THE TWO BROTHERS .- It is not many years men, without means, started in life. They were Democrats. Both subsequently abandoned their profession-after having earned public confidence in the editorial chair-and since then they have pursued almost the same career, and, though resident in different States, seem to have gone together, filling nearly the same public positions, and winning all hearts We find in the Philadelphia Ledger the fol- by the gentle suavity and steady consistency lowing forcible exposition of the fallacy of the of their character and conduct. Both are still Gubernatorial Chairs of Pennsylvania, the California of the Atlantic, and California, the Pennsylvania of the Pacific. The brothers alluded to, are WILLIAM and JOHN BIGLER; now choice of the Democratic party in each. The parallel will no doubt be completed when each is, as each will be, chosen to fill the posts for which they are candidates. Their past history is a guarantee that they will go on, with equal march, and unfaltering devotion, in the fulfilment of their high duties. There is in this picture much of encourage ment to the poor young man. Both of these Brothers BIGLER started in life without money, and almost without friends. No academic honors crowned their earlier manhood-no luxurious habits enervated their frames-no wealthy friends encouraged their first essays in life. In the battle of the world, they fought with no weapons but those furnished by their own indomitable energies. In the struggles for subsistence, they gleaned more knowledge from men than from books; while in the acquisition of money, came also the golden opinions of troops of friends. Let the young man, who would despond over his own future, keep an eye on them. take heart from this example, and try to imitate the two brothers.
