A Slave in Cuba is not exactly the same thing

A Slave in Cuba is not exactly the same thing as a slave in Cuba is not exactly the same thing as a slave in Cuba. He has some "rights which a white man is bound to respect." He has an owner, but can buy himself, or any part of binneelf, and the owner cannot refuse the purchase money. He may thus own the half of himself or the quarter of himself, in which case he becomes entitled to a proportionate share of his time and earnings. Once a year he is allowed a certain number of days to find a new purchaser, if his master ill treats him. He can have his children legally declared free, by paying $25, in Court, at the birth of each. Should Cuba be annexied, of course the "principles of the Dred Scott Decision" would appir to it, thus reducing its always take level of cattle, like those in our Southern state of the most sure to cause an insurrection, and a bloody one.
