The High Price of Paper.—Those papers whose proprietors were the first to reduce their subscription price, have unfortunately come to grief.—Paper has risen almost one hundred per cent. since the first of August, and is now quite as high as it was any time last year, and the tendency is still onward and upward. There is little prospect for relaf before Spring. Paper, ink, labor, and all the insternals which go to make a newspaper are so such that no proprietor can afford to publish a paper for less than double the price received before the war. Still, people complain because prices are not reduced, never thinking that the matter is entirely beyond the control of publishers. Once more, then, we must insist upon prompt payment by our patrons to enable us to meet our necessary expenditures.

Hounty Tax.—An impression prevails in some localities that taxes to pay local bounties must be paid by soliders as well as those who stild at home. But the facts in the case are as follows: By the laws of 1803, no one who had served in a Pennsylvans retiment twelve months as a non-commissioned officer or private, and received an honorable discance, is required to pay any tax for bounty purposes. Moreover the law of 1865 exempts all non-commissioned officers and privates honorably discharged and also the property of soldiers' widows, minor children of deceased soldiers, &c., from payment of hounty taxes of all kinds; and all soldiers discharged by reason of wounds received in battle, or disabily occurred in active service, are exempt from payment of per capita or bounty tax, be their time of service long or short.

Previent . Wistakes.—It is a mistake to suppose hat the subscription price of a newspaper is clear dut to the publisher.

It is a mistake to suppose that he gets his white is a mistake to suppose it is printed without It is a mistake to suppose he can live bodily by It is a mistake to suppose that it is an easy thing to please everybody.

It is a mistake to suppose that a paper is not worth buying which contains only what we know and believe already.

It is a mistake to suppose that money due for a paper would be as good to publishers a year hence it is now.

It is a mistake to believe that publishers would be thankful for what is due them for subscrip-

Our Hundred Gold Bollars.—This is the title of an exceedingly interesting story about to be published in that excellent family paper, the Sunday-Shool Times, of Philadelphia. The narrative is from the pen of an author whose name is a guarantee for the sterling worth of the lessons it teaches. The object is to show the proper uses as well as the chases of money. It abounds in incidents drawn from the lives of culinent persons to show that wealth, in order to prove a blessing, must be properly applied. The story alone is well worth to any smily circle the subscription price of the paper, which is only $1,50 a year, in advance. The paper is tablable every week, and attractive premiums are even to those who get up clubs of new subscribers. We recommend our readers to send for sample copes and a list of the premiums, which will be furnished free, on application to the publishers, J. C. turrigues, & Co., 148 South Fourth street, Philadelinia.

has proved to be a success of the most flattering and, its circulation in the first six months having aind, its circulation in the first six months having exceeded fifty thousand copies. Since that time it has of course increased. The original design of this publication has been most faithfully and successful-carried out, and its conductors say that they will make it even better. The price of the Allantic is continued at $4, and that of Our Toung Folks at $2; or $5,50 for the former, and $1,50 for the other in clubs of ten or more.

Match Game of Base Ball.—About the fire of october we noticed in the Republican, a challenge of the Harford Base Ball Club, to any other Club in the County, to appear upon their ground, in Harford, and play them for a prize Club and Ball which they had in their possession. The Jackson Base Sail Club accepted the challenge, and the time was set on the 36th ult. The parties met at half-past one, p. m., and commenced playing. They played three and a half hours with the following result:—Jackson Club, 75 tallies; Harford Club, 46 tallies. Therefore the Jackson Club retired with the laureis, after accepting three cheers from the Harford boys for their skill. The Harford Club were not satisfied to lose their prize, so they agreed to come to Jackson to play grain and see if they could not regain their prize Ball and Club. The time was agreed upon, and the parties met on the Jackson play-ground on the 17th of November, and commenced playing at one o'clock, p. m., and played three hours with this result —Jackson Club, 75 tallies; Harford Club were doomed to disappointment, and the Jackson Club still rain the prize, and hold themselves in readiness to play any Club in the County for the same-

Sinning and Sorrowing.—We wish to call especial and particular attention to an admirable book for the young, just assued from the press of J. C. Carrigues & Co., of Philadelphia, publishers of the Sanday-School Times. The work is very highly commended by different journals, all over the country, from a few of which we copy below. We think it will prove a very acceptable present for the coming holidays: "It illustrates the injurious influence of sinful companious upon character. . . It is a book that every young person may read with profit."—New York Christian Intelligencer. "The story of a boy's life, relating his tempta-tions and his failures, together with his success, when at length he finds the true source of moral rength. We commend it as a model book."— Hartford (Conn.) Daily Courant.

"Miss Kelley is deservedly one of the most popular writers of juvenile literature in this country.—
The young reader will find this book both entertaining and instructive. The work is neatly printed, substantially bound, and interspersed with engravings."—The Cincinnati (Ohlo,) Prestyter.

The Saturday Eventsg Post.—We notice that there has been a change in the management of this well known and favorite weekly, by the admission of a lady author as editor. Mr. Emerson Bennet, the popular writer, now writes exclusively for The Just, and announces a continued story, to begin the bret of the year, to be called "The Pandom of the Forcat," a wild story of the early settlement of Kentucky. Bella Z. Spencer, the editor, whose novel of Ora has been so highly praised, also announces a continued story, to be called Geneview Hove. Florgence Percy, the author of "Evo Isle," Louise Chandler Moulton, August Bell, Eleanor C. Donnelly, Beatrice Colonna, Mrs. Margaret Hosmer, and a host of other popular authors also write for The Post.—The Post contains, besides stories, sketches, poetry, hamorous articles, &c., an original Agricultural Department, and original and selected Ecceipts for Housekeeper. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are offered as premiums to those who get up certain clubs—an easy way of setting a Sewing Machines are offered as premiums to those who get up certain clubs—an easy way of setting a Sewing Machines are offered as premiums to those bounds. Our Mutual Priend.—Mr. Dickens has evidently bestowed more than ordinary care upon "Our Notual Friend." It is easy to perceive that this story was not written piecemeal, like Pickwick and Nickieby, but with unusual study to produce rather a well-balanced and probable tale, than that succession of brillant senastional effects, which are expected like striking tableaux, at the close of every act in a drams, and every monthly cessation of the "to be continued" fiction. His readers, we dare say, missed these fishes in the present work; but, when perused as a whole, their absence is more than compensated for by the superior developement of the plot. This is Mr. Dickens' beat-built story. From Piot. This is Mr. Dickens' beat-built story. From the dramatis persons whom he created, and he steadily went on to that end, with little hesitation, pause or episode.

ily went on to that end, with little hesitation, pause or episode.

One of the characters, Silas Wegg, is as great an original as Dickens ever drew—which is saying a great deal—and his friend Venus is only too good for such society. "Our Mutual Friend" himself, reticent ond mysterious, is elaborated to a degree, but not too much. There is a great deal of humor in this story, more subdued than usual, but it opens tragically, and the terrible passion of Bradley Headstone, the half-demented school-master, looms out, gloomy and grand, like the murder of Duncan, in "Macbeth." We have merely glanced at the leading characters; it is not fair to anticipate the story-to take the kernel out of the nut, as it were. But, we tell the public, in confidence, that Dickens, like King Richard, is "himself sgain" in this tale, punishing vice and rewarding virtue, a literary Rhadamanthus.

Thanksgiving and the Presdmen.—The churches of all denominations in Susquehama county, are carrestly solicited to take up collections, on Thanksgiving Day, for the benefit of suffering Freedmen.—Shall congregations assemble to praise God for that which the Freedmen have assisted our Army to accomplish for our Nation, and forget that those of forts have bequeathed it multitudes of orphans and destitute aged once? Shall there be empty hands where there are grateful hearts? Or, instead, shall there not be laid upon the Altar of Thanksgiving an offering "accepted, according to that a man hath," by Him who knows precisely how much that is?

If the church will but place the funds thus raised at the disposal of the forty would-be Freedmen's Aid Societies of this county, their existence would no longer be problematical; and, for the worth of their existence, let the result of the recent order of Aid Societies make answer.

In Montrose, Dimock, and vicinity the late appeal for part-worn clothing has met with so generous a response that stripped wardrobes can yield little more towards the overwhelming need. Among us are hundreds of women whose yearning sympathies for the destitute cannot find vent in action simply for the want of material which their ready hands would make into the garments and hedding so, imploringly called for It is suggested that the social gathenness which last winter, so cheerfully contributed their "mittes" for suffering solders, will resume their appointments, and appropriate their funds to swell the amount so cagerly looked for from the churches.

By request of the Associate Manager of the W. Penn'a Branch Am. Freedmen's Aid Commission.

Along the River Items.—Mr. Editor—The "Old Folks' Concert." advertised in the Republican to be held in Great Bend Village, the 24th instant, was a decided success. It consisted of songs, tableaux, charades, and colloquies. The entertsinment was spiced with some passages from the Widow Bedott Papers. The thanksgiving dinner was served up in good style. Blue Beard was well acted, the tableau of his wedding being spiendid, and none of it could very well have been better. But I have not the time nor you the space to give an extended report. Suffect to say the proceeds were about $30.00.

The Oil Fever is raging very strongly at Susquehanna Depot, there being three companies organized to bunt for "ile," the indications of which are very favorable.

A. O. WARKEN.

BAILEY—In Brooklyn, Nov. 9th, 1865, Captain Amos Bailey, in the eighty-ninth year of his age.

Captain Bailey was one of the pioneer settlers in this county. He came into Brooklyn in 1801, and bought a small improvement on the very farm where he has always lived, and where he died. He was horn in Groton, New London Co., Ct., January 36th, 1777. His early recollection ran back to the taking of a fort at Groton, by the British, in the Revolutionary war, though but five years old, and he distinctly remembered being sent to his grand-parents for safety, a distance of seven miles, iwhich he walked.

He was married in February, 1801, to Miss Prudince Geer. of the same town, and immediately after came out here. The forest then held almost undisputed dominion over this whole region. There were few inhabitants, no roads, school-houses, or churches. Indeed, he was compelled to go nine miles to mill, leading his horse that carried the grist, for the support of the family. But, notwithstarding, he tolied on, and the desert bloosomed before him as the rose. The country was cleared up, and all the privileges of social life sprung up around him. He was blessed in backet and in store. In that early time, Captain Bailey, possessing good juderment, became generally sought, for counsel and aid by all needy ones. He enjoyed the entire conidence of all who knew him, both publicly and privately.

Mr. Bailey cast his first vote for President, in 1804.

and by all needy ares. The shopet in territoria dence of all who knew him, both publicly and privately.

Mr. Bailey cast his first vote for President, in 1804, in favor of Thomas Jefferson, and he has voted at every subsequent election for President since that time, and cast his last vote at the Stage election this fall, under the guidance of the same views that led him in his first voting.

Captain Bailey retained his mental faculties to the very last, and was sick only about ten days. He had arranged all his business affairs years before, and given directions as to his funeral. Thus, having completed his tack, he waited calmly the call of his master, whom he loved and had ever trusted. He was one of the first and earliest members of the Universalist society in Brooklyn. He helped to build their church, and did all he could for its prosperity. He was an exemplary man, and with but lew faults; a careful and constant reader of the Bible, whose truths he loved as they described the great salvation. His wife died some claven years ago, since which he has, perhaps, felt he had less to live for, yet he had no complaint to make, but waited patiently, and died calmly trusting in God.

His funeral was attended by a large audience of friends and acquaintances, November 11th.
