Mr. Cockayne lately came to this county to reside, from England, whose loss is sorely felt the postilence that walketh in dark- by his parents, together with the community hies, The pestuence shar walketh at noon-in which he was acquainted, as he was respec-ted by all as a worthy man, and leaves a gloom whas not had to leave as a minute of inter-agencially prevailed. The tumult of inter-agencially prevailed. Unexampled among his associates with whom he was ac-quainted during his short residence in this vi-strile has not been heard. Unexampled istrile has not been heard. Unexampled istrile has not been heard pursuits cinity, and will be remembered for his truth

This heart is no longer the sent Of trouble and torturing pain, It ceases to flutter and beat, It never shall flutteragain.

Rejoice for a brother deceased. Our loss is his infinite gain; A soul out of prison released, And freed from its body pain. With songs let us follow his flight,

And mount with his spirit above ? Escaped to the mansions of height And lodged in the Eden above. Our Brother the heaven hath gained. Out flying the tempest and wind, His rest he linth sooner obtained, And left his companions behind.
