Agricultural Geology.

BY JOSEPH HOLBROOK.

NUMBER THREE.

THE FRENCHMAN'S REVENGE.—There are but few pleasing reminiscences of the time when business and credit were prostrated by the hurricane which swept over this country in 'thirty seven'—when the banks generally suspended specie payments, and hard cash was a phenomenon. We recollect but one mirth-provoking incident connected with the great panic, and that was the presentation of a hundred dollar bill at the counter of a city bank, by a Frenchman, with a demand for specie.

"Monsieur," said the fierce little Frenchman, "will you pay me this bill? Will you give me no more?"

"We cannot redeem it at present," said the teller, in a very bland tone, "we have suspended."

"Suspende! vat's that? Hang by ze neck like one dam theiving dog? No sire! you no deceive me, sure! I will have ze argent, ze gold, ze silvere, ze copper!"

"We cannot pay it now. We will redeem our notes when other banks redeem theirs."

"When oder banks redeem theirs?" By gar ze oder banks ze same! I will show you, sare, vis ze pistol, ze gun, ze cannon, sare!"

"You had better wait, sir. You had better keep cool."

"By gar I will not wait—I will not keep cool—I will have, by gar, revenge! Sare, look here! I fear your paper note all in little pieces! I show him, I stamp on him. You lose your little dam billet note. There sare, I am revenge! I am, by gar, revenge!"

And having destroyed the note, looking full defiance at the cashier, teller, and all hands, the little Frenchman stalked out of the bank with the air of a Napoleon.

YANKEE BLADE.

A SPUNKY WIFE.—A middle-aged farmer and his wife were enjoying a winter evening cozily together, when the conversation turned upon religious matters, as described in the Bible, which the man had opened before him.

"Wife," said the farmer, "I've been thinking what happy Solomon may have had in his day, with so many wives, &c., as is here represented."

"Indeed!" replied the wife, somewhat miffed, "you'd better think of something else, then. A pretty Solomon you would make, truly. You can't take proper care of one wife. What a figure you would cut, with a dozen wives, and all of them as spunky as I am!"

The farmer took his hat, and went to the stable to feed the cattle for the night.

Strange questions are agitated in the debating clubs down East. The last was, What is the difference between a face simile and a sick family? And the next will be, What is the difference between the bridge of sighs and the size of a bridge?

"Jim, did you ever double the Cape of Good Hope?"

"I expect I have."

"When?"

"Last night, when I put my arm around the cape that belongs to the dress of the young lady that I have good hope of making Mrs. Duzenbury."

A gentleman, not long since, wishing to "pop the question," did it in the following singular manner.—Taking up the young lady's cat, he said—"Pussy, may I have your mistress?"

It was immediately answered by the young lady, who said—"Say yes, Pussy."

SALMAGUNDI.

THE PROFESSOR AND THE STUDENT.—A professor of Latin in the University of Edinburgh, now no more, having desired the students to give a list of their names in Latin, was greatly surprised at seeing written on a slip of paper the name "Joannes Ovum Novum."

After in vain seeking for a translation of this he at last became convinced that it was either one of those Latin passages, to decipher which even the skill of Rontly would have failed, or that it was a hoax.

He therefore next day, in the class, read out the three dark words, and desired the writer of them to stand.

"One of the pupils immediately rose.

"What are you?" said the professor.

"A poor scholar, sir," was the answer.

"A very poor scholar, indeed, sir, or you would never have written such stuff as 'Joannes Ovum Novum.' That can't be your name, sir."

"I don't see where you can find better Latin; my name is John Egnow. Ovum, Egg, Novum for new; Ovum Novum—Egg new."

The professor, seeing that he had rather the worst of it, immediately laid his finger upon his forehead, and looking at his hopeful pupil, who was standing somewhat in the attitude of a drill sergeant, exclaimed in a painful voice:

"Alas! alas! something wrong here, I doubt."

"May be so," shouted Ovum Novum, "something may be wrong there; but," striking his hand upon his own forehead, "there is nothing wrong here."

FEMALE COLLEGES.—In the Georgia Female Colleges, the first class is called the "Freshman," and the second the "Sophomore." How a young lady can possibly be a fresh man, and what gallantry there is in calling one of the divine sex a wife, which is the meaning of the word sophomore, we leave to the learned professors of the Georgia Female Colleges to explain.

The third class is called the "Junior," which term is very well, as it includes the idea of youth, a charge acceptable to a lady at every age, but the last class is the worst of all. This is the "Senior," Spirit of civility, what an insult to the sex, to apply a term indicative, though it be only comparatively, of age and experience! Know unlearned professors that all ladies, up to a certain age, are of the same age and that there cannot possibly, by the very constitution of the sex, be any seniority among them.

Now, if we were about to organize a Female College, and to divide the pupils according to Academic usage, into four classes, we would adopt a different nomenclature.

Our first class, which would in a great measure consist of those romping, rosy cheeked avers of bread and butter who were Byron's aversion, should be the class of "Cherubs."

Our second class, who would possibly have got beyond the bread and butter, but had not yet given up the romping, should be the "Boydens."

Our third class, who would of course be advanced beyond the region of girtdom, and just beginning to know and use their charms, should be the "Angels."

But for our fourth and highest class, the budding into lovely womanhood, we should go to the very top of the angelical hierarchy, and style them "Seraphs."

And thus it we would form our Female College. But as we never expect to be called upon to organize such an institution, we can only propose our plan to the respectable gentlemen, who are the trustees of such delightful seminaries.

POINTS OF ETIQUETTE.—Several knotty points of etiquette have, from time to time, been submitted to us for decision; and one or two of them are really of consequence enough to be noted.

It is proper for the escort of a lady to request gentlemen occupying good seats at a concert or lecture, to give them up to himself and charge, and retire to parts unknown in search of a standing place, if the room should be crowded?

To this we would answer that, if the gallantry of the gentlemen thus situated does not prompt them to proffer the seats in question, it is rudeness to request it. A lady is a lady, it is true; but if she could not come early enough to get a good seat, she cannot expect that spectators who did, should inconvenience themselves for her sake.

If it is at the theatre, where seats have been taken, it is the height of rudeness to request such a favor; particularly if ladies be of the first party. They must then be separated from their escort; a strange lady is set down in the midst of their party, and all are placed in an awkward position. We are afraid that the inborn politeness of American men has spoiled some of our ladies, if they expect so much. In Europe, you would be laughed at if such an exchange were demanded, and it would be fortunate if the affair did not end in a rencontre if the parties were equal.

We may as well mention here, for the sake of the other sex, that loud thumping with sashes and umbrellas, in demonstration of applause, is voted quite as rude. Clapping the hands is quite as efficient, and neither raises a dust to soil the dresses of the ladies, nor a hubbub enough to deafen them.—Ladies' Book.

REMARKABLE MEMORY.—Who made up?" inquired a lady teacher of a great liberality boy who had lately joined her class.

"I don't know," said he.

"Don't know? You ought to be ashamed of yourself. A boy fourteen years old! Why, there's little Dickey. Folton—he's only three years old—he can tell, I dare say. Come here, Dickey. Who made up?"

"Dad," lisped the infant prodigy.

"There," said the teacher triumphantly.

"I knew he'd remember."

"Well, he oughter!" said the stupid, "but a little while since he was made."

A motion to make the Bible a standard work in the public schools, has been laid on the table in the Maryland Convention.
