THIRTEENTH ANNUAL FAIR
OF THE

Susqu'a. County Agricultural Society.

The Agricultural Fair for this County was held on Wednesday and Thursday the 28th and 29th of September, in the new grounds recently purchased by the Society. Everything passed off in a manner that more than equalled the expectations of the friends of the Society. The weather, though at times threatening to mar the pleasure of the occasion, was yet peculiarly favorable to the comfort of those in attendance. The arrangement of the grounds and the degree of preparation gave credit to the energy of the Executive Committee, and especially to Mr. Alfred Baldwin, who superintended the work. A short time only was allowed to prepare the grounds. They were purchased only a month before the exhibition, and it is greatly due to the generosity of some of the farmers in different parts of the county, who freely gave their services, that the Committee were enabled to have the grounds in so complete a state of preparation.

The purchase of the Society includes eight and a half acres, at a cost of $1000. From this they purpose to sell two acres for the sum of $175, leaving the cost to the Society of the grounds at $825. To meet this sum there have been subscribed by persons residing in and about Montrose $650, leaving a debt upon the Society of $175—a small incumbrance considering the growing interest manifested on the part of the people of the county toward the Society. No complaint was heard from any source questioning the wisdom of the Committee in their selection of the ground. All seemed pleased with the location; the shade furnished by the trees of nature's own planting, the view presented from the rocks embracing in its scope the whole ground allotted to the course and the exhibition of stock, and more than all, the facility with which those present could visit the various places of exhibition furnished a pleasing contrast to the heat, dust, and discomfort of the former grounds. Not the least interesting part of the exhibition could be witnessed from the center of the course. The old rocks above that had for centuries been crumbling to decay seemed gifted with new life and beauty as they bore in pride their fair freight.

The exhibition as a whole surpassed anything the Society had before enjoyed. The display of Stock and especially that of Horses, showed a decided improvement on that of previous years. There was abundant proof that the appreciation of the better breeds of horses was becoming more general throughout the county. The interest of Mr. John C. Morris is to be commended, who, although no premiums were offered for his particular breed, exhibited some fine Herefords which he has recently introduced into the county.

An unusual interest was shown in other departments of the exhibition. Some contributions were made from abroad; among them was a fine display of ambrotypes by Mr. A. B. Tubbs of Binghamton.

In the department of Fancy Articles the ladies gave evidence that they were still disposed to vie with each other in the displays of their handiwork.

To particularize, even to the degree of attempting to do justice to the claims of the many exhibitors, would far exceed the limits allowed in this report. The articles exhibited gave the best report themselves, and to appreciate the fullness and excellence of the exhibition, one must have been in attendance. The premiums awarded by the respective committees were as follows:

DIVISION 1st.—Best stallion (Shakspeare) and 3 colts, to S. Shelp, diploma and $5; 2d best, (Membrino,) F. H. Hollister, $4; 3d best, (Young English,) H. C. Conklin, $3.

For best stallion not in this county prior to this year, (Morgan Tiger,) J. S. Tarbell, diploma and $3.

First premium on woolen mittens, Mrs. W. Taylor, 1 dol.; 2d do., Mrs. A. E. Ball, 50 cts.

The Committee deem a home made woolen shawl exhibited by Mrs. D. Thomas, as worthy not only of especial notice, but of a premium had they been authorized to award one.

The variety of quilts and spreads was unusually large this year, making it rather difficult for the judges to decide. One bell quilt pieced by a little girl, eleven years old, is deserving of notice; also a coverlet woven by W. Galbraith. A beautiful wreath made of hair by B. A. Worden is deserving of prnise. The embroideries were all worthy of note. Netting, knitting, and crotchet work were all deserving. The paintings and engravings were all very fine. The Committee would propose that a premium might hereafter be offered for fancy needle-work.

DIVISION 20th.—1st premium on turkeys, R. F. Bronson, 2 dolls.; 2d do., W. T. Galbraith, 1 dol. 1st premium on fowls, H. Smith, 2 dolls.; 2d do., G. Chapman, 1 dol. 1st premium spring chickens, E. The Committee think it proper that any one should show all turkey cocks, but in the future would recommend that the premiums should be given for one cock and two hens.

The Plowing Match took place on Tuesday, Sept. 20th, on the farm of James Sterling, near Brooklyn Centre. Notwithstanding the day was unfavorable, it being quite wet, yet the attendance was large, and the match a very fine one. Friend Sterling met the plowmen at James O. Bullard's Hotel, where ample provision had been made for both man and beast, and after partaking of a most excellent dinner, such a one as friend B. well knows how to get up, they all repaired to the ground, where the Committee had been diligent and active in preparing and measuring the ground. The spot chosen was upon a high ridge, and the soil was rather a chocolate loam, some portions of it was a little stony and rough upon the surface, having been rather imperfectly laid down when last seeded. Twenty three rods of ground having been plotted to each plowman, the Judges called them together and they unanimously agreed upon the time, two hours, then each drew from a hat the number of his land. The teams were at once brought forward, and all things being ready, the word was given, go. It was truly a beautiful sight, there having been 19 entries; each entered into the matter with spirit and resolution, and it was plain to be seen that from the first match that we had in our county down to the last, there has been a great improvement, and we are proud to say that we have plowman that can compete with anything in the State.

It is difficult sometimes, to decide upon the merits of each man's plowing, when all was done extremely well, and some are more fortunate than others in choice of lands, affording them a marked advantage. But as we are bound to decide, we award premiums as follows:

John F. Deans, first premium—team, sorrel—plow, iron beam, wheel and coulter. Time, one hour and 27 m.

Second premium to James Young. Team iron gray—plow, iron beam, w. & c. Time, one h. 28 m.

Third premium to M. J. Harrington. Team, black Morgans—plow, wood beam, w. & c. Time, one h. 18 m.

Fourth premium to Augustine Frost, 16 years old, with the skill and judgment of any man on the ground. Friend Hollister's team, roan Morgans—plow, iron beam, w. & c. Time, one h. 56 m.

Fifth premium to Wm. T. Austin. Team, sorrel, matched—plow iron beam, w. & c. Time, one h. 40 m.

W. H. JESSUP, Secretary.

.... M. Blondin, the great rope-walker, has purchased a house completely furnished at Niagara Falls, for $4,000 cash, which amount is about half of the profits of his feats across the chasm of the Niagara during the Summer.

.... Mr. John Pine, aged ninety-six years, was married recently, in Darrie county, N. C., to Miss Elizabeth Harley, aged thirty-seven. The couple walked eight miles to the residence of the officiating magistrate, to get the nuptial knot tied, and after dinner, having had a merry time with a large company who had assembled to witness the ceremony, returned home, making a walk of sixteen miles that day, without rod or staff. The bridegroom, it is said was the most hilarious youth of some forty or fifty present at the marriage, and fairly out did the whole company by his jests and stories.

.... The question, Who stopped the mails? has been answered by Senator Toombs, of Georgia, who said in his Augusta speech, of the Postoffice Appropriation bill, "I stood with its fate in my hand, and I stamped it under my feet."

.... David C. Broderick, Douglas Democratic U. S. Senator for California, was killed in a duel by Chief Justice Terry of the Supreme Court of California, on the 13th ult. The duel took place near San Francisco. Broderick fell at the first fire, having been pierced through the lungs. Both the combatants were Democratic politicians—Broderick of the Douglas stripe, and Terry of the ultra pro-Slavery wing of the party, which had just triumphed in the State election. Terry is described as a rough, ignorant, unscrupulous man, quite unfit for the office of judge.

MONTROSE, PA.

☞ Owing to a bad habit that many Republicans have of not voting except in exciting times, our majorities in this county are reduced from last year's, but average about the same as in 1857, when our average majority was 710; now it is 700½. The majorities for the Republican candidates elected this year are as follows, as will be seen by the official table published in this paper: Cochran, Auditor General, 716; Keim, Surveyor General, 713; Landon, Senator, 650; Frazier, Representative, 771; Chamberlin, District Attorney, 529; Stewart, County Commissioner, 730, Titus, County Treasurer, 728; Wright, County Auditor, 704; Turrell, County Surveyor, 762. The majority against a County Poor House is 3674, only 511 votes having been cast for it in the county.

The whole vote of the county for Governor in 1857 was 5643, of which the "Democracy" polled 2419. In 1858 the whole vote for Judge of the Supreme Court was 5075—1954 Democratic. This year the whole vote for Auditor General is 4898—2091 Democratic. Thus it appears that our opponents have polled a larger vote this year than they did last, but not so large as in 1857.

☞ Pennsylvania maintains her position among the opponents of Sham Democracy and slavery aggression, having given Messrs. Cochran and Keim some 15,000 or 20,000 majority. The returns are as yet rather indefinite from several counties, but the fact that we have a handsome majority in the State is unquestionable. The Philadelphia Press figures it at about 24,000; but in that calculation we of the North are supposed to have done as well as we did last year, which is not the case. The Legislature is Republican in both branches. It is supposed that it will stand as follows: Senate—Republicans, 21: Democrats, 12; Republican majority, 9. House—Republicans, 68; Democrats, 32; Republican majority, 36. This shows a majority on joint ballot of 45, ensures the election of a Republican State Treasurer next winter, and renders the election of a Republican United States Senator in 1861, to succeed Bigler, highly probable.

Eleven of the thirty-three State Senators were elected this year, and it was at first reported that every one of them was Republican. Later returns make the election of Crawford, Dem., in the Cumberland district, probable, and he is so counted in the above estimate. W. W. Ketcham, Republican, is elected Senator in Luzerne by about 300 majority, though the Democracy have succeeded in electing the rest of the county ticket.

☞ The Republican majority in Bradford county is about 2500. The Democratic majority in Wayne is about 400. Wyoming is supposed to have gone Democratic by a very small majority. Tioga gives a light vote and a corresponding Republican majority.

☞ The returns from Minnesota leave no reasonable doubt of the complete success of the Republicans. The Moccasin Democracy of that young State are defeated by several thousands, the Republicans electing their Governor, (Alexander Ramsey,) with the rest of their State ticket, and both branches of the Legislature—thus securing a Republican Senator in place of Gen. James Shields.

☞ From Iowa our returns are still meagre, but the Tribune has a telegraphic dispatch from Burlington that Kirkwood, the Republican candidate for Governor, is elected, with a Legislature which is Republican in both branches.

☞ In Ohio the Sham Democracy are overwhelmingly defeated. The Republican majority is estimated at 18,000 or 20,000.

☞ We shall publish the official vote of the State, and a list of the Members of the Legislature, as soon as we can procure them.

☞ It is not so rare a thing as some suppose, to fill political offices with clergymen. Within a few years two preachers of the gospel have been elected to the Pennsylvania Senate—Rev. Jeremiah Schindel, Democrat, and Rev. George Landon, Republican. James Harlan, lately a Republican U. S. Senator from Iowa, was a Methodist clergyman. And Edward Everett and J. Glancy Jones, of whom the former stands high with some as a "conservative" statesman, and the latter is a special favorite of President Buchanan and the Lecompton Democracy, were also both formerly clergymen. Senator Schindel has lately been nominated by a Democratic County Convention in Lehigh county, for Governor of Pennsylvania; and Edward Everett is talked of as a candidate for President.

☞ The notice of the Gibson Fair was accidentally omitted from our paper after one insertion. We intended to keep it in the paper till the time fixed for holding the Fair, and did not observe the mistake till our attention was called to it by the Secretary of the Society, when it was too late to remedy it.

☞ Huge posters have made their appearance here announcing that Bailey & Co.'s circus and menagerie, combined with Sands, Nathans & Co.'s performing elephants, will exhibit in Montrose on Saturday, the 22d inst.

☞ Mr. Niles is now taking orders in Susquehanna county for a new and valuable work by the well known popular author, Hon. J. T. Headley, entitled "The Illustrated Life of Washington, giving an account of his early adventures and enterprises, his magnanimity and patriotism, his revolutionary career, his Presidential life, and final decease, with vivid pen-paintings of battles and incidents, trials and triumphs of the heroes and soldiers of Revolutionary times; together with an interesting account of Mount Vernon as it is, by Benson J. Lossing. The whole embellished with numerous steel and wood engravings, and a splendid colored lithographic view of Mount Vernon and Washington's tomb. Sold only by subscription."

Headley has long been a favorite author with us in many respects, and we regard this work as a valuable addition to every man's library. The illustrations are abundant, some of them very superior, and the matter thrillingly interesting. 2w.

☞ Rev. J. K. Peck, of Montrose, has printed and for sale a pamphlet on Slavery in the Methodist Church, in reply to one from Dr. Stevens, editor of the Advocate and Journal. Price, 12 cents each. Sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of 12 cents in stamps; or eight copies sent by mail, post paid, for one dollar. Send on your orders.

☞ The Harpers have refused Horace Greeley an opportunity to reply in their magazine to Douglas's article on popular sovereignty published therein.

Letter from Wyoming County.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Perhaps you will smile when I tell you that some time since, I commenced another letter to you, intending to weave in, (as I supposed,) a few choice original ideas. Just then the Express came along. I stepped to the Depot and got the Atlantic Monthly, and lo! that Breakfast-Table man, the Professor, had got the start of me, setting before the world the choicest of those original ideas with which my communication was to be embellished! It was too provoking, and the paper was thrown aside unfinished, I meanwhile mentally vowing that hereafter I would get such things copyrighted without delay.

And that is one reason you have not heard from me this long while; others there are, equally good, but this will do for a sample.

Our little village has shown some signs of improvement, during the past summer. Several new buildings have been erected; among the rest a Doctor's office, the charge of constructing which, has devolved on me, in more senses than one. But the greatest improvement of all, is a large Flouring and Plaster Mill, now in process of construction, by Messrs. Taylor and Glaze. The prospect seems decidedly favorable for this becoming a "a right smart" village, and in time the most important place on the railroad between the Bend and Scranton.

During the brief summer now past, there has occurred but little here of special or unusual interest. Last Saturday an Artillery Company was organized here, in which many of our best citizens have enlisted. The Captain is an experienced soldier, having seen service in the Mexican war, and if the present spirit and enterprise are kept up, this Company is destined to be one of the best. I do not hazard much in saying that I think that a company of men could be selected from this Creek nation, who would whip twice their weight of Mexicans or any ordinary enemy, with perfect ease. They met again on Tuesday, and made a very fine appearance in their new uniform.

Our election passed off in a remarkably quiet manner, not a drop of fighting whiskey being sold within a mile of the polls. The vote was light, and the result relatively the same as for the past few years.

An unusual number of rattlesnakes have been killed in this section during the past summer. Uncle Tim. dispatched an enormous one, rye and a half feet in length, having sixteen rattles on its tail—supposed to be an old resident.

It is now nearly seven years since I came here to live. I have really become attached to these rough wild hills and valleys, and to many of the people, who have been sincerely friendly to me. It is not without feelings of regret that I find myself about to take my exodus from among them. The friendship and kindness here received will ever be cherished in grateful remembrance, and if perchance there be any unfriendly to me, they may rest assured their feelings are not reciprocated. It is only with the kindest feelings, I now bid my acquaintances here an affectionate farewell. The mail is about to close and so must I.

As ever very truly yours, 3. 3. 8.

Sir John Franklin.

It is a satisfaction to be, at last, informed definitely of the fate of Sir John Franklin and the men composing his crews. The steamer Fox, Capt. McClintock, sent out by Lady Franklin, has got back to England with the full particulars, and many memorials of the ill-starred expedition. These were found on the northwest coast of King William's Island. A full record of the events that occurred during the expedition, dated April 25th, 1848, was found, and this shows that Sir John Franklin died June 11th, 1847, up to which time nine officers and fifteen men had died. The survivors, 105 in number, were proceeding south to the Great Fish River. The discovery confirms the previous reports that have been received. Dr. Rae ascertained from the Esquimaux, in 1854, that a party of about forty white men were on King William's Island in 1850, and a few months later they found their bodies not far from the Great Fish River. These were doubtless the last remnant of Franklin's party, who after the close of the record lately discovered, started southward and gradually wasted away and perished.

The story of Franklin's Expedition can now be told from beginning to end, somewhat as follows:

May 26th, 1845—The Erebus and Terror sailed from Sheerness, officers and men numbering 138 persons.

July 26th, 1845—The expedition was seen in Baffin's Bay.

June 11th, 1847—Sir John Franklin died.

April 25d, 1848—The Erebus and Terror were abandoned in the ice in Victoria Strait. Up to this time 33 of the officers and men had perished.

Spring of 1850—About forty of the expedition were seen by Esquimaux on King William's Island.

Summer of 1850—The bodies of the remnant of the crews were found near Great Fish River.

There is nothing more to be told, that is essential to ascertain the fates of the Erebus and Terror expedition. In five years from the time of their sailing all had perished. But the narrative of the expedition and its calamities will be looked for with eager interest by the whole world. For all civilized nations have had their sympathies excited in behalf of Franklin and his lost navigators, and there will be a sad satisfaction in knowing what they suffered and how they perished.

Sir John Franklin, whose name will forever be remembered by reason of his unhappy fate, was born at Spilsby, Lincolnshire, April 16th, 1786, being the youngest son of a respectable yeoman. He was put to school at St Ives, and afterwards at Louth. He had an early longing for the sea, and entered as a midshipman on the Polyphemus in 1800, being at the battle of Copenhagen, April 2d, 1801. He saw much and varied service, and was signal midshipman on board the Bellerophon at Trafalgar. He commanded the boats of the Bedford in the fight with American gun boats at New Orleans, capturing one of the boats, and receiving a wound in the action. In 1818 he was appointed to the command of the Trent, in the expedition ordered to attempt the passage to India by the polar sea, North of Spitzbergen. The expedition turned out unfortunately, but Franklin gained much reputation. In 1819, he was sent in command of an expedition to explore the coast of America, east of the Coppermine River. The result of this was a great addition to our knowledge of Arctic geography. Franklin returned to England in 1822. In 1825 he was ordered on another overland expedition to the Arctic sea, and he had to leave the sick bed of his young wife, who died the day after he went to sea. He returned by way of New York, and landed in Liverpool, September 24th, 1827. On the 8th of March, 1828, he was married to Jane Griffin, the present respected Lady Franklin. In the following year he was knighted. In 1830, he was sent to the Mediterranean, rendering good service to the Greek cause. In 1836, he was made Governor of Tasmania, or Van Dieman's Land, which office he administered ably till 1843, when he returned to England. In 1845, he was appointed to command a new expedition to search for the Northwest passage, and he sailed with the Erebus and Terror on the 26th of May, 1845. The record ends with his death on the 11th of June, 1847, at the age of sixty-one years and nearly three months.

Of the two wives of Franklin, the first, Eleanor Ann Porden, was a lady of unusual accomplishments and scholarship, who taught herself Greek and Latin when eleven or twelve years old, and became a proficient in other languages, besides studying various branches of natural science. She wrote and published several poems, one of which "The Arctic Expedition," which appeared in 1818, led Franklin to seek her acquaintance, and they were married in 1823. She died within less than two years of consumption. His second wife, who survives him, was a daughter of John Griffin, and was born about 1800. Her devotion to him is well-known to the whole world, and it is to her persistent efforts that the final discovery of his fate is due.—Philadelphia Bulletin.
