Study of the Law—John C. Calhoun's Letter.

The following letter from the Hon John C. Calhoun to a student of the Ballston Law Shool, is one of the last private letters of that great man and therefore possesses interest:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 1850.

My Dear B.—Yours of the 10th inst. was duly received. I am happy to know that you are so well satisfied with the plan of the institution and the advantages you there enjoy for rapid improvement, not only in the acquisition of legal knowledge, but in a familiarity with the details of the practice, and with the important matter of extempore speaking. I regard this latter as one of the most essential features of the institution. Could I have enjoyed, in my preparatory course, as you say you do, the opportunity of "drilling every day," in this great art, "under competent and constant instruction," I have no doubt that I should have been, in all the practical requisites of success, ten years in advance of what I was when I entered the profession. I will remember, when connected with a Law School at Litchfield, Connecticut, the need we all felt of some advantage in speaking. And we used often to resort to the woods, far away from human hearing, to practice by ourselves this great and important art; but it soon tired, and was given up.

This constant practice in the second or third year of your fellow students, who must, of course, be critical hearers, if it did not overcome the shrinking more than we are away your natural diffidence, and inspire you with self-confidence, must, in the end be overcome. Such a disadvantage would be unpardonable. I shall never forget the painful and indescribable embarrassment under which I laboured in the delivery of my maiden speech, an embarrassment at which I have since many years of practice have blushed. I said then, My dear B to hope is to work present pupils. With you now it is the spring season of life. You are forming habits which you will carry with you to the grave. Be systematic and punctual in the performance of all your duties. And remember that the profession you have chosen imposes, as a condition precedent to success, the necessity of constant and arduous labor. In it there is no disguising of one's capacities or merits. The physician's art is concealed and he may put to the quackeries, and advantages of pretenders, but he may profess to be what he is not. The clergyman has the choice of subjects, and a wall of other men's thoughts to aid him in the performance of the pulpit. But the lawyer, in his office, or before a court and a jury, can use nothing which he does not possess. His legal opinions are sought for by the severest ordeal, and his powers as an advocate must be real or they will avail him nothing.

And I would also have you remember that in your profession you will be brought with constant collision with the ablest minds, and the high standard of moral honor and the very obligations of the lawyer to his client, right or wrong, lead to incidents him with errors, and to the highest abhorrence of dishonesty. And by these, I mean dishonesty would be resorted to seek the greatest success. Without this, even though it should be the case, your own aggrandizement, I would not put forth a single exertion. But of one whom you I love to the end, I need no further declaration of the truth be an ever present principle. It is a fearful thing to commence defence. But I must close. Excuse me much to learn of your success, and diligence. A U S member to Congress and tell him Nell

Your affectionate friend,

J. C. CALHOUN.

OLYMPUS, Sept 14.

This day, the bill introduced for a railroad to Mount Parnassus, was returned with the veto of Jupiter. The exercise of the one man power has caused a dissatisfaction in certain quarters. It was thought to have been effected mainly by the instrumentality of the muses, who insisted that any increased medium of receiving the Mount would only be employed to bring them into discredit, and poetry into general contempt.

The bill for paving the milky way, does not make much progress. There are two factions, the one favoring that it should be Mr Adamized, and the other contending that a Clay mark road would be superior, on account of lessening friction. Jupiter is said to be excessively annoyed by their disputes, and threatens to throw both parties out of the Olympic council, and leave the subject to be decided by a general convocation of Gods and Goddesses.

The council adjourned at four o'clock, after having passed the bill to make a ship canal around the falls of the river Styx.—The debate was of an exceedingly interesting character, and will be found reported at length in the Tunans Teamster, to which you are referred. The speech of Mercury, is said to have been a masterly effort, and to have had a very visible effect on Jupiter, who was seen occasionally to nod his imperial head. He contended that the time had arrived even in Olympus, when special privileges were to cease, all monopolies to be broken up, and all incorporated companies dissolved. Charon had been permitted to exercise the monopoly of the ferry over the Styxian river for countless ages, until, indeed, he had not only grown fat and saucy from the proceeds; but, oh, monstrous thought! had been known to reject, with contumely, those poor but honest souls who had not the means of defraying their passage. Here was a bill to provide a passage around the falls, free of toll, for all souls that might choose to avail themselves of it, and looking at Tunans, in a manner I shall never forget, exclaimed "and I should like to see that bribe who would dare to put his vote on it!" When he took his seat there was general applause manifested. The example of your free institutions begins to be felt even in Olympus.—Dem. Union.

Insolvent Decedents.

The following important act, allowing widows and children of insolvent decedents to retain property to the amount of $300, exclusive of the amount of property which is now by law exempted from levy and sale upon execution was passed at the last session of the Legislature:

SECT XXV. Hereafter, the widow or children of any decedent, dying within this Commonwealth, if the said decedent shall have left a widow or children who were residing with him at the time of his death and the estate be insufficient to pay his debts, exclusive of the amount of property now by law exempted from levy and sale upon an execution against a debtor, may retain either real or personal property, belonging to said estate to the value of three hundred dollars; and if the same shall not be sold, but suffered to remain for the said widow and family; and it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator of such decedent, to have the said property appraised in the same manner provided in the act passed the ninth day of April, A D 1840, an act to exempt property to the value of three hundred dollars from levy and sale on execution and distress for rent: Provided, That this section shall not affect or impair any liens for the purchase money of such real estate; and the said appraisement, upon being confirmed or filed by the appraisers, as required by the Orphans' Court, shall be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds.

RELICS OF THE REVOLUTION.—In making some excavations on the premises of Mr D'Invilliers, on Mill street, in this borough, a few days ago, there were found, about eighteen inches below the surface of the ground, a number of relics of the Revolutionary wars—one would suppose pertaining to the British encampment, as several soldiers, some of them in a tolerable state of preservation, as to their clothing, were found. Also, a number of cannon balls, and a drum, with the brass mountings, the latter not in the least corroded; also three bayonets, each of different size and make, together with an ounce ball in a perfect state. The barrels much rusted, somewhat bent, but has still distinctly on its breech the inspiring letters G R. It is fair to conjecture that those now in use. It has been one year since any of the soldiers were found. Some of the Camp. The ground [illegible] by Mr. D'Invilliers, [illegible] the spot [illegible] a building removed a little out [illegible] which was nothing more [illegible] and will be [illegible] but from later and [illegible] appointed to a position upon whom some [illegible] particularly attracted the attention of those present. Consequently our citizens, to the number of twenty or thirty, repaired to the building. The person suspected was in the building at work at his bench. The crowd pressed up a board [illegible] of the building, quick and silent. As they began to file into the room, the suspected person, without speaking, seized a hatchet and struck at his head; but he was not struck spoken, either by himself or the crowd, but there was a deep [illegible] on his visible at this one moment. CATTLE SHOW AND FAIR.

The Susquehanna Agricultural Society held its annual fair and cattle show and exhibition for the present year, and was very numerously attended considering that the time of taking it was changed from the usual season. The Neat Stock was greatly in number, and much superior to what has for years been exhibited, showing most unmistakably, that if the spirited enterprise of improvement continues, Susquehanna County will take a high rank for the superiority of her cattle. Andrew Gilchrist, that well known and excellent breeder of the cattle shown at this county, no matter in what State, and this opinion seems not confined to Neat Stock merely, but extends to all departments of husbandry. It is a high satisfaction to see who have taken an interest in the progress of the society from the beginning, to see that their efforts have not been unavailing. The Society being still in its infancy requires to be fostered by those for whose benefit it was instituted, and when its regular meetings take place, if the Farmer and Mechanic would attend and take a part in its concerns, much good would be effected, and the Society enabled to extend its sphere of usefulness. Seeing therefore what has been accomplished, it is to be hoped that the Society will not be suffered to languish for want of funds to extend the premium list for the ensuing year.

The following premiums were awarded:—

NEAT STOCK.

For the best Bull, 3 years and upwards, Frederick Foster. Best do. 2 years, Jas P. Smith.

For the best Milch Cow, Wm Jessup, (relinquished.) Second best, Geo. Walker, (relinquished.)

For the best two years old Heifer, L. Gardner. Yearling Heifer, M. L. Hardin.

For the best yoke of Working Oxen, Tyler Brewster. Second best, N. Smith.

For the best yoke of 3 years old steers, O. Pritchard. Second best, W. Austin.

For the best yoke of 2 years old steers, D. Wakelee. Second best, Jesse Scott.

HORSES.

For the best Stallion, J. Mecham. Second best, John Blanding.

For the best pair of Matched Horses, W. L. Post, (relinquished.) Second best, A. Lathrop, (relinquished.)

For the best Brood Mare, N. Faurot

SHEEP.

For the best South Down Buck, Amos Tiffany. Best Long Wooled, D. Stewart.

For the best Long Wooled Ewe, Daniel Stewart. Best South Down Ewe, Amos Tiffany.

SWINE.

For the best Boar, C. Conklin. Second best, Druker & Salisbury.

For the best Breeding Sow, E T. Tiffany. Second best, W. F. Austin.

FOWLS

For the best lot, Cock and other Hens, (Creole Breed,) C. J. Curtis

VEGETABLES

For the best and greatest variety (22 varieties,) Wm. Jessup.

BUTTER

For the best Firkin made in July, John Harrington. Second best, Frederick Foster. Best Firkin made in Sept, John Harrington.

For the best Cheese not less than 20 lbs., H. P. Loomis. Second best, Daniel M'Clellan.

HOME-SPUN MANUFACTURE.

For one piece White Flannel, Mrs Abel Cassedy. One piece Plaid Flannel, (good article,) Mrs. Jacob Smith. One piece Carpeting, (woolen,) Mrs L. P Tiffany. One knit Coverlid, showing skill and industry, Miss Louisa Thomas.

White patch work Quilt, exhibiting great skill and fine quilting, Mrs A Baldwin. A pair of Brown Linen Stockings, knit upon work, very creditable to Mrs Abigail Brown, from flax raised in the county.

FANCY WORK

It would be impossible within due limits to enumerate the various fancy articles which graced the exhibition, but which have been noticed in the report of the Committee, and the Society feel under obligation to those individuals who have contributed to the ornamental department of the fair, and hope that at the next show, a further effort may be made to render it an object of high interest to all.

The floral exhibition was elegant and tasteful, and to Miss Lydia Sayre was awarded the premium for the largest and choicest display of House and Garden Plants. Mrs R J Niven contributed a choice variety of flower, and rare plants. Also from the gardens of Hon Wm Jessup and H Drinker, Esq., a beautiful pyramid of flowers was presented, together with a bouquet of Dahlias from Mrs Alfred Baldwin.

It was omitted to notice in an earlier part of this report that specimens of sole leather were presented from the tannery of E. A. & O Platt, which were of very superior quality, showing the efficiency of the tannery process, which upon such great durability to the leather. Specimens of farming utensils were also forwarded to the exhibition, of very superior quality and construction, among which may be mentioned a Cultivator from M. S. Wilson & Co.

As cattle will continue to be the great staple of our county, it may not be out of place to offer a concluding remark on a subject so important. We all may have our preferences for this or that breed—may like the white color or prefer the red—but it must be admitted that the superior stock which has been brought into the county during the last five years has tended most strikingly to place us in the eminent position we are now taking as breeders of good stock, and to those individuals who have contributed to this end more credit is due than our farmers are aware of, for there is hardly a good animal to be seen, whose descent cannot be traced over a mile from the bull or cow brought into the county, and mixed with the native breed. Of the cattle lately introduced among us, there were exhibited two heifers of the short-horn breed, two and three years old, by Drinker & Salisbury; also a yearling bull of the same stock by the same gentlemen; likewise a three year old bull by Hon Wm. Jessup, together with a cow by the same. These animals are unquestionably very superior, and display high breeding, and the effect of crossing them with our own stock is truly astonishing.—Farmers will find it their interest to take every advantage of improving their stock by crossing with foreign blood. Among the animals introduced to the public notice, and which were lately brought into the county, were a pair of Chester County pigs, presented to Henry Drinker by James Canby, Esq., of Wilmington, Del., a gentleman who takes a great interest in the prosperity of our county. They are decidedly superior to any that have heretofore been brought among us. Combining the fatting property with large size, they are a most valuable addition to the breed we have among us, and it is in this way that we derive incalculable benefit from the introduction of every variety and breed of stock that we may be favored with.

The Plowing Match took place on the morning after the Fair, and although the weather was unfavorable, yet a very large body of men assembled to witness it. Four plows with horse teams entered, and the work to be performed was one fifth of an acre. The plowing was spirited and well performed, considering the nature of the ground, and highly creditable to the plowmen. The first premium was awarded to Patrick Carter, having plowed his land most efficiently in seventy minutes—team owned by C. J. Curtis—with Blatchley Plow. The second premium was awarded to Frederick Ives, doing the work in sixty eight minutes—team owned by Hon Wm Jessup—with Eagle Plow. Mr. Goodrich, of Brooklyn, plowed his land in seventy one minutes with Eagle Plow. Only one ox team was upon the ground, owned and drawn by Mr. ———, which exhibited skill and ability in the manner of plowing, and it is to be hoped that at the next Fair the oxen will be well represented.

On account of the severity of the weather, the match for boys did not take place, but the interest of the day was kept up by a draft match for oxen, which took place in the afternoon. The first premium was awarded to Wm F. Austin, whose speckled oxen drew 4,500 lbs. of pig iron on a stone-boat. The second premium to John Austin.
