

Dairy Business.

Our northern friends must look sharply to their cows, their pastures, and ways of milking and feeding. In North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee are already in the field as competitors in the dairy business. There is not a State in the Union in which both cheese and butter can be made. Like all other arts, that of rearing good milkers, keeping them well and cheaply, and at the same time manufacturing choice butter and cheese for market, demands experience, care and skill. The operations mainly of a few months in the course of the year, when all animals, sows, and horses are in the milking, are extremely liable to cleave and waste, which is a small portion of the butter and cheese made in the United States for all last year. And why not? The milk is often drawn from the udder, but it has to be kept in the udder for a long time before it is ready for use. Washing Sheep.—A correspondent of the Prairie Farmer says he washed his sheep last spring in the following manner:— as recommended by an experienced wool dealer:—
I took a trough, that would hold about a barrel, and filled it with soap suds. I laid a board on one edge of the trough, slanting towards the trough, so that when a sheep was dipped, and taken on to the board the water would drain into the trough. A horse or a dog, or a man, would stand on the board; then raised them out on the board and squeezed the wool thoroughly with our hands. When the soap suds grow low we added a fresh quantity of suds. The suds should be made very strong. When we had thus soaked them all, we commenced washing. I found the wool white and cleaner than I ever got it before, and in more than twenty years. And when we came to shear the sheep, we found the ticks all dead. Not more than four live ticks were found on one sheep.

Practical Farmer.—A practical farmer in Iowa the Hartford Times, that in taking up a fence that had been set fourteen years ago, he found that some of the posts remained nearly solid, while others were rotted off. He found that the best way to test the posts was to pull them out. He found that the posts that were set in sand and gravel were the best. Butter and Cheese.—We have for several years used the following method for sorting the butter and cheese. It is in long 15-cent cans, and is sufficient for a quart, and it has proved to be the cheapest and best way to sort the butter and cheese.
