Additional California News.

In addition to the California News on our first page, we glean the following paragraphs from the Tribune, which were furnished that paper by Lieut. Deale, U. S. A., and Wm. Parrot, Esq., U. S. Consul at Mazatlan.

Immediately on the arrival of the Oregon at San Francisco (Apr. 1st) the crew was put in iron on board the U. S. ship Ohio, and then kept until the evening previous to her return, to prevent their desertion.

On the morning of the 6th, the California, which sailed from San Francisco five days after the Oregon, was coming into the harbor.

The running time of the Oregon to Panama, was 14 days, three of which were made with sails. The amount of gold brought by the two vessels is not known with certainty, but is estimated at $400,000.

Mr. Parrot. A much greater amount would have been forwarded but for the fact that the gold is obliged to be carried across the Isthmus at some risk, and a new bill obtained at Chagres.

Among those on board the Oregon was small. Among them was Rev. Walter Colton, a member of the Board of Missions, U. S. A., who had been at Monterey, where he had been engaged in the gold diggings.

The snow was melting very fast, and the placers were almost entirely clear. Companies were leaving San Francisco daily for the diggings and miners constantly arriving with the products of their labors.

Lieut. Deale speaks in high terms of the order maintained by the population on the placers as well as in the more settled parts. There are few disturbances of any kind, and owing to the strict administration of a kind of temporary justice, crimes have become few and far between.

The ravages of the Cholera at San Antonio were awful in the extreme. The number of deaths reaching near five hundred.

The Mexican Cavalry in a few hours were well equipped and facing the bank of the river, waiting for sanction to cross.

The whole American population of the valley of the Rio Grande were in a state of the most extreme agitation.

The frontier from San Fernando, Western Texas, east to Major Berry's place was cut to pieces by the Indians.

They were attacked 150 miles by the Hacienda, San Juan de Zenda, and all murdered, except one prisoner, five others, the Major and a commander from Matamoros.

The appearance bears tokens of the hardships he has undergone. He brings with him a lump of pure gold, weighing eight ounces, and consequently worth nearly $2,000.

The New York Herald states that Lieut. Deale assured the editor of that paper, that he had seen a lump of gold actually weighing 20 pounds!

Mr. Parrot reports having met with considerable quantities of rough diamonds. The red to the Pacific is lined with them, and they are all, so far as he saw, undetaken for the purpose of informing him of the extent of the gold and diamond fields.

Mr. Parrot informs us that in the Sierra Nevada, to the north east of San Francisco, there is a volcano in active operation.

He has prepared, for the use of the U. S. Government, we believe, the most complete map of the Gold Region which has yet been made. He tells us that some years ago he was offered the whole of the ground now occupied by San Francisco for about $4,000.

Later from the South. New Orleans, May 24. The steamship Globe has arrived from Brazos Santiago with dates from Brownsville to the 10th and Galveston to the 21st.

The express to Brownsville and Palo Alto had been attacked by numerous and formidable bands of Camanches, and act of the most startling barbarity were perpetrated.

The stage at Point Isabel had been intercepted and the proprietor and passengers all taken prisoners.

A train of transport wagons, containing valuable merchandise, had been captured, there being no force to oppose the plunderers, nor any mounted men at Fort Brown.

The destruction of property is immense. Several heads of horses were killed by other gentlemen who were captives.

Women and children were carried off in captivity. Gen. Allos, the military commander at Matamoros had been applied to by the civil authorities of Brownsville, for the assistance of a force of mounted dragoons.

The answer was that he was ready to furnish the force and dispose of it, if authorized by the commandment of the Texas Department to pass the frontier. The latter was refused.
