The Vision of Boats.

BY HELEN L. BOSTWICK.

One morn when the Day-god, yet hidden,
By the mist that the mountain enshrouds,
Was hoarding up hyacinth blossoms,
And roses, to fling at the clouds.

I saw from the easement, that northward
Looks out on the Valley of Pines,
(The easement, where all day in summer,
You hear the dew drop from the vines.)

Wh't shapes 'mid the purple wreaths glancing,
Like the banners of hosts at strife;
But I knew they were silvery pennons
Of boats on the River of Life.

And I watched, as the mist cleared upward, Half hoping, yet fearing to see
On that rippled and rock-sown River,
What the fate of the boats might be.

There were some that sped cheerfully onward,
With white sails gallantly spread;

Yet over there sat at the look-out,
One, watching for danger ahead.

No fragrant and song-haunted island,
No golden and gem studded coast
Could win, with its ravishing beauty,
The watcher away from his post.

When the tempest crouched low on the waters,

And fiercely the hurricane swept,
With furled sails, cautiously weaving.

Still onward in safety they kept.

And many sailed well for a season,
When river and sky were serene,
And leisurely swung the light rudder,
'Twixt borders of blossoming green.

But the Storm-King came out from his caverns,

With whirlwind, and lightning, and rain!
And my eyes, that grew dim for a moment,
Saw but the stern冤as again.

Then sorely I wept the ill-fated!

Yes, bitterly wept, for I knew
They had learned but the fair-weather wisdom,
That a moment of trial o'erthrew.

And one in its swift sinking, parted
A placid and sun-bright way;

Oh, deily the rock was hidden
That keepeth that voyager's grave!

And I sorrow'd to think how little.
Of aid from a kindly hand,

Might have guided the beautiful vessel
Away from the treacherous strand.

And I watched with a murmur of blessing,
The few that on either shore
Were setting up signals of warning,
Where many had perished before.

But now as the sunlight came creeping
Through the half open lids of the morn,
East faded that wonderful pageant,
Of shadows and drowsiness born.

And no sound could I hear but the sighing
Of winds, in the Valley of Pines;

And the heavy, monotonous drooping
Of dew from the shivering vines.

But all day, 'mid the clashing of Labor,
And the city's unimpassioned notes

With thoughts that went seeking the hidden.

I pondered that Vision of Boats,

Choice Selections.

Excess of ceremony shows want of breeding; that civility is best, which excludes all superior formality.

Business which the apostle gives a relish to pleasureasure.

Crimes sometimes shock us too much, vice does not always too little.

Zealous men are ever displaying to you the strength of their belief, while judicious men are showing you the grounds of it.

Wise men are instructed by reason; men of less understanding by experience; the most ignorant by necessity; and brutes by nature.

Despair is the offspring of fear, laziness and impatience.

Pride is as fond a beggar as want, and a great deal more saucy.

A clergyman happening to pass a boy weeping bitterly, he halted, and asked, "What is the matter, my little fellow?" the boy replied:

"Before we could hardly get enough to eat of anything; and now what shall we do? for now there's another one come."

"Hush thy mourning; and wipe off those tears," said the clergyman, "and remember that He never sends months without the sends victuals to put them into."

"I know that said the boy," but then He wants all the mouths to our house, and the victuals to your house.

OVERHEARD.—Come in Joe, and let's take a drink.

"Thank ye, Thomas, can't afford it."

"Well, but I'll pay for it."

"O, I'm not speaking of the money."

Loss of health and energy; for I tell you what it is, Thomas, I find it up hill business to work steady on under liquor; it does well enough for half an hour, and then I get lazy and moody, want more, and become reckless, and that's why I can't afford it, so here's home for dinner."

My friend has a great reverence for the truth; said a gentleman to Bepro. "So I perceive, Bep replied, for he always keeps a respectful distance from it."

Flowers Gander.—Salt the paths to prevent spring growths. Attend to protecting all tender shrubs which may have been neglected last autumn.

From the Working Farm.

December.

WORK TO BE DONE.

FARM.—Continue to gather leaves from the woods and deposit them in the compost heaps hog-pens, &c., &c.

PLATE fuel under cover, clean up the remnants of old wood piles and compost them.

Cut and draw wood from swamps while frozen.

Under draining may be done when the weather is not too severe; the surface of the ground being frozen for a few inches, will not prevent ditches being dug, while frequent freezing and thawings, will soon become well packed.

This is the proper time for re-reading our back numbers and laying out the work for the coming year. Woods cut down at this time will sprout again. A small quantity of roots (turnips, carrots or beets) mixed to mulch the earth at this time, will materially increase their quantity of milk. Provide pure water for your cows without driving them a mile, manuring the road, and subjecting them to the annoyances of logs, &c. See that the master beasts do not tyrannize over the weaker ones. Care them by separate confinement for a time. Cut your corn stalks, instead of feeding them whole, and thus use the stalks as well as the leaves.
If the stalks are hard and dry, fill a large cast with them after cutting, and pour boiling water on them, covering with a blanket, and they will swell up to their original plumpness, and be tender. When cold sprinkle a little feed up on them, and the cattle will eat them. If refused, put some salt in the hot water before steaming them.
