The Waterfall.—Shryock, the New York "Gossiper" of the Franklin Repository, alludes as follows to one of the prevailing fashions:

"One sees on the street some queer styles of hair dressing, among which the ugilest is the waterfall. It is a matter of surprise to the uninitiated how the women can raise so much hair; but if those same innecents would only notice the store windows, they would see enormous rolls of horse bair, etc., for the purpose of filling out the thin bair of the fair sex; and waterfalls ready made, to be pinned on the occiput. What a set of humbugs see are! A favorite style of wearing the bair can readily be initated by our bright-cheeked country girls; thus: Comb out their hair carefully, then tangle it all they know how; rub it full of burrs, and sleep in it without a cap for a fortnight. This will be sufficiently close imitation to pass on Broadway. If it thould not, however, be quite the thing, an attempt to get through a very large rose bush, head foremost, would make the similitude perfect.

Sad Accident.—A sad accident happened at this post yesterday 19th inst., about twelve o'clock—As Mr. George W. Moore, a private in Battery H., lst Pa. Light Artillery, was seated at the table in his quarters, quietly cating his dinner, one of the gnards belonging to the Battery, came along, and when opposite the window where Mr. Moore was seated, playfully as is quite too enstomery in the armys raised his musket, pointing it directly at him at the distance of three or four feet, with his finger in the proper position for fixing. The gun though only half bent, was discharged, and its contents, an oance ball and the toupin which was in the muzzle of the gun, struck Mr. Moore on the right check, list at the lower edge of the check bone opposite the molar teeth. The toupin was split and stuck fast in the flesh, but the ball passed through the lower and to the left of the chin escepting the carolid artery about half an inch, and shattering the jaw and teeth in a most shocking manner.

The unfortunate sufferer was immediately removed from his quarters to the Post II espital at this place, where his wounds were dressed, and every care bestowed upon him for his comfort. Mr. Moore is a young man and formerly resided in Len ox Susq Co., Pa. President Liacoln's Murder Justified.—Mr. Editor —On the morning of the 15th day of April inst, the sad intelligence which has caused the heart of every pair to to bleed afresh, and sent morning throughout the length and breadth of our believed hand, reached the quiet village of New-Mil ford, that our beloved President, henest Abraham Lincoln, had fallen, by the cowardly hand of an session, a sacrifice to that hendth sprit which plotted the downfall of our country, chern-hed, and sustained a wheked and unholy retection, and sent mourning to so many households in our land. How quickly was our rejoicing at the downfall of the rebellion turned into mourning for the loss of the Master Sprit of all our success? But amid all our distress, while yet unwilling to believe that so foul a deed had been perpetrated, imagine our surprise, to find in our midst—in an enlightened and christian community—one man rejoicing in his heart over so fleudish an act, as well as so dire a public calamity, and publicly expressing the sentiments of his heart in justification of the act, by saying that "it ought to have been done long aco." As the murder of Abraham Lincoln was evidently, in pare, but the consummation of a premeditated [1] it, the question naturally arrises, are such then mintees of that conspiracy and directly accessory to the murder of Abraham Lincoln." The name of the main referred to is Aivah Quick; and as we are daily in pred of concerning what he did say, and as his itends and sympathurers are extractly tring to capiain away what he said, we have deemed it but just to ourselves and the community to place the matter in a tancible form, for the benefit of all concerned, as the following affidavits will show.

Mr. Quick replied, "It ought to have been done long apr." I then passed on to Doctor Smith's, next door to Mr. Quick's, and he being out in his yard, in front of his house, I told him what Mr. Quick had said The Doctor then called to Mr. Quick and said to him, "Are you mean enough to make such a right of the said vand differenting tolding. had said. The Doctor then called to Mr. Quick and said to him, "Are you mean enough to make such a "ply, as Mr. Valite said you did!" repenting to him the words, "It ought to have been done long also." Mr. Quick then replied, "You know I never upbeld Linguist Administration," Dr. Smith then said to him, "I know that; I know you are a trailor, a second, and a rebet, and your neighbors all know it, but I did not know that you were mean enough to make such a remark." Dr. Smith then asked him it be meant what he esid, and repeated the question with emphases. Mr. Quick then replied, "I did say e. and you may make what you can of it." Willis D. Cheese Factory—The Patrons of the Springville Cheese Factory are informed that operations will commence on Monday, the 8th day of May, and milk will be received every morning till the hour of eight o'clock, but not later, as at that time the process of Cheese making commences And likewise in the evening at eight o'clock is the latest sime for the reception of milk. The Patrons are also notified that Cans for the conveyance of the milk will be supplied at cost prices, during the week previous to the commencement, and directions given concerning them.

As the system of Cheese Making in Factories is not familiar to many in this quarter, it may be stated, that it is an Association of Farmers who compaired the Milks of a few cows has equal advantages in proportion, with the man who sends a larger quantity. The quality of the Cheese is more uniform, and the quoted prices bear festimony to its superiority. And a further advantage by no means to be overlooked, is the relief from the drangery at treadant on private draines.

The Springville Factory has been erected on the best plan of similar octabilishments in Western New York, where they have been eminently successful, and with this view, it is hoped that the system will in a short time be the means of adding greatly to the productive industry of Susquehama County.
