Attempted Escape of Smith O'Brien.—The following account is taken from one of the Van Diemen's Land papers:

"On Sunday and Monday, the Victoria cutter, commanded by a man named Ellis, was observed hovering round the island, the wind being light, till evening, when it fell calm.—Shortly before sundown, Mr. S. O'Brien, who, notwithstanding his avowed intention of escaping, should an opportunity offer, has considerable liberty allowed him, went down to a sand cove, one of the few places where boats generally land, and just as he reached the shore, a boat with three men put in, and he rushed up to his middle to meet it. A constable on duty who was witness to the act, covered him with his piece, and called to him to forbear, seconding this by rushing at the boat and knocking a hole in her bottom with his carbine. He then pointed out to all four the folly of resistance, and required them to submit quietly which they did. The officer in charge, came rushing down the beach, and secured him while still in the water. He was then conducted to his house, and the three men confined, for transmission to Hobart Town. A whale boat, with six hands, was sent on board the cutter, seized her and brought her in. She too, with the parties on board, will be sent up immediately. It has not been thought necessary to impose any further restraint on Mr. S. O'Brien, greater than that to which he was previously subjected.

Counterfeit on the Harrisburg Bank.—Counterfeit $5's of the relief re-issue, of the Harrisburg Bank, have just been discovered. They differ from the genuine in the fact that in the space between "re-issue" the line above it is only HALF AS WIDE as the genuine. In the latter there is an open space between the horns of the cow on the back ground, which is in the counterfeit. The words behind the milk-maid are rough in the counterfeit—the medallion heads on the right are indistinct; but those on the left are unusually good.

There is in the genuine a space between the flower on the left hand and the line of small FIVE—FIVE. In the counterfeit the flower touches both above and below. The signature of the clerk is stiff.

The bank issued but $10,000 of these 5 dollars so that there will not be much trouble in keeping a look-out for these "ugly customers."—Harrisburg American.

Immigration to the United States in 1850.—The Secretary of State has furnished to Congress a statement of the number of immigrants which have arrived at the ports of the United States for the year ending the 30th of September, 1850, the general aggregate of which is 315,333, opposed to 299,610 last year. This shows an increase of 15,723, notwithstanding New York has fallen off nearly 14,000.

Instructing Tariff Resolution.

Mr. Dobbins, of Schuylkill, offered the following resolution in the House of Representatives on Wednesday:

Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested to use their best efforts to procure a modification of the existing tariff laws, so as to more effectually protect the iron and coal interests of this Commonwealth, and also, to advocate a further amendment to the said laws, so that the duties may be levied at home, and not in foreign valuation, and that the Governor be requested to have copies of this resolution forwarded to each Senator and Representative, in Congress now assembled.

"We are sorry to see a resolution of this character offered by a member of the democratic party. It looks most directly to the renewal of the exploded doctrine of protection for protection, and its endorsement by the Democratic party after it has been abandoned even by the Whigs. To talk of the necessity of protection for coal is the sheerest nonsense. Where does the competition with our anthracite coal come from? What foreign competition do the coal diggers of Schuylkill county fear?—What foreign article do they wish to be protected against? We are not aware that there has ever been a ton of anthracite coal brought into the country from abroad. There is little more reason in the demand for protection against the importation of bituminous coal. If we are not much mistaken, the coal fields of Pennsylvania are much more accessible and productive than those of England, and at the first blush it would appear preposterous to suppose that the domestic article could not be dug "out of the bowels of the harmless earth," and delived at any point in our broad Commonwealth at a lower rate than it can be brought across the Atlantic. The demand for more protection for coal is then a naked proposition to tax the consumer of this now necessary article; for however it may be attempted to mystify the question in relation to other articles, there can be no doubt that on the article of coal it is the consumer who pays the duty.

The same argument will apply with nearly equal force to the manufacture of iron, an article rapidly becoming of equal universal use with coal. We are aware that circumstances, not the least of which is the vastly increased home production caused by the heavy duties of the tariff of '42, have operated to depress the iron business in this country. But these causes have in a great measure ceased to operate. Iron is, to use the commercial phrase, "looking up;" the business is daily becoming better regulated, and if "let alone," will soon be in a healthy condition. There is no tariff that can be permanent in its operation save a table currency, and that we fear we are not sure to have soon.

It is admitted on all sides that the tariff of '46, has been more generally beneficial and satisfactory in its operation than any of "its illustrious predecessors;" and it is only now proposed to disturb it so far as it is necessary to afford additional protection to iron and coal. It is conceded, we believe, that the protection it afforded to iron at the time of its passage was sufficient, and if no adventitious circumstances has occurred to reduce the price abroad, would have so continued. We believe that the iron masters would now be content with a specific duty, equal to the ad valorem duty given them at the time of its passage, and that we might be willing to concede to them; but we most respectfully, but earnestly protest against the re-settlement of the whole tariff (for in this it must result) for the purpose of giving additional protection to iron and coal, and hope the resolution of Mr. Dobbins may receive no favor at the hands of the present Legislature.

There is no reason why Pennsylvania should not compete successfully with the world in the manufacture of iron. Her stores of iron ore are convenient situated and inexhaustable; her hills are covered with wood and filled with mineral coal.—While the ore and coal of England are becoming more difficult of access and consequently dearer, her supplies are but beginning to be developed and rendered more easy of access, while the beneficial effects of increased facilities for the transportation to market of the manufactured article, are beyond the power of calculation.

The iron manufacture has more to fear from home production, stimulated by protective legislation, than from foreign competition, and the best way to remedy this evil is to let the iron business, like all others, regulate itself by the unerring operation of the laws of supply and demand.—The use of iron is daily increasing and extending to purposes new and heretofore unheard of. It is equally with coal, a necessity of life to the poorest citizen, and the demand for additional protection, in other words for an additional price, is equal to a demand for additional tax upon the many, and should receive, as we hope it will receive, its quietus at the hands of a Democratic house of representatives."—Keystone

Eclipses.—There will be four eclipses in 1851—two of the sun and two of the moon. A partial eclipse of the moon, on the 17th of January, will be invisible on this continent. An annular eclipse of the sun on the 1st of February, invisible in North America, but central and vertical in the Indian Ocean, near the Isle of Java.—A partial eclipse of the moon, on the 18th of July, visible throughout the United States; first contact with shadow, one o'clock, 6 min.; middle of eclipse, 2 o'clock 25 min; last contact with shadow, four o'clock, 8 min, meantime, morn; magnitude of eclipse, 8 2-5 digits on moon's southern limb. A total eclipse of the sun, on the 28th of July, partially visible, as follows: beginning of eclipse, 7 o'clock, 30 min., A. M; middle, 9 o'clock, 37 min; A M; end of eclipse, 7 min; P. M. This eclipse will be total at Baffin's Bay, Labrador, a part of Greenland, and in the Atlantic Ocean, east of Newfoundland. Eclipse on sun's northern limb.

The Russian Tariff.—The new tariff, already announced, came into operation on the 1st inst. With one or two very trifling exceptions every change is a reduction or abolition of duty; and some of these changes are of considerable importance to English producers. We refer, especially, to cotton and woolen manufactures, machines, rough iron work, tinware, earthenware and glass. Upon these, holding a prominent rank in our export trade to the Baltic, very important concessions have been made.

Mr. Hudson's Railway Speculations.—It is understood that Mr. Hudson has made upward of £150,000 by railway speculations within the last three months. His principle of action is said to buy largely in all the stocks that have had the greatest fall, and after he can realize a certain amount of profit to sell out. When his sales have caused a decline in the prices he goes in again until the stocks in which he operates have gone so high as not, in his judgment, to justify further operations for the rise. Some persons attribute the rise in various lines to his operations.

Capital Punishment—An Odd Sentence.—The Chinese are certainly an odd people. Mr. Lynton lately made a communication to the Asiatic Society of London, descriptive of a mode of punishment peculiar to the criminal code of the Celestial Empire. A Chinese merchant, accused and convicted of having killed his wife, was sentenced to die by the total deprivation of sleep. The execution took place at Amoy, in the month of June last. The condemned was placed in prison under the surveillance of three guardians, who relieved each other at every alternative hour, and who prevented him from taking any sleep, night or day. He lived thus for 19 days, without having slept a single minute. At the commencement of the eighth day, his sufferings were so cruel, that he begged, as a great favor, that they would kill him by strangulation.

A Bloody Affair.

The Memphis (Tennessee) Eagle, of the 1st inst., says:—"On the 1st inst., our community was convulsed by one of those violent excitements, before which customary barriers give way. A horrible murder was followed by a summary and terrible punishment. The details of the tragedy, as accurately as we can ascertain, are these: About two o'clock, P. M., on Wednesday, a negro, accompanied by a white man, called at the Mayor's office. The object of the negro was to have a paper, purporting to be a certificate of his freedom, from the county clerk of Lincoln county, countersigned by the Mayor and Recorder, in order that he might travel upon the river—Recorder Chester at once discovered that the certificate was forged, and descended into the street to have the negro arrested; he called up Messrs. Poston, Waldran, and Frazer, the latter of whom made some remarks to the negro relative to his conduct; and Mr. Chester went in search of police officer to take the negro into custody. Not finding one, Mr. Chester returned. He told the negro to go up into the Mayor's office. Mr. Chester then turned to deliver a paper to Esquire Waldran, when immediately the negro drew a pistol and fired at him; the ball entered his head on the left side, below the ear. Mr. Chester fell at once, and lived only five minutes, without speaking. Mr. Frazer and Mr. Brady promptly clinched with the negro, who attempted to use his pistol again. Mr. Frazer wrested the pistol from him, and finding that he could not discharge it again, chastised the negro severely. An excited crowd at once rushed in. Shortly Mr. Chester's son, a lad of seventeen, came in, crazed with this terrible misfortune, was furnished with a pistol, and fired three slugs into the negro's back. They inflicted a mortal wound. The negro was hurried off the alhoose. A crowd, excited to frenzy by the spectacle of the dead Chester, followed, compelled the surrender of the calaboose keys, dragged out the negro, and in the view of an immense crowd, swung him up to the next tree. He confessed he was a runaway, before dying.

Card.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley desire, with heartfelt gratitude, to acknowledge their indebtedness to their many friends who favored them with their presence, and so liberally manifested their interest, on the afternoon and evening of the 21st inst. They cannot fail to recognize in this renewed and increased expression of their kindness, in permitting them to "reap" so bountifully "their temporal things," their increased obligation and privilege more assiduously to "sow unto them spiritual things."—That they, all, may amply share in the bounties of the God of Providence, and especially be the participants of the richer blessings of His grace, must they earnestly desire and ardently pray.
