. They are always warm sufficient to keep them from suffering from the cold. If they wear blankets while working, they become wet with perspiration, and when the poor animals stop, their blankets caused the horses to become warmer than they would be if driven without blankets, and mals. If the horse had been driven without a blanket, and when stopped, a warm blanket put upon him, it would have been a protection which he would have appreciated and it would have prevented him from taking cold. And this is the most important use for a horse blanket, viz: to use it upon the horse after he has been driven, and is warm, and until he has become cool. To use a blanket on a horse when being driven, is worse than useless—it is injurious, and horsemen who think, ought to know better than to do it. The use of the blanket on fine horses, carringe horses &c., while standing in the stable may be well enough to keep them looking a little better—but in a warm stable it is entirely unnecessary. Good feed and careful grooming are better than a habitual use of the blanket when horses are idle. But when they have been driven and are warm, the blankets should all be put upon them in cold weather when they stop, and kept on till they become cool. Your friend, Horseman.

Something to Write About-

Some tarmers, when solicited to contrib ute the results of their experience in the cultivation of crops, for the benefit of the pub lic, excuse themselves on the plea that they don't know exactly what to write about. They seem to forget that every week-almost every day at some seasons-brings with it some recurring duty to the tiller of the soil—some one thing that ought to be attended to just then, and which would suffer to a greater or less extent if neglected longer. The necessity of an immediate attention to these duties leads to the reflection in the mind of the intelligent farmer, as to the best manner of performing them, and thus he is led to concentrate upon the subject all the knowledge he ever possessed. It is then, too, that he is thankful for new light, and is most any thankful for new light, and is most in need of the latest and most thorough in-As the personal intercourse of farmers with each other is generally very limited, the agricultural and local newspapers bare, become the principal mediums of communication for those who have courage to indite their views on agricultural subjects. The choice of topics might be very much sided, if not entirely governed, by the succession of farm duties, as referred to above. Now, for instance, while almost every farmer has before him the prospect of plasting a field of corn as soon as the state of the weather and the condition of the ground will admit of doing so, the corn crop, in its different aspects, is a very proper subject for their consideration and inquiry.

Let the farmers of this county investigate and discuss this-matter as it deserves, and the result will be one of much usefulness to themselves, and profit to the public at large. We shall publish in the Republican, with pleasure, whatever tends to throw light upon the cultivation of the great American Forethought. If a man faints away, instead of yelling out like a savage, or running to him to lift him up, lay him at full length on his back on the floor, loosen the clothing, push the crowd away so as to allow the air to reach him, and let him alone. Dashing water over a person in a simple fainting fit is a barbarity, and soils the clothing unnecessarily. The philosophy of a fainting-fit is, the heart fails to send he proper supply of blood to the brain; if the person is erect, that blood has to be thrown up hill, but if lying down, it has to be projected horizontally—which requires ess power, is apparent.

If a person swallows a poison, deliberately or by chance, instead of breaking out into multitudinous and incoherent exclamations, dispatch some one for a doctor; meanwhile run to the kitchen, get half a glass of water or anything that is handy, put into it a tea-spoonful of salt and as much ground mustard, stir it in an instant, catch a firm hold of the person's nose, the mouth will soon fly open, hen down with the mixture, and in a second or two up will come the poison. This will answer in a large number of cases better than any other. If by this time the physician has not arrived, make the patient swallow the white of an egg, followed by a cup of strong coffee (because these nullify a larger number of poisons than any other accessible articles,) as antidotes for remaining in the Growth of London.

The growth of London is not only its own growth, but that of the country too. The progress of the nation must carry with it the progress of the Metropolis. Within the last fifwhen I got home, that I would give your readers my opinion of this practice. I am decidedly opposed to working horses or driv. all but doubled. It was but 12.500,000 in 1811, whereas it was 21,000,000 in 1851, ough without. The exercise they get is and is perhaps above 23,000,000 now. Obsume very different dimensions from the same city in 1809. But, besides this, the Metropolis has become more metropolafford them no protection, they are wet—the cold penetrates through them, they have a great event in the life of a great event in th a great event in the life of a provincial Englishman, and in many of the more remote the sudden checking of perspiration will almost surely inflict a cold upon the poor animost surely inflict a cold upon the poor animost. If the horse had been driven without all classes come to town regularly, either for the Operas or the Exhibitions; for the Crystal Palace or Excter Hall; for shopping, sightseeing, recreation, or business. The re sults are before our eyes in the means taken to meet the new demands. New theatres are built, each larger and more commodious than the last. New dining halls and hotels are es-tablished—the latter on a gigantic scale, and yet insufficient still. Get up any spectacle of a novel or extraordinary kind—add but the least intensity to the standing attractions of the metropolis, and London becomes in-stantly too small for its visitors. Beds are not to be had, cabs are not to be hired, accommodation of any kind is out of the ques tion, and newspapers report with thankfulness the morning after the event that no lives were lost in the crowds of the previous day. All this must needs be accompanied with an extension of public works. That same principle of expansion which adds a supplement or "Junior" to the Pali-mall. Clubs, which provides a second Opera-house for the lovers of music, which creates single hotels as large as all the old hostelries in the Borough, and single "tabernacles" as large as a dozen city churches, must find its exression also in new streets, new bridges, new sewers, new parks and new public edifices. We shall never, perhaps, exactly hit the spirit of the old Romans, whose expenditure was enormous for the Commonwealth and insignificant for the individual, but we must throw something into the former scale, and not all into the latter.—London Times.

> ADVENTURES OF A BELGIAN SAHOR.—A Belgian vessel called the Leopold ran, in a vi-olent storm, on a rock, on the 12th April last, near one of the Falkland islands, on the and their officers had perished. But the authorities of Osten have just received a letter from a sailor, named Declerk, of that town, one of the crew, announcing that he alone escaped. It appears that he swam from the wreck with the captain and some of the men towards an island which they saw near, but he alone reach ed it, the others being drowned by the vio-lence of the sea. He found no inhabitants on the island, and had to live on some bits of bread which had been washed ashore, wild celery, and some birds which he killed with a stick. He happened to have matches on him and succeeded in lighting a fire, which he fed with turf. To make his fire burn well he partly surrounded it with some planks washed ashore from the wreck. In the night of the 5th the wind blow these planks into the fire and they were consumed. He thought this a terrible misfortune; but it was the means of saving him. An American ship happened to be passing two miles off, and seeing the rising smoke—an extraordinary thing on a desert island—some of her crew disembarked. They found the poor fellow crouching over the fire, and on hearing his tale they took him on board, provided for his wants, and on the first of June landed him at the port of Stanely. The Belgian sailor does not give the name of the ship, but says the Captain's name was Smiley, and he

READY-MADE CLOTHING!

We have just opened about one-and-a-half cords ready made clothing. Every body says they are cheap. Some say they are very cheap, and a number have ventured to say they are dog cheap. Certain it is that a small pile of money will buy a large pile of clothing.

We would add, in this connection, for the information of all concerned and the "rest of mankind," that we are tired and sick of the credit system; we have suffered enough by it already, and are determined to rid ourselves of the whole "critter" Believing that the nimble sixpence is the true system, we are resolved to adopt it and are offering our goods at prices to correspond.

To the Public!

OME Merchants publish a few low prices, or the prices of a few low priced articles, as an inducement to persons to make their purchases of them, under the presumption that every thing is equally low. Without occupying space in the public papers to enumerate prices; I wish it distinctly understood, that I will sell GOODS as for for the quality, as they can be bought in any other Store in this place or County. Balts and Hooks not used. Purchasers will generally find good qualities of articles at

TURBELL'S, and in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, and Dur Stuffs, the very lest, and the assortments full. The FANCY GOODS DEPARTMENT is also extensive. Also, choice Family Groceries, Crockery, Wall Paper, Jewelry, Perfumery, de., de. In short, nearly every thing usually kept in country stores. As I deal in many departments of trade, and have more articles than I can well enumerate in the imits of a Newspaper, I shall not attempt it; neither will it be necessary, under these circumstances, if fill a column with useless repetitions and blanks,and examine for them.
