In Pinsfeld, Mass., May 1st. '69, of consumption, Dr. W. I. Wilson, aged 40 years and 1 month.

Dr. Wilson was born in Brooklyn, Pa. He was the son of consistent and valuable members of the Freshverrian Church. Conservated to God in infancy, he chris felt the sacredness of Itnose parental yous by which he was bound to the Bedeemer's service. He gave himself to Christ in early youth, and commenced study with the ministry in view. After a partial course in College his eyesight so far failed him that course in College his eyesight so far failed him that he shandoured his first and cherished hope and eventually prepared himself for the Medical profession. In this he met with encouraging success for several years, when his health failed and he was obliged to bourney for many months at the South. In 1848-9, verse, when his health failed and he was obliged to hurney for many months at the South. In 1848-9, he almost despaired of life, but felt an earnest desire to live. As he lay on the borders of the grave, being then in Florida, he prayed for ten years more of life. God heard his prayer and returned him to his loone and practice. For several years in the invigorating airs of Pittsfield he enjoyed comfortable health, canning an extensive practice, winning a large circle of friends, and exerting a wide and happy influence, the summer and autumn of 18.5 it became evident to him that his constitution was worn out with dense and that he must soon die. He acquiesced sithout a murmur and made such disposition of his coiness as seemed necessary. From the first of Normber till May he was confined to his room, and hring those six months of palnful sickness he ex-ressed constantly an entire willingness to die. His weder his wife was strong and his home was very the form is whe was strong and his none was very tear to like heart. But Christ and heaven were more precious. He had enjoyed the desired ten years and is cup of happiness and prosperity had overflowed. He leksuch gratitude and trust that he could not arribut nor ask again to be spared. He divelt constantly in heavenly contemplations. He loved the like, and on one occasion remarked, to; his pastoc had a proposed according to the precious desired in the formested according to the precious desired to the precious desir ishin, and on one occasion remarked, by his pastoc she had repeated several verses, "Those passages seem to me like a casket of richest jewels."

The last few weeks of his life he was in great physical suffering, but his mine was full of pence. Not a should obscured his vision; no fear nor sorrow opposed his heart. The day of his death was the solution. He had hoped to die on that day. When the church to which he belonged had gathered in the church to which he belonged had gathered in the ifternoon to celebrate the dying love of Christ, a charge passed over him which all recognized as the approach of death. Being in great distress he said to his wife, "Let me die, do let me die," as if she held him back. She replied, "I will let you die, you may die." Just about that time his pastor has praymay die." Just about that time his pastor has prayied in the church that he might be that day released, it is was God's will. At the reply of his wife his look of suffering and distress gave place to a rapid succession of pleasant smiles, as if vision after vision of heavenly glory was filting before him. He; soon whispered the word "hope," pronouncing first the names of his wife and mother; and while the church were singing the last hymn his spirit took its flight to heaven.—Pittefield (Mass.) Sun.
