Imperiance of Wholesome Beds. RUTLAND MARBLE. 1865 Electric the working man is emphatically nature's sweet restorer; reinvigorating the physical system which through much toil has become weary, and keeping up that flow of life and spirits which are necessary to the performance of the arduous duties of farm life. A comfortable bed, as we are all aware, conduces greatly to one's rest. On this subject a recent writer

when the write the matter of the control of the con

ble bed, as we are all aware, conduces greatly to one's rest. On this subject a recent writer says:

Of the eight pounds which a man eats and drinks in a day, it is thought that no less than five pounds leaves his body through the skin. And of these five pounds a considerable percentage escapea during the night while he is in bed. The larger part of this is water, but in addition there is much effete and poisonous matter. This, being in a great part gaseous in forta, permeates every part of the bed. Thus all parts of the bed, mattrasses, blankets, as well as sheets, soon become foul and need purification.

The mattress needs the renovation quite as much as the sheets. To allow the sheets to be used without washing or changing, three or skr months, would be regarded as had housekeeping; but I insist that if a thin sheet can absorbenough of the exerctions of the body to make it unfit for use in a few days, a thick mattress, which can absorb and retain a thousand times as much of these poisonous excretions, needs to be purified as often as once in three months.

A sheet can be washed. A mattress can not be renovated in this way. Indeed, there is no other way of cleansing a mattress but by steaming it, or by picking it to pieces, thus in fragments exposing it to the direct rays of the sun. As these processes are scarcely practicable with any of the ordinary mattresses, I am decidedly of the opinion that the good old-fashioned staw bed, which can every three months be changed for fresh straw, and the tick be washed, is the sweetest and the healthiest of beds.

If in the winter season the porousness of the straw bed make it a little uncomfortable, spread over it a comforter, or two woollen blankets, which should be washed as often as overy two weeks. With this arrangement, if you wash all the bed covering as often as once in two or three which should be washed as often as every two weeks. With this arrangement, if you wash all the bed covering as often as once in two or three weeks, you will have a delightful, healthy bed. Now if you leave the bed to air, with open windows during the day, and not make it up for the night before evening, you will have added greatly to the sweetness of your rest, and, in consequence, to the tone of your health.

I heartily wish this good change could be everywhere introduced. Only those who have thus attended to this important matter can judge of its influence on the general health and spirits.

How to Distinguish Good from Bad Calico.

The cost of a yard of calleo is a matter of considerable importance to the consumer who studies economy; but unfortunately, there are those who in wishing to practice frugality, deceive themselves into the idea that because an crive themselves into the idea that because an article is low in price it must necessarily be cheap. The result of this is a demand on the manufacturer for low priced goods, and he to keep pace with the wants of his customers, introduces into his wares, when practicable, certain preparations calculated to hide the flimsiness of the products he is thus called upon to supply. This system of "dressing and finishing, as it is called, is practiced at the present time to a greater extent than it ever was before, owing to the enormous advance in the price of cotton of late years. The commonest calicoes are a greater extent than it ever was before, owing to the enormous advance in the price of couton of late years. The commonest calicoes are "dressed" with flower, china-clay, etc., and are generally so artfully "filled" with one or the other of such preparations as to be very deceptive to the experienced eye. When, however, such a dressed fabric comes to be washed, the "extra finish," as it is not unfrequently called, disappears, leaving a soft, fiabby and loosely woven texture in the hand, while the water in which it has been soaked is almost thick enough for bill-sticking purposes. The finest "makes," on the contrary, contain scarcely any "powder," and should never appear any the worse for a good soaking in a wash-tub. In order to ascertain when a plain calico is "finished," we have to rub a small portion of the piece to be tested between the thumb and finger of each hand; for this "makes the powder fly," as the Manchester men say. If this be of the commonest quality, a large quantity of "dress" will be extracted, and we shall soon see that the threads are left as wide apart as a sieve, crossing each other unevenly, and in places, going off as it were, at tangents. Then, if we draw out a single thread and pull it asunder, it will be found to break with a snapping sound. If, on the contrary, the calleo is a good one, scarcely any such dressing will come out of it, on rubbing it the threads will appear closely woven together; a single thread drawn out will rather burst than snap when pulled acunder, and the separated ends of such thread will present a puffy appearance, while the whole plece will be firm and elastic to the touch.—Harper's Weekly.

How to Repair a Road.

The first requisite is to have a dry bed for the The first requisite is to have a dry bed for the road. Without this, the superstructure, of whatever material it may be composed, will soon become rough and uneven. Some soils are naturally drained, and the gravely subsoil thrown upon the surface, and rounded a little makes as good a path as needs be. Others need draining, and no amount of gravel upon the surface will make a good bed without it. We frequently find bad places upon a hill-side where the water is always hursting out in rainy seasons. A three inch tile drain four feet deep just above these wet places would make them dry up permanently, and save a large expenditure every year. If tiles are not available, stones or wood should be used. There is no help for these mud holes but in draining the bed. A single dollar spent at the bottom is worth ten at the top in gravel. Roads are so constantly in use and the prosperity of the farmer so much depends upon them, that no pains should be spared to make them of easy grade and as smooth as possible. All classes in the community are benefitted by good roads, but the farmer most. All his surplus crops must go over the road to market, and it makes a great difference with him in the course of the year, whether he be able to take a ton and a half at a load, or only half that quantity. Good roads add to the value of every acre he owns and of everything that he produces, to say nothing of their influence upon his manhood. They are a mark of the progress of civilization, and a pretty good index of the moral culture of a people. A team stuck in the mud, the snapping of whiffle trees and braces, the cursing and bad temper of the driver show that "there is something rotten in Denmark." The mud holes in the highway undo the work of the school house and the church. There is an intimate connection between the highways and the moral ways of a people. In mending either it is a very safe maxim to "Begin at the bottom."—

Eradication Of Onever Daisina Decome.

Eradication of Oxeve Daisies—Do you or any of your subscribers know how to eradicate the Oxeve Daisy? Part of my farm is becoming infested with them, and I want to get them out Ans. They may be kept in check with sheep, they eating them so close that they will not seed. Sometimes they are kept from seeding by mowing them off with the scythe, while in flower, but they cannot be eradicated, except by smothering with rotten wood or straw, or by effective cultivation. J. J. Thomas states in the Country Gentleman, that on a farm which he had lately visited in Pennsylvania, the Oxeve Daisy has been so thoroughly eradicated, that not a plant could be seen, though it is generally abundant in the neighborhood. The mode practiced for its extirpation is to plant two hoed crops in succession, usually Indian corn, both being well manured, to be followed by wheat, and seeded to clover. The few weeds which show themselves are dug up.—Maine Farmer.

Bran Masnes For Horses—Many who keep horses give them no charge of feed. It is hay and oats all the time. Those who pretend to keepsine horses, we will not even suppose make a regular feed of corn. For horses, we know, are fed almost entirely on corn in the West. It may do as a feed for a plow team—but certainly not for fine carriage or buggy horses. But horses, whether fed regularly on corn or oats, should have a bran mash at least once a week—and if twice all the better. It cools the system—it opens the bowels and cleanses and purifies them. It keeps the horse in health. It wards off the cholic and other bowel complaints. There will be fewer horses dying with the botts, cholic and other diseases, if bran mashes are given weekly. They are made by heating the water to the boiling point, and then pouring it on bran. About six quarts of bran should be used for each horse. A couple quarts of oats may be put with the bran and a little salt, and the boiling water poured over all. When cool, feed to the horse. They should generally be given at night—Rural World.
