Doing A Landlord:
Cetting the Value on't,
"Spirit'—Shortly after the cemof the "Great National Road" thro' is incident I am about to relate ocbito, the incident I am about to relate or unred.

There was in a quiet little village through rishol the "Rod" passed, a Hotel where the stages always changed, and the passens appended to get breakfast. The land-red of said Hosel was noted for his "trick appear terradiers," who were allowed to get intry seated at the table when the driver would blow his horn, (alter taking his horns) and sing out. "Stage ready gentlemen!"—heroup in the passengers were obliged to arry out as datable their scats, leaving a searedy tasted breakfast behind these, for hisch they had to fork over Pfry cents—line and place you have, and now for the own our hero succeeded in "Doing a land-ord: or Getting the value on!." If I were to commence thus: "At sunse, one lovely morning in the month of inne, in the year— a solitary horseman sight he seen," &c., you saight think G. P. L. James was your correspondeds. But our subject.
