

Hox. WILLIAM BIGLER, the eloquent and popular candidate of the Democracy for Governor, will address the citizens of Susquehanna county, at Montroso.

ON TUESDAY NEXT, THE 19th INST., at 3 o'clock, P. M.

A meeting will be held in the evening, and Hon, GEO. W. WOODWARD and other distinguished men of the State are expected to nddress the people. Citizens of Susquehanna! let us have a general rally, and make the day memorable in the annals of the Lion-hearted Democracy.

Seth Clover.

It is always a good sign to see a man popular at home. This is peculiarly the case with the Democratic candidate for Canal Commissioner. Hear what the Clarron Democrat published in his own county says of him: CLOVER, besides being popular as a consistant democrat, has many triends in the ranks of the opposition who will vote for him. His father having been one of the carliest settlers in this county, and raised a large family of sons on the old farm, who grew up with the boys of the county associates at school and at their homes. Among this class of the community, though many of them of different politics, he has warm and ardent friends. Such persons know him to be honest and capable-they know nothing to his disadvantago unless it be that he is a "common man." Many of Democratic State Central Committee, for the his schoolmates are proud of his success. and admire the zeal and energy he manifests in all his undertaking. His consistency as a politician has given him a deep hold on the affections of the mass. When defeated as a candidate for Canal Commissioner last year, he returned home in high spirits-cheerfully took the field, and never relaxed his efforts for the nominee until Morrison was triumphantly elected He received the instruction of Clarion county for Congress, and although defeated in the district convention, Mr. Curtis, the nominee, received his zealous support until the ballot bex closed on the second Tuesday of October, Like BIGLER and BLACK, when defeated in the nomination. he never turned his back upon his party or its principles. Men so constant as be is, always have friends, however much party may tend to lead them from their first

Judge Jessup.

The Bogus Democrat appears to be very nneasy as regards the availability of Judge Jessup for the Supreme Bench, and attempts to aluse the Herald for merely publishing the opinion of the Judge's own neighbors upon that point. The secret is this, that the Bogus and all other tinkling appendages of this. Whig. Abolitionist turn coat and Bank-speculating candidate, are alarmed for his success, and any alluthe possession of plenty of hot shot prepared by the Judge himself, with which it is anzious to hurl into the camp of "locofocoism." It is desirous that the Bogus, "with the

We think it would appear rather cowerdly and quite unnecessary to attack this sinking candidate at this time, but should his "forlorn hopes" of which the Bogus is one, attempt to resuscitate his political fortune, or to impose upon the people a candidate so universally disliked, then it will devolve upon all who care for the success of good and pure Judges, to raise their voices against him - Wayne County Her-
