sition, but the manner in which it was presented. The Senator from South Carolina has said that if the amendment was not acceded to, it would result in disunion, thus making it an ultimatum. The Senator had also made the admission of California a test question.

Mr. Calhoun said he had not made such a test. His language had been wrongly interpreted. He also expressed his surprise in relation to the manner in which Mr. Foote had interpreted his remarks and commented upon them.

Mr Foote rose to vindicate himself. He said that the Senator (Calhoun) did, in his speech, take a position which was believed to be a most dangerous one, and its explanation was as little satisfactory as his original remarks. He had, in fact, admitted that he made a new issue on the part of the South, without consultation with other Southern Senators, who were as deeply interested in this question as he himself. It was an issue unknown by the people of the South, and upon which they had therefore never expressed their views. He felt that the Senator had acted indiscreetly, unwisely and hazardously, in thus making this issue, thus demanding an amendment to the Constitution, when the South had always stood upon the Constitution as it is, in letter and spirit. He had acted unjustly towards his brother Senators from the South.

After some further controversy between Messrs. Calhoun and Foote, and a few remarks from Mr. Dayton in opposition to the appointment of a committee, Mr. Douglas obtained the floor and proceeded to deliver a speech against the Wilmot Proviso and whiggery. In the course of his remarks he replied somewhat tartly to Mr. Calhoun's speech, and defended the North against the repeated charges of aggression upon the rights of the South. Before concluding the Senate adj

House.—Mr. Boyd asked the unanimous consent of the House to introduce, and have printed, the credentials of Mr. Wright and Mr. Gilbert recently elected Representatives from California—together with the Constitution and memorial signed by all the delegates, asking for the admission of that State into the Union

Quite a lengthy debate ensued about "order," &c, which was participated in by Messrs Ashmun, Boyd, Burt, Wentworth, Preston King and Inge, when their reception was objected to by Mr Ashmun, and they were laid aside

Preston King offered a resolution to terminate debate on the California question on Wednesday (yesterday) which was laid on the table, after considerable altercation

Mr. Thompson, of Pa., reported a bill to establish an additional District Court in the Eastern part of Texas.

Mr. McClernand was not prepared to vote for it, as it looked very much like an attempt to forestall action on the boundary question. The bill was also objected to by Messrs. Sackett and Thad Stevens, and advocated by Messrs. Stephens, of Ga, Howard and James Thompson. Referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The Presidents California Message was again taken up, when—

Mr. Johnson, of Tennessee, offered a series of resolutions instructing the Committee on Territories to provide for the admission of California—to legalize the territories of New Mexico and Deseret, with suitable boundaries—to provide for the admission of delegates from the new territories, and for retroceding the District of Columbia to Maryland.

The chairman said that the resolutions could not be received in committee.

Mr. Disney, of Ohio, having the floor, entered into a close constitutional argument, to show that the Constitution gave power to Congress respecting the government of new territories. In support of this, he referred to the regulation and disposition of public lands by Congress He argued that the people have the complete right to establish their own laws and form of government, independent of the action of Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 14.

SENATE.—After the reception and reference of petitions, the President's California Message was taken up.

Mr. Dougl's resumed and concluded his remarks, advocating, in conclusion, the immediate and unconditional admission of California, disconnected from all other questions.

The Senate next resumed the consideration of Mr. Foote's motion for a select committee.

Mr. Cass rose and concluded the remarks commenced by him yesterday, in reply to Mr. Calhoun. The Senator had objected to the admission of California, and made that a test question. What was to be gained by the South or any section by remanding California back again? He would say to the South that this was a very unwise issue. He confessed that the boundaries of the new State at first were startling considerations; however, he would show that they were not objectionable. The Senator, however, had not put his objection upon the ground of the boundaries, but on the ground that California had no right to come here, having in the act exercised usurpation.—One hundred thousand Americans upon the shores of the Pacific were left as far as any action of Congress might have prevented it, to a state of anarchy. Would Congress then take advantage of its own wrong, and having imposed the necessity of self-protection upon the people, refuse to receive them, upon the ground that they had no right to California, had been opposed by us, and yet they had come here, not to repel the sovereignty of the United States, but to hold on to it. Mr. Cass proceeded, point by point, to reply to Mr. Calhoun's leading point—in effect reiterating the general views which he had previously expressed in the Senate, in relation to the slavery agitation. While commenting especially upon Mr. Calhoun's remarks, in relation to the Constitution, as a measure necessary to the preservation of the Union, Mr. Downs interrupted him, saying that he knew of no southern man, except Mr. Foote, who construed Mr. Calhoun's remarks as Mr. Cass did.

Mr. Foote said he knew of many Southern members in each House, who understood it precisely as he did.

Mr. Downs said he did not dispute Mr. Foote's word, but he repeated that among those whom he had consulted, he found not one who seemed to have understood Mr. Calhoun as Mr. Foote had.

Mr. Rush protested against Mr. Down's speaking for all the Southern Senators.

Mr. Cass, resuming his remarks, commented with severity upon Mr. Calhoun's proposition to establish an equilibrium upon the North and South, ridiculing it as impracticable and nonsensical. At the close of his remarks, he asked Mr. Davis, of Miss., if he would vote for the Missouri Compromise Bill, if proposed.

Mr. Davis said he would.

Mr. Cass put the question in another form—Would the Senator take the Missouri Compromise in its terms?

Mr Davis replied in the negative He would take the Missouri line and extend it to the Pacific, with terms making it applicable to the present case—the Compromise in its true spirit. In turn, he asked Mr. Cass if he would vote for the Missouri Compromise in its spirit.

Mr. Cass said if the preservation of the Union depended upon it, he did not know what he might not do, but he never would willingly support the doctrine of non-intervention south of a given line, and for the protection north of it Both were wrong.

Mr. Davis was understood to say, that he would be willing to run the line of 36 deg 30 min. to the Pacific—the country north of it to be free territory, and that south of it to come in, in due time as States, when the people should be prepared for it, with the ultimate settlement of the question relating to domestic institutions

After some further remarks by Messrs. Foote and Butler, the Senate adj.

HOUSE.—Considerable time was spent in discussing a bill to repeal the act extending the Patent of Woodworth's Planing Machine to twenty years Not disposed of.

The Presidents California Message was next taken up.

Mr Hebard, of Vt., spoke in favor of immediate admission, and against the extension of slavery. He was interrupted by Mr. Venable.

Mr. Morse, of La, followed, advocating the right to extend slavery to California and New Mexico, or disunion. He also demanded additional guarantees that slave institutions should be protected and fostered by the government

Mr. McClernand—I wish to know whether you, as a Southern man, intend to exert your influence to cause the Southern States to secede or break up the Union, if the Constitution be not amended?

Mr. Morse—I believe that the provisions of the Constitution are sufficient The south is not a unit and will go to the territory in common with the north.

Mr. McClernand inquired what all the fuss was about.

Mr. Morse replied—because you wish to declare by law that we shan't go there — The moment you do this, you break your bond

Mr McClernand—You said the Wilmot Proviso was defunct.

Mr. Morse—"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." He believed that under the Constitution which he was willing to abide by, the South have the right to take slaves south of 36 30—that the former Mexican law interposes no prevention. It is the right of Americans to go there and have their property protected — If this territory be trammelled by a preamble, declaring the territory now free, and not let property go there, he was willing to dissolve. The continual agitation of this question, as surely as night follows day, will bring about dissolution.

The South will never be satisfied until they can take their slaves wherever they please—until they are prohibited by the sovereign power.

A member—It is an evil.

Mr Morse—We don't admit it is. If so, it is none of your business Slavery, on the contrary, is the greatest blessing vouchsafed to man. If he had the power he would make every negro a slave. No three millions of people any where were fed and clothed so comfortably as the slaves of the South.

Mr. Williams next obtained the floor, when the Committee rose, and the House adj.

WASHINGTON, March 15

SENATE.—Mr. Chase presented a memorial in relation to the establishment of a line of Telegraph across the Continent, and through Behring's straits, to connect with Europe. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. Davis, of Mass., presented a memorial of manufacturers, dealers and workers engaged in the business of fabricating India Rubber, in reference to the present defective patent laws, and the recent alledged unlawful re-issue of a patent to Charles Goodyear. Referred to the Committee on Patents

Mr. Walker introduced a bill for the survey of a route for the construction of a Railroad to the Pacific. Read twice and referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

On motion of Mr. Atchison all papers in relation to this enterprise were ordered to be referred to the same Committee.

Mr. Bradbury's resolution in relation to removals from office, were taken up and postponed until Thursday next, when Mr. Smith signified his intention to speak upon it.

The bill pending for four additional Commissaries in the army, was taken up and passed.

A resolution enquiring into the expediency of restoring to the service revenue officers dismissed by the Secretary of the Treasury was passed.

On motion of Mr. Davis of Mass. the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the census bill. The question pending being upon Mr. Badger's motion to re-commit, with instructions that the bill be amended so as to confine the operation to the enumeration of inhabitants only, striking out all statistics, which was rejected. Yeas 16, nays 29.

After a long debate upon an amendment, pending, that the census printing shall be executed by the Printers to Congress, and an incidental discussion in reference to the inconvenient operation of the cobtract system of public printing, the bill was amended in various unimportant particulars, and its further consideration postponed until the Committee rose, and the House adjourned to Monday.

UROSCOPIA.

DR S. E CHAIN, of Owego, N. Y., takes this method of informing his friends and the public in general, that he has located in the village of Owego, County of Tioga, and has established a permanent office on Main-St., over E. B. Hallburt's store, and is ready to attend to any business in the line of his profession

His superior method of arriving at a correct diagnosis in diseases, and his unparalleled success in treating the various complaints incidental to the human system, more especially those of an acute, subacute, chronic, or complicated nature, has induced him to believe that a share of the public patronage will be bestowed upon him, and that invalids and diseased of every character to entitle him to the confidence of a discriminating public For the benefit of those unacquainted with his method of practice, he would say that he describes disease by a chemical and philosophical examination of the Urine

Persons may send or bring their Urine in a clean (at least two ounces) vial, the first in the morning preferred, and as a record is kept of all the cases examined the name and age of the patient are also required. No charge is made for an examination of urine, nor medicines to the poor.

His medicines are principally selected from the Vegetable Kingdom, and are administered according to the German Botanic Practice.

References can be had at his Office from persons living in all the Western counties in the state of New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, &c, who have been given up to die by the most skilful Physicians, hearing of him and acquiring confidence of his skill in the healing art, are now in health. The great German Remedy for Female Obstructions, Worms, Croup and Dysentery, may always be found at his Office.
