THE FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, April 4.

In the Legislature, to-day, the following Petition was presented: "That the use of the State House yard be granted to the citizens of Massachusetts to hold a public meeting in the afternoon, to take into consideration the arrest of a citizen of Massachusetts, under the operation of the Fugitive Slave Law, and to devise proper and legal measures for the defence and protection of citizens of Massachusetts."

Mr. Cushing of Newbury spoke in opposition to the petition, and moved that it be laid on the table. Mr. Keith of Roxbury, moved that it be laid under the table. The motion to lay on the table was carried by 147 yeas to 113 nays. The meeting of those opposed to the enforcement of the Fugitive Slave Law was accordingly held on the Common. The meeting was called to order by the Rev. Mr. Colver. D. Howe was appointed Chairman.

Wendell Philips thereupon addressed the meeting. He spoke of the Court House in chains; he hoped people would come in from the country in such solid columns as to block up the streets and prevent the fugitive from being carried off, except over their heads. He rejoiced that the law could not be executed except at the point of the bayonet, and behind chains—they won't dare, he said, to carry the Fugitive out of the Commonwealth, except under the convoy of the guns of the Navy Yard. He spoke of Faneuil Hall being closed to them, and hoped that they would make the Elms of the Common resound to the declaration that Law or no Law—Constitution or no Constitution—chains or no chains—this law should not be enforced. Block the locomotives, tear up the rails, follow the fugitive to the borders of the State if possible to rescue him. He counseled every colored man who had ever felt the chains of Southern oppression, to fill his pockets with pistols, &c., and as far as he was able he would stand by their sides—the law for them was at an end. He urged the meeting to hold itself in readiness with all the means at its command to endeavor to stop to-morrow the execution of this statute. The Government and Legislature have refused us the means to try the issue, and we have the right to disobey it and meet the consequences. When priests and statesmen are traitors, the people must take up the reins.

The meeting here adjourned to Tremont Temple, where Rev. Theo. Parker was called up. He said that when he passed the Court House this morning, and saw the chains which encompassed it, he imagined that he was in Vienna, (and not in Boston,) under Martial Law, and certainly not under the laws of New England: he asked the meeting to pass the resolve, each for himself, that he would hold for evermore as infamous, any one who aids in the arrest or rendition of a Fugitive Slave. I am, he said, ready to do it, and can see but little difference between the African kidnapper and the Boston kidnapper. There are at present three kidnappers in Boston; find them out and point at them as they pass in the streets; make them sick of Boston. He understood, from good authority, that they were intending to arrest two more fugitives to-night; he urged the meeting to form themselves into a Vigilance Committee, and keep a watch upon the movements of the bloodhounds.

A Scotchman named M'Clure denounced as a coward any man who would allow his arm to hang loosely by his side while a fugitive was being carried off. He committed no violence, he said, but soon after cried out, "Liberty or death—resistance to tyrants is obedience to God."

Rev. Mr. Colver next said that the law was so obnoxious and inhuman that he would trample it under his feet. He went for absolute disobedience; he also would counsel no violence, but he asked the assembly to meet to-morrow at the Court House in their strength: the people from the surrounding country would be there, he would be there, and if his presence upon such an occasion was inconsistent with his clerical profession, he would unfrock himself. He denounced those of his brother ministers who had counselled obedience to the Fugitive Slave Law as traitors to their country and their God, and called upon the meeting to again pass the resolution passed at Faneuil Hall, that Constitution or no Constitution, Law or no law, no fugitive slave shall be carried out of Massachusetts.

After some further inflammatory speeches the meeting adjourned, with the understanding that they were to meet at 10 o'clock to-morrow around the Court House. Some of the speeches denounced Daniel Webster as a disgrace to his country—a villain—a traitor to the North, which was received with mingled hisses and cheers. The number present at the Temple was about 1,000, many of whom went there from curiosity.

The Court House is still surrounded with chains and guarded by a large body of police officers. The Fugitive is in a room in the 3d story, which is secured by six two-inch bolts upon the inside. Several military companies are at their armories in readiness for action in case of any disturbance or attempt at rescue: indeed, every precaution has been taken to prevent another Shadrach affair.

Nine o'clock.—The city remains in an excited state. The square around the Court House has been cleared once or twice of the crowd collected, by detachments of the City Watch, and one or two, who refused to stir, were taken into custody; the square, however, is again half full. Sixty resolute men guard the Court House inside, and others are ready at different watch houses upon the least alarm. No blacks are to be seen abroad. Knots of men are collected all over the city discussing the matter. The great majority are in favor of obedience to the law. The agent of the owner refuses to sell the slave; his orders are to take him out of Massachusetts, to test the law.

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE.

Decision of the Court on a Petition for a Habeas Corpus.

BOSTON, Monday, April 7.

In the Supreme Court, this afternoon, Chief Justice Shaw delivered an opinion on the petition of the Fugitive, Thomas Sims, for a Habeas Corpus, on the ground of unconstitutionality of the law. He alluded to the delicacy of the question, containing as it did, an inquiry into the constitutionality of a law passed by the Representatives of the whole confederacy—that it was contended that the laws of both State and Nation should go on in harmony together. He then went into a history of the adoption of the Constitution.

Under this Constitution the law of 1790 has been in operation over 50 years, and under it cases have come up before the United States and State Courts, and the Court are not aware that it was ever called in question in regard to constitution, in regard of illegality of warrants issued by a Commissioner—he, not being a Judge in the eye of the Constitution. The Court held that under the law of 1790 the authority of remanding had been vested in certain State officers, Justices of the Peace, &c., but certain States had passed laws forbidding their officials to exercise the powers granted to them under the Fugitive Slave Act, and therefore under the new law power was granted to certain specified persons to act under it, the law of 1850.

The Court said it stood on the same grounds as that of 1793. It does not suspend the writ of habeas corpus, or any privilege they had under the old law. In conclusion, the Court said that the preservation of the powers of both State and Nation, each in its proper sphere, has ever been regarded as essential to the peace and prosperity of all the United States. The Court did not deny that a case might come up under the Fugitive Slave Act which would cause them to issue a writ of habeas corpus, but in the present case it was the unanimous opinion of the Court that the writ of habeas corpus cannot be granted after this decision.

The hearing before Commissioner Curtis was recommenced, and Mr. Rantoul argued at great length against the constitutionality of the law, similar to his plea at Lynn.

Swords and other accoutrements, sufficient to arm 100 police officers, have been forwarded from the Navy Yard and placed in the City Marshal's office in case the fugitive is remanded, when these officers will guard him to the cars on his return.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, April 3.

This morning, about 11 o'clock, a large portion of the ruined wall of the Assembly Building, situate on Tenth-st., was forced out in consequence of the back wall falling in. A more complete wreck of a building I never witnessed. It was rumored that a horse and dray, and two or three ladies were buried beneath the ruins. It is not known whether this is true or not, as the street had not been cleared of rubbish up to the time of penning this.

Last night, Thomas Kennedy, belonging to Delaware county, was admitted into the hospital, with his face completely riddled with shot. He states that a man named Nathaniel Rue shot him with a double-barrelled gun during an altercation between them.

A. D. Cresson, aged 15 years, was killed yesterday morning, at the residence of his parents, Fisher's Lane, Bristol township, by the accidental discharge of a gun, upon the muzzle of which he was leaning.

Latest from California.

The steamship Georgia arrived at N. York, Moday evening, bringing news from San Francisco to the 5th of March. The news is of importance, but we have not room for a detailed account. We clip the following from Tuesday's Tribune:

The news from our sister State on the Pacific will be read with interest. In Sacramento City there has been a painful tragedy enacted. A desperado, engaged in a brawl, wantonly took the life of an inoffensive by-stander, was arrested tried by a People's Jury under the Lynch Code and immediately hung. A simil scene was near being enacted in San Fracisco. There, also a People's Jury tried a person accused of an attempt to commit murder, but luckily three of the Jury were possessed of consciences, and resisted the demands of the populace. Their firmness saved the life of the culprit and he was eventually hand ed over to the officers of justice a to be legally tried. These occurrences will prove a stigma upon the heretofore fair fame of the State and one which she cannot easily efface. Unlike other new countries California has all the appliances and facilties of the older, States and there is therefore no shadow of necessity to justify these outrages.

The Legislature has failed to elect a Senator in the place of Col. Fremont. After one hundred and forty-four ballots, the Joint Convention in effect adjourned sine die.

—Though we cannot present any remarkable discoveries of gold yet the general tenor of the news from the interior is decidedly favorable to the miners. The Quartz Miners are being worked with much success and the stories heretofore published of the richness of the placers at Trinidad Bay are corroborated by this arrival. Miners were going to the Gold Bluff in great numbers.

The new Coin.

The die for the three-cent piece ordered to be coined by the last Congress has been finished and the coinage would be proceeded with at our Mint but that there is no provision for procuring the silver and copper to commence with. In consequence, the coinage will be delayed until the proper steps are taken by the authorities at Washington to remedy the deficiency. The new coin is decidedly neat and tasty, and will be in a measure a convenient substitute for coppers. It is one fourth copper and three fourths silver so that the baser metal affects the color but slightly. In size it is between the gold dollar and the five cent piece, but it is so much thinner than either that a blind man can easily distinguish them apart by the touch. The face of the coin has a capital C. with 3 in numerals indicating the value of the coin embraced within it. Around the edge are the thirteen stars for the original States. On the reverse is a star having in its centre an American shield and around the edge, "United States of America, 1851."

Monument to Gov. Shunk.

The monument to be erected at Trape, Montgomery county to Francis R. Shunk, late Governor of this Commonwealth, has been commenced at the marble yard of Thos Hargrave, in Spring Garden. The monument is to be 24 feet high appropriately inscribed and when finished will present a handsome appearance. The base is 5 feet 6 inches square, and above this block 3 feet 6 inches is the die on which the inscription is to be engraved. This is 2 feet 3 inches square and capped. Above this about two feet will be carved on the front a likeness of the late Governor, on the right side the Coat of Arms of the United States; on the left side the Coat of arms of Pennsylvania and on the rear the private seal of Governor Shunk. On this part of the monument will rest the obelisk, 12 feet 3 inches high and the whole will be surmounted by an eagle, 2 feet 4 inches across the wings are 2 feet 6 inches long. It is to be Italian marble and completed by the first of July. On the fourth of the same month it will be placed where the committee intend putting it. The monument when completed, will cost about $1600.

SUICIDE BY DROWNING.—We learn by a letter from Mr. James Cannon, of Lemon township, that Mr. George Capwell, 2d, of Clinton, put an end to his existence by drowning himself in the Tunkhannock creek, on the night of Monday, 24th ult., while laboring under the effects of that terrible disease, the delirium tremens. While in the act of leaving his home on the evening above mentioned, he was asked by his wife where he was going. He only replied that he knew where he was going. It is thought that he proceeded immediately to the creek and committed himself to his watery grave. After a vigilant and anxious search of three days by his relatives and friends, his body was found on the evening of the 27th lodged against a tree top a short distance below where he was drowned.

The deceased left a wife and three small children, the youngest of which is only about three or four weeks old.—Wy. Dem.
