From the American Agriculturist.

Rural Life for Consumptives.

[The Agriculturist is not a Medical Journal. We refuse to even advertise medicines—except an occasional notice of medical humbugs—and our general advice is to "throw physic to the dogs." If we need a house built or one repaired, we go to the professional builder—the best one we can find. So if this body of ours be out of repair we go direct to the best man we can find, who makes it his life's business to study into and assist in repairing this "house of the soul." We once attended a course of medical lectures—for the science of the thing, not with a view to practice—and learned enough of the mechanism of that curious and wonderful structure, the human body, to be afraid to tinker with it, any more than we would undertake to mend a locomotive engine. This may be sufficient excuse for not publishing the thousand and one recipes and cures continually sent to us. There are, however, common sense matters relating to health, which are not out of place in these columns, and we may occasionally throw out items of unprofessional advice for the preservation of health, with advantage to our readers. Before us is the following from one of our regular contributors, who has, we believe, been himself snatched from a consumptive's grave, supposed to be yawning near at hand; and as "pulmonary consumption" is one of our country's most dreaded scourges, we insert the article for the many valuable suggestions it contains. —Ed.]

Dear reader, you who are depressed with forebodings of early dissolution, let us look at your case. You have, perhaps, a narrow chest, a pale face, occasional darting pains in the side, and above all, a cough. Hence, your doctor has marked you in his books as consumptive. And you have made up your mind to that effect, especially as you inherit pulmonary tendencies. But here, remember for your encouragement, that all children of consumptive families do not inherit the taint alike; and statistics show that the children of such households, who exercise freely in the open air, have two chances of escape to one of those who follow sedentary pursuits.

Perhaps you are a dyspeptic student, and have overwerked your brains, and robbed your stomach. Or you are a merchant, who in early struggles for wealth have given ten minutes to dinner, and very often gone without it altogether. Or you are a slave to society, singing the "Song of the Shirt" with its haunting accompaniment. Perhaps you are a vegetarian, in spite of your canine teeth, and have colored meat, and have wilted like the plants you have eaten. Or you are a tailor, sitting on your board day and night, like a Turk—though more crooked—in cramped air and with little or no exercise. Or, it matters not how, you have run down, have lost your natural strength, and seem to be on a decline.

Now, let us cast about a little, and see what can be done. The gist of what the doctors teach us in regard to the cause of consumption is this: depraved nutrition. Poor food, poor air, poor chyle, impoverished blood, followed by the fatal sediment of tubercles deposited in the lungs. Can anything be done to help you? Doubtless there can.—If you have hereditary tendencies to this disease, you can be fortified against it. Call all your forces into play. Every known cause of debility must be avoided—such as fast or exhaustive work, late hours, hard study, poor diet, indolence, pining grief, and reckless exposure to the vicissitudes of climate. Never attempt morning walks or work of any kind on an empty stomach, whatever others may say about early rising and exercise in the so-called pure morning air. Do not sit or stand in a draught of cold air. Then, of course, bring into play the opposite causes. Above all things, make sure of fresh air and generous food. "Life itself" says one, "may depend on good dinners and time to eat them." And we will add to this, flannel worn next the skin, and dry feet.

Now we wish to show (and we speak from experience) that country life is eminently favorable for avoiding the occasions of disease, and for warding off attacks. In the country there is no need of breathing impure air.—You need not inhale the stench of foul gutters, nor the fumes and ashes of anthracite coal from myriad chimneys and forges, nor the escaping gas from the vast net-work of pipes above and below ground, nor the ten thousand well defined and separate smells with which city air is always redolent. You need not eat poor food. Instead of depending entirely on public markets for your supplies, uncertain of their purity and freshness, you may have the fat of the land in its very best condition. Vegetables you can have, just procured from the garden; and meats of the best quality from healthy animals properly fed. Fruits you may gather and eat from bush and tree, with the bloom and dew upon them.

So in reference to exercise. Would you ride on horseback? In the country there is ample room, and every variety of scene—in hill and dale, wood and open plain—to interest the thoughts. Much might be said in favor of this kind of recreation. Nearly two hundred years ago, the learned Sydenham declared; "Of all the remedies for phthisic (consumption) long and continued journeys on horseback bear the bell." And the experience of the two centuries since, confirms his position. The benefit seems to be connected with the amount of vigorous exercise gained with so little fatigue; the happy effect of the jolting upon the liver; the abundance of fresh air inhaled; the fine edge it gives to the appetite, and the cheerfulness it imparts to the spirits. Gallop, then, ye weakly ones, over the hills and far away, and at every prance of your steed breathe in new vigor!

Farming and gardening also afford excellent exercise. We should hardly advocate either of these for consumptives, where hard exhausting labor is required. But the superintendence of a farm or garden, and the doing of light, voluntary labor, would be beneficial. What can be more soothing to excited nerves and depressed spirits, than these light occupations? What more inspiring of hope and cheerfulness and trust? Every muscle of the body is brought into play, yet none are necessarily overtaxed. Exercise is got without thinking of it, and appetite and good digestion ensured. Ask the cook if it is not so. How much better this than a long forced walk, dragging one's self through weary streets; how much better than violent angles in a gymnasium, just for the sake of so much exercise, measured by the clock.

Horseback riding has undoubtedly saved many persons from the grave, but hardly more than farming and gardening. For ladies especially, the last mode of exercise is very beneficial. The artificial in-door life of most females now-a-days, is sadly breaking down their constitutions. Embroidery, painting, music, novel-reading, late hours, and confinement in close overheated rooms is enough to destroy the best health. Now, if the ladies could be imbued with a love of gardening—not gardening with satin slippers and white kid gloves, but practical gardening—making it a daily employment for an hour or two, it would go far to counteract the evils we have mentioned. Let them go out properly shod, and with sun-bonnet and rubber gloves. Then, let them sow, and plant, and train, and weed and prune; and, surely as there is truth in anything, they will avoid most of the ills to which female flesh is heir, coughs will be seldom be heard among them, and they will become, to the despair of the doctors, "distressingly healthy."

SUSQUEHANNA COUNTY

CLASSICAL & NORMAL SCHOOL,

Montrose, Pa., 1859.

THE Trustees are happy to announce to the Public that the next Term of this Institution will begin on Wednesday, Nov. 16, 1859,

PROF. H. BRODHEAD, B. A.,

A Graduate of Yale College, Principal, who has presented to reclaim. It is now probable that there will be no further interruption of the regular sessions of the Institution. There will be a vacation of ten days, beginning Dec. 24. The term to end three months.

The Trustees would refer the patrons of the Institution and others to the following testimonials from the President and Professors of Yale College, to the present prosperity of the School, and to the highly complimentary resolutions passed by the Students in commendation of the successful administration of Prof. B., and expressive their gratification at the prospect of the continuance of his valuable labors:

TESTIMONIALS.

YALE COLLEGE, Jan 31, 1859.

Mr. Harry Brodhead, a member of the class lately graduated at Yale College, held a high rank in the class as a scholar. So far as I am acquainted with his moral character it is irreproachable.

THEODORE D. WOOLSEY, President of Yale College.

Mr. Harry Brodhead, who belongs to the graduating class of 1859, has shown himself during the two years of our connection with the College a capable and successful scholar. Should he apply himself to the work of instruction, I have no question that he will be found to unite diligence and ability in a peculiar degree.

JAMES HADLEY, Professor of Greek.

Mr. H. Brodhead, a member of the class of 1859 in Yale College is a good scholar and a gentleman of correct habits. Should he decide to devote himself to teaching, I think he will be successful. Like testimonials from other members of the Faculty.

NOAH PORTER,
Professor of Philosophy and Metaphysics.

Mr. H. Brodhead, a member of the present class of Undergraduates in the Academical Department of Yale College, has sustained a high character as a scholar and a gentleman. I believe him to be well qualified to teach, and to govern a school, and I cordially recommend him to the favorable consideration of those who may be in search of a teacher.

HOSTETTER'S

STOMACH BITTERS.

IT is a fact that, at some period, every member of the human family is subject to disease, or disturbance of the bodily functions; but, with the aid of a good tonic and the exercise of plain common sense, they may be able so to regulate the system as to secure permanent health. In order to accomplish this desired object, the true course to pursue is certainly that which will produce a natural state, of things at the least hazard of vital strength and life. For this purpose, Dr. Hostetter has introduced to this country a preparation, bearing his name, which is not a new medicine, but one that has been tried for years, giving satisfaction to all who have used it. The Bitters operate powerfully upon the stomach, bowels, and liver, restoring them to a healthy and vigorous action, and thus, by the simple process of strengthening nature, enable the system to triumph over disease.

For the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, or any Bilious Complaints, arising from a morbid inaction of the Stomach or Bowels, producing Cramps, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, &c., these Bitters have no equal.

Diarrhœa, dysentery or flux, so generally contracted by new settlers, and caused principally by the change of water and diet, will be speedily regulated by a brief use of this preparation. Dyspepsia, a disease which is probably more prevalent in all its various forms, than any other, and the cause of which may always be attributed to derangements of the digestive organs, can be cured without fail by using HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, as per directions on the bottle. For this disease every physician will recommend Bitters of some kind; then why not use an article known to be infallible? All nations have their Bitters, as a preventive of disease and strengthener of the system in general; and among them all there is not to be found a more healthy people than the Germans, from whom this preparation emanated, based upon scientific experiments which have tended to prove the value of this great preparation in the scale of medical science.

FEVER AND AGUE.—This trying and provoking disease, which fixes its relentless grasp on the body of man, reducing him to a mere shadow in a short time, and rendering him physically and mentally useless, can be driven from the body by the use of HOSTETTER'S RENOWNED BITTERS. Further, none of the above-stated diseases can be contracted, even in exposed situations, if the Bitters are used as per directions. And as they neither create nausea nor offend the palate, and render unnecessary any change of diet, or interruption of ordinary pursuits, but promote sound sleep and healthy digestion, the complaint is removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure.

For Persons in Advanced Years, who are suffering from an enfeebled constitution and infirm body, these Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and need only be tried to be appreciated. And to a mother while nursing these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy for all cases of debility, and, before so doing, should ask their physicians, who, if he is acquainted with the virtue of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

CAUTION.—We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.

HARDWARE

AND STOVE EMPORIUM

IN FULL BLAST!

THE UNDERSIGNED would take this opportunity to inform his friends and customers that he has recently made LARGE ADDITIONS to his former extensive stock of

Hardware, Stoves, Stove Pipe, Stove Trimmings, Zinc, &c.,

And that he is prepared to supply the wants of the community in that line at UNUSUALLY LOW PRICES. He flatters himself that his facilities for manufacturing tin ware, together with his own personal attention to the same, will enable him to offer an article unsurpassed by any who purchase and transport at a heavy expense their castle stock.

He would say to those who wish to purchase STOVES of any description, STOVE PIPE, or TRIMMINGS of any kind, and [illegible] them, he is prepared to give them GREAT BARGAINS; but to those who want to purchase on a year's credit, and think let it run two years more, he had rather they would call on some one else, for they have to pay 75 per cent. more than an article is worth, for the use of his assortment is the LARGEST and BEST SELECTED in Susquehanna county; purchased as his stock has been mostly of manufacturers, he is enabled to offer inducements to those country merchants who buy small bills, rarely to be found this side of the big city. We can offer special inducements to Carpenters and Joiners who are in want of either Saws or Bench Planes. Hinges, Locks, Latches, Screws and Nails, Glass, Putty, Paints and Rheumatic Gold Heads. Iron and Steel, Anvils, Vices, Bellows, and in fact, almost anything in their line, by calling on us CHEAP FOR CASH
