demanded the extradition of the Hungarian officers, Kossuth, Dembinski, Peresel, Mesmeraseas, and their companions.

A Russian General arrived at Constantinople on the 15th on a special mission.—That special mission being to bully the Sultan into a compliance with the demands of Austria, a council was held, and the Turkish Government resolved not to surrender the Hungarian refugees to either the Russian or Austrian Governments. On their decision being communicated to the Sultan, he declared, in the most impressive and determined manner, that the refugees should not be given up, let the consequences be what they might

We trust that Lord Palmerston will do his duty as nobly as the Sultan has done his—that Russia and Austria will be given to understand that war with Turkey for such a cause means war with England!

We are pleased to find that Kossuth and his companions are furnished with passports from the English Ambassador, and we trust that every assistance to support him will be rendered by England, in gaining the independence of his country, against the attacks of Russia and vassal Austria.—London Sun

AUSTRIA AND HUNGARY.—The latest accounts from Vienna are to the 13th ult., inclusive, and brings the intelligence of the surrender of Peterwardon to the Imperial troops on the 5th ult. Part of the Magyars, headed by the commander, Kess, decided still to hold out, but the majority decided to offer no longer resistance.

Comorn had not surrendered, and large supplies of warlike stores had been forwarded to the Austrian troops, in order to undertake besieging operations.

The garrison of Comorn was said to amount to 15,000 or 20,000 men well supplied with provisions, and in a state of complet discipline.

The officers were said to have held a large meeting, and to have resolved, by a large majority, not to surrender.

The terms offered to the Magyars are said to have been an amnesty for the whole garrison; passports for all those who might wish to leave the country, the recognition of Kossuth's notes to their full value; to give the soldiers ten days and the officers a month's pay.

Acc ording to the Vienna Journal of the 14th, 80,000 men are to besiege Comorn, under the orders of Generals Haynau and Nugen. A bombardment was to commence on that day, when the Austrians had occupied a great part of the Island of Schuth, without resistance, but part of the insurgents were in a strongly entrenched camp before the fortress, and it was expected that a battle would take place there

It was rumored at Vienna, that Bem had fallen into the hands of the Russians in Wallachia.

The Hungarian officers had been put to death at Arad and Temesvar, some by hanging, and the estates of two were confiscated.

The insurrection on the Island of Cephalonia has gained ground since the last accounts. The troops sent to quell it have not proved sufficient The Lord High Commissioner proceeded there in person, and had a narrow escape with his life A soldier was shot dead by his side. Martial law is in full rigor Seven of the insurgents have been sentenced to death and executed A portion of the English squadron stationed at Malta is under way for Cephalonia, and it is hoped that tranquility will soon be established.

Minesota.

The message of Gov Ramsey appears in the Minesota papers He proposes a revision of the electoral law, and the appointment of a committee to frame a code of laws to be submitted to the legislature at its present session, as the laws of Wisconsin are not only insufficient, but are not very well known among the people. He advises an organization of the militia of the Territory with a view to future Indian difficulties, with a special care for the formation of a corps of Mounted Rangers; suggests that great good might be done by the General Government's opening a military road from Fort Snelling to the Missouri river and marching a considerable force over it every year, there being 25,000 warlike Indians in the Territory, some of them discontented; urges the formation of a system of finance simple and expensive enough to serve in the present and future; earnestly advises a memorial to Congress to extend the pre-emption privilege to all settlers on public lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished, whether surveyed or not; insists with force on laws to repress the liquor traffic with the Indians; condmens the speculation in bounty and land warrants, which fosters a non-resident land monopoly, thereby delaying and disturbing the natural and proper development of that region of country. The Governor further roommends buying the land of the Sioux Indians west of the Mississippi, building sundry roads, making the Mississippi navigable above the falls of St. Anthony, goes for taking means to increase the trade with Lord Selkirk's Red River settlement, building jails, increase of mail facilities to the extent of a Territorial mail three times every week, keeping files of its newspapers, and the encouragement of agriculture.

MACHINE FOR OPENING OYSTERS.—The editor of the N. Y. Post, now traveling in Europe, says that the old-fashioned way of rapping the shell of an oyster, forcing a knife into the body of the unfortunate animal, and fetching him to light with a "How many sir?" has been superseded in Paris by a mathine. "M. Bigudon, with his couilleres, reforms the barbarities altogether. The oyster is laid so gently in a groove—the screw is turned once, twice—le viola—the unconscious oyster is before you blinded by the light, without a gaping wound There is no series of raps to warn the oyster of his doom—no portion of the castle is breached; but the vice is turned, the valves fly apart, and, blinded and bewildered, the live oyster is consigned to pickle your palate with his dying agonies."

Accounts by the Crescent City say that the weather was fine at Panama, and that the cholera had entirely disappeared. The price of passage on the river Chagres is very much reduced, owing to the steamboat "Gen. Herran," having made a successful trip to Gorgona. The "Alabama's" passengers went up in canoes, some four dollars, and none paying higher than six dollars.

Court Etiquette.

A little work with the above title, has recently been publise din England. Among other rules and laws laid down, is an account of the ceremonies to be performed on being presented to Her Majesty. It may be interesting to those who have no desire to act such a part.

"Advancing towards the Queen, the visiter hands the second card which he has brought with-him to the groom in waiting, who stands in the Throne door of entrance; the groom in waiting immediately passes the card to the lord in waiting, who stands still nearer the Queen, and by whom the name of the visitor and that of his friend, as well as the cause of the presentation, are audibly announced from the card to Her Majesty.

"Here it will be necessary to inform the reader on two points, which perhaps more than any other, give rise to inquiries.—First, every band in the Queen's presence must be ungloved It would be a grievous breach of court etiquette to have covered hands. The subjects of a Persian monarch hide their hands, and take off their shoes; but in England every band is bare—and of course clean!

"The second point is, that at levees, the person who presents a friend, does not accompany him, to the presence of the Queen. In obtaining the patronage of a distinguished friend, the visitor is not to expect his presence, at the moment of introduction to Her Majesty; nor is it even necessary that he should be present during any part of the levee. Quite the reverse. The visitor advances to Her Majesty alone; the name of his friend is all that he has to support him. At drawing-rooms a different practice is followed, for the lady who undertakes to introduce any one to Her Majesty, is always expected to be present during some portions of the reception; sometimes, though not always, she accompanies her protege to the presence of the Queen, and retires with her. This difference is remarkable, and one, the difference of which often puzzles and annoys a stranger. It may likewise be well to mention here that no order of precedence is observed in presenting visitors to Her Majesty, except that of the entree.

"Assuming that the visitor at a levee has had his name, &c., announced to the Queen, and has reached Her Majesty, he must kneel down on his left knee, raise his right arm with the ungloved back of his hand uppermost, on which he receives the palm of Her Majesty's right hand; then he barely touches with his lips the back of that royal hand. If he wishes to be particularly absurd and vulgar, he will kiss the hand with a loud smack, and if he be very bashful or alarmed, he will merely bow down to the hand without the courage to touch it with his lips.

"Leaving the visitor to choose between these two errors, he must be reminded not to utter a word, but to rise from his knee, bow to Her Majesty and then to Prince Albert, who always stands on Her Majesty's left hand; to go back out of the royal presence towards the opposite side of the room, according to the guidance of the waterfal usher, and to depart to the right hand door, which, however, has now become the left hand to the retiring visiter This leads him into the railed off corner of Queen Anne's Room, and into the Entree Corridor, by which route the general company retire."

HOUSE-KEEPING IN CALIFORNIA.—Some of the few housewives who have gone to California have difficulties to contend with not usually met in the land which they left. One of these ladies writes to her children at Portland that she has ten boarders. She is compelled to do all her cooking by a very small fire-place, no oven, bakes all her bread and pies in a dutch oven; has one small room about fourteen feet square, and a little back room for a store-room, about as large as a peice of chalk. She has an open chamber over the whole, divided off by cloth The gentlemen occupy one end, a lady and her daughter, the writer of the letter and her husband, the other. A curtain is hung between the beds, but the lady says, "we do not take pains to draw it, as it is no use to be particular here." She says they have bought no furniture; and from her account they got along very comfortable without such superfluities, for she adds, "The gentleman of whom we hire the house had been out at housekeeping; he loaned us some few things, but I assure you we do not go into the luxuries. We sleep on a cot, without any bed or pillow except our extra clothing under our heads. The price of these accomodations is $21 a week. The good lady, nevertheless, entertains no great love for San Francisco, and has a decided yearning for Down East.—There is not a pleasant thing there, she says, but gold, gold, gold—no social feelings—and I want to get my part and go where my eyes can rest upon some green thing."

COUNTERFEIT GOLD COIN.—We are informed that counterfeit half eagles are in circulation in this city, so skillfully made that they almost defy detection. One of them was taken out at one of our banks from a lad; it was paid out again and thence taken to the Custom House, where its slight deficiency in weight caused suspicion, and it was broken. It was found that the exterior was a very thin lamina of gold, and that the interior was filled with a base compound, made so as to give the coin, as near as possible, its proper weight. —Philadelphia North American.

☞ The N. Y. Courier and Enquirer publishes a semi-official statement that L. Napoleon had declared that if France went to war with any country, it would be with the United States. Mr. Rush, our late Minister, wrote an official note to this effect to our government. We guess France will think of the matter a little, first.

☞ According to a Washington letter writer, the house of M. Poussin, the French Minister, had been elegantly furnished when his note of dismissal was received.—The Furniture was to have been sold at auction on the 30th ult.

He was written a consolatory letter to par government, but the President has refused to resume official intercourse with him, until he receives further advices from the French Government.

☞ Mrs. Frances Anne Kemble (the same since the divorce) is now reading Shakspeare in Philadelphia.

AN HONORABLE MAN.—Although a man cannot be an honorable man without being an honest man, yet a man may be strictly honest without being honorable. Honesty refers to pecuniary affairs: honor refers to the principles and feelings. He may pay his debts punctually, he may not defraud a man, and yet he may act dishonorably. He acts dishonorably when he gives a correspondent a worse opinion of his rivals in trade than he knows they deserve. He acts dishonorably when he sells his commodities at less than their real value, in order to get away his neighbor's customers. He acts dishonorably when he purchases higher than the market price, in order that he may raise the market upon another buyer. He acts dishonorably when he draws accomodation bills, and passes them to his banker for discount, as if they arose out of real transactions. He acts dishonorably in every case wherein his external conduct is at variance with his real opinions. He acts dishonorably, if, when carrying out a prosperous trade, he does not allow his servants and assistants, through whose exertions he obtains his success, to share his prosperity.—In all these cases, there may be no intentional fraud. It may not be dishonest, but it may be dishonorable conduct.

GOVERNOR OF TEXAS.—General Bell, who has recently been elected Governor of Texas, has addressed a letter to his brother-in-law, Ex-Governor Wm. Smith, of Virginia, from which we make the following extract:

"In reference to my political preferences, I will briefly remark, that my life has been spent in Texas, actively engaged in the busy scenes which have passed in the revolution of the country. I have contributed my humble exertions for the establishment of a Republic and not a party. I am to be found, however, in the Democratic ranks; my reasons would be given, if proper, here; they are to my own mind ample and satisfactory. One of many I will state, which is that the great leading principles of Democracy, rightly understood, and practically carried out, will secure a greater amount of good to a larger number, than the great leading principles of the opposition party."

This, we presume, settles the question of Mr. BELL's politics.

☞ There is in Oregon an immense mountain called Mount Hood, whose summit has been covered for ages with perpetual snow It is not known that the foot of man ever pressed its top, but remarked an Englishman, who has long resided in Oregon, and witnessed imigrations which come over the mountains, and in view of the hazzards, labor and toil, "Why, if these Americans only undertake it; they will make a road over the summit of Mount Hood!"

Col Freemont Digging Gold.—Mr. J. King, just returned from California to Washington, reports that Col. Freemont was working with a large party at some new placers; where they were doing well. The business of the Colonel is to designate the place to be worked, and to exercise a general superintendence. He receives a certain portion of the findings.

☞ The New England Glass Co., has declared a dividend of 10 per cent., payable October 1. This does not look much as though the glass manufacturers require more protection, and yet we have no doubt they will bracige Congres at its next session for higher duties, and think it very unreasonable on the part of farmers, who as a class, do not realize an annual profit of five per cent, if they demur to the demand.

THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT has established a system for gratuitous medical aid throughout the empire. Physicians are appointed with salaries, to visit and attend the sick, and prohibited from taking any fees from the poor. They are to report their cases every three months officially — They are subjected to penalties if they neglect the poor in favor of other classes.

At Fishkill, New York, on Saturday, a stone weighing about sixty pounds, was thrown from a blast on the Hudson River, about one mile, and came down within six inches of a boy who was snatched from the range of the stone by a woman who saw the missile coming.

☞ The Florida war, though nipped in the bud, has cost, in the transportation of troops, stores, and purchase of horses for mounting troops, &c., three hundred thousand dollars.

LARGE FORTUNE.—The Trenton State Gazette says that Mr. Andrew Thomson, a machinist of South Trenton, has suddenly come into possession of an estate in England amounting to about three millions sterling.

A printer whose talents were but indifferent, turned physician. He was asked the reason of it. "In printing," answered he, "all the faults are exposed to the eye—but in physic they are buried with the patient and one gets more easily off.

☞ During the last summer, 2520 dogs were killed in New York. The city paid fifty cents for the slaughter of every poor cur.

☞ The ladies of Petersboro', N. H. have organised a lodge known as Monadnok Lodge, No. 1, of the Independent Order of Odd Ladies.

TO BRAZIL.—We see it stated that the Hon. Andrew Stewart ('Tariff Andy') has been appointed minister to Brasil.

The amount of coin in the Sub-Treasury at present, exceeds four millions of dollars.

A simple country lady hearing that a nephew had been made Bachelor of Arts, said she never liked artful persons, and that those artful bachelors sometimes played the deuce with the girls.

☞ Yankee Hill the well known delineator of Yankee character, is dead. He died at Saratoga, on the 27th ult., after a short illness.

Bridgewater School District.

The Board of School Directors for Bridgewater District are now ready to receive applications for Teachers' Certificates. The Board will be in session at the Public House in Montrose, on the second Monday of each month, for the purpose of examining candidates. The next meeting will be held on the 12th of November.

FRAUD! FORGERY!—Since the great popularity attained by Davis' Pain Killer, the vilest frauds have been practised by unprincipled men in getting up counterfeits. From 15 to 20 different preparations have assumed the name of Pain Killer. The makers and venders of some of this spurious stuff have not only stolen the name, but have forged the name of one of our most respectable citizens to their certificates, and also obtained our letters by fraud and so altered them as to make them read in favor of their nostrums. Will you trust the assurances of men thus regardless of common honor or honesty? Be sure you ask for Davis' Pain Killer, and see that you get no other.
