The Wife of Washington in Camp We quoted, says the New York Organ, some time ago from a correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser, an interesting account of Gen. Washington, while he was with the army at Morristown, N. J.

The same writer furnishes the following respecting Mrs. Washington, which he obtaineil from an old family in Whippany, N. J. named Vail. Mrs Vail's first husband's mother Mrs. Tuttle, was a sensible and agreeable woman, whose company was much sought, even by those who, owing to their wealth moved in more fashionable circles; Among, other frequent visitors was Mrs. Troupe, the, lady of a half pay captain in the British pavy.

She is described as a lady of affable manners and of intelligence, and much esteemed.

"One day she visited Mrs. Tuttle, and the usual complements were hardly passed before she said :

"Well, what do you think, Mrs. T., I have been to see Lady Washington P "Have you indeed ? Theu tell meallabou how you found her ladyship, how she appeared and take poor sam.

and what shy said." "Well, I will honestly tell you," answered

Mrs. Troupe. "I never was so ashamed in all my life. You see Madam ____, and Madam and Madam Budd, and myself, thought we would visit Lady Washington, and as she was said to be so grand a lady, we thought gives the following account of some of the we must but on our best bibs and bands. Sam and his Master. A good story is told of a southern gentleman, in one of the southern States, who being very ill, proposed that an aged slave, who had been very faithful to bim, should be called into his room. Sam soon made his appear ance, and with a joyful face drew near to his master, expecting that he was about to anonnee to him his purpose of leaving him

EY W. L. G. SMITH, ESQ. . THE object of the author is to represent the condition of the Slave in his rude but comfortable cabin, his daily occupations and pastimes the relations between the master and slave, the mistaken impflies and misconcoived views of the Northern Philanthropist, etc. etc., and to represent the passions and sentiments in their natural forms, as the same are displayed in the humblest lot of society, thus showing that, in the case of the slave at least; contentment bestows more happiness than freedom ; and at the same time to represent, as it is, a class of people, viz : the Planter, to whom justice has seldom been done, and whose huracter, as exhibited in every day life, is well calculated to win the amiable judgment of the world, The above work will be published on the first of July, and will contain about 500 12 mo. pages beautifully illustrated. The price will be $1.50. Early orders will meet with first attention
