Renovating Old Apple Orchards

"What can I do with my Apple trees?" asks a Suffolk correspondent; "they are old trees in an old orchard. At one time their and for many years past, they are cankered and mossy, and weak, and their fruit is for the most part unsaleable. My gardener says that this has been caused by neglect of pruning scientifically. Is this so? What is meant by pruning scientifically? I am rather affail of so great a word from the mouth of a man who, although a worthy young fellonothwise so as to have a part of the seed fruit was good and fit for market; but now. of a man who, although a worthy young fellow, seems to me to have nothing scientific about him. And besides I remember being told when in Normandy that although the fruit trees in that Apple country, when prun-ed upon scientific principles, were beautiful specimens of art, yet that they had the fault of bearing very little fruit."

We fear that our Suffolk friend will find little favor in the eyes of those gardeners who believe that all manner of virtue resides half of the piece, I put directly on the seed a in a priming knife and narrow saw, and heaping table spoonful of salt and lime; the whose greatest pride is to cut their trees in other half, about half a pint of leached ashes, to wonderfully regular forms. And yet he and lime and salt on the two rows through is justified in his apprehensions; for there the middle of whole tubers, covered the can be no doubt that more harm is done by whole about two inches deep. As soon as overpruning, which is too often meant by the tops were large enough, hoed them once, "scientific" pruning, than can arise from and sprinkled lime over the vines when damp leaving trees to the undisturbed operation of They grew finely through the summer. natural processes. In the latter case indeed Those that had lime and salt in the hill were fruit-may be small and bad; but in the for- of a darker green and more vigorous than mer it is as likely to be altogether absent, while the health of trees is irretrievably ru-

There is no branch of gardening in which inexperienced or fanciful persons do more harm those with less seed; and when we came to than in pruning. They seem to forget that fruit trees are grown for the sake of their fruit and not as objects of decoration, and with only half the seed, and near as large; a three ends, and three only, are to be gained by the operation; that is to say, increase of quantity, improvement of quality, and better ripening. Nothing but skilted pruning will effect these purposes; unskilful, in which is to be included unnecessary pruning, has a di-rectly opposite tendency. In short, the gold-en rule in this case is not to PRUNE AT ALL IF IT CAN BE AVOIDED. Pruning however, is unavoidable; but it should be had recourse ashes on, the next. I can account for it in to as little as possible. As to overpruning, no other way than that the lime on the cut it is we repeat for worse than no prining at all. One thing is certain, that the more Apple frees are pruned the less they bear; and the same may be said of pear trees.

The author of one of our best practical works, having described how an apple tree should be managed for the first three or four years, remarks, "after this nothing more will years, remarks, "after this nothing more will on Botany, suffered six months imprison-be necessary than to look them (the trees) ment in the old jail at Washington, where over from time to time, entling out carefully any superabundant branches that may appear, of lending to a citizen an anti-slavery pamparticularly those which have a tendency to phlet, which he had accidentally used in packinjure the proper figure of the head, or are ing some specimens. At the present moment, Mr. Green, against a wall. This is the best advice that a colored minister of the M. E. Church, of can be given to those who have the manage excellent character, is serving out a sentence ment of Apple trees in an orchard. It is like of many years' imprisonment in the penitenthe worthy Mr. Glasse's instructions to "let tiary of Maryland, for the crime of having them alone." But our Suffolk correspond in his possession a copy of "Uncle Fom's Cab. ent's trees are in a state of ruin. They seem in." The "London Beacon," has the following to be like the Devoushire trees, which Mr. ing, which may be called a parallel case, and Belfield describes "with heads tangled and shows how despicable our deeds look when matted together so as to set both sun and air done by others: at defiance; live wood struggling for existence amongst the dead, and all hoary with moss and premature old age."

With such trees the pruning knife and saw must be used unsparingly; and if that is what our Suffalk correspondent's gardener means by a scientifically we agree with him. Not that there is much science in the operation. The first thing to do is to cut down to the Protestant, of course, condemned, and the quick every dead branch, limb or spur; made use of certain arguments, which he said they can do no good, and are mischievous on be had derived from a certain book he possocioni of the interreption they offer to sun sessed at home. This done, skill can go no further, and it is only necessary afterwards to leave the tree to its vital powers; watching bowever how the new. shoots grow, and cutting out from time to time all such as in any way whip, chafe, or cross each other.

In these remarks the state of the soil is not noticed. If however there is any doubt about its being thoroughly drained, that also must be carefully looked to, for no Apple trees can retain their bealth in waterlogged ground. Neither can they prosper when soil is exhausted of all its nutritive matter. When that is the case weak manure, such as plenty of decayed leaf-mould, burnt weeds, or any similar material should be employed. Strong ammoniscal manure is to be avoided, - Gar dener's Chronicie.

Rabbits and Raccoons can be made excellent by dressing nicely, and soaking over night in a plenty of cold water. Then parbod in fresh water; then boil in a second water, with some salt and saleratus. When tender take out to cool; then cut off the fat, and cut the mest into nice slices. Then heat some butter in a frying-pan, place in the slices, sprinkle on sait and pepper, and fry slow-ly till a delicate brown. This way of pre-paring them removes all the wild taste, mak-ing the meat perfectly sweet, tender and nuiritions. By trying and straining the fat, you have a nice, white oil.—Genesee Farmer.
