Editorial Correspondence.

HOUSE REPRESENTATIVES, April 4, 1853.

Dear Democrat:—All length there is some prospect of an adjournment. The Senate passed a resolution fixing a week from to-morrow as the day, though, to my mind, it is exceedingly doubtful whether that time will not have to be extended a week or so. We have got into sad trouble with that time will not have to be extended a week or so. We have got into sad trouble with that time will not have to be extended a week or so.

The public printing of the State was allotted last Thursday to A. Boyd Hamilton; formerly printer to Congress. It was bid at rates about one half the price of printer's work for simply sitting the type. How the contractor can live at such rates, we can only guess.

Noticed in the Baltimore Sun last week another death in California, that of Mr. Richards of your place. I must confess it threw a chill of sadness over me, at finding such a melancholy and unexpected announcement in a paper thrown carelessly before me.

President Pierce in the Mexican War. The Boston Post says: If anything could bring a glaze of shame on the cheeks of those partisan hacks who impugned the military services of General Pierce in Mexico, it would be incidents like the following:

On Wednesday last, the Missourians now in the city, paid a visit to the President, and were introduced by their talented representative, Major John S. Phelps. Each name was introduced by name. When Major N. B. Holden, formerly of the 12th Infantry, and now of Johnson county, Missouri, was presented, the President exclaimed—'Major Holden! God bless you, Holden!—a brave man never trod shoe leather. Holden was in a narrow road when we were last together. Come and see my new hat, and I will leave the city without coming to see me!'

The Vice President sworn into office. A letter from Mantanzas published in the New Orleans Picayune, gives an account of the swearing in of the Vice President of the United States, from which we extract the following: 'For the first time in the history of the Republic has the man chosen by the people for the second post of honor taken before the altar in a foreign land. William Rufus King was on the 15th inst., sworn in as Vice President of the United States at the Camp near Mantanzas. The day was a most beautiful one, the clear blue sky of the tropics over our heads, the emerald carpet of Cuba beneath our feet, and the delicious sea breeze of these latitudes, springing in its coolness over all of us.

The New Secretary of State.—Charles A. Black, Secy of Greene county, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is spoken of everywhere in the highest terms. Gov. Bigler has been truly fortunate in his selection of a successor to the present accomplished Attorney General. The Lancaster Intelligencer in speaking of Mr. Black says: 'It is a well-earned honor, and political office of Pennsylvania, and the experience he has acquired will add greatly to the value of his services to the Government and the public.

Pennsylvania Legislature.
Harrisburg, March 28.

Mr. Sillier offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the Governor to invite the Governor and members of the Legislature to Baltimore to visit Harrisburg, as the guests of the State.

Mr. Evans offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Finance, to report a bill for the sale of the public works of the State.

Mr. Ruffalo moved to take up his resolution to provide for submitting the question of a prohibitory liquor law to a vote of the people.

Mr. Darlington on leave, reported the bill to incorporate the village of Susquehanna into a Borough, and relative to certain other matters.

President Pierce in the Mexican War.

The Boston Post says: If anything could bring a glaze of shame on the cheeks of those partisan hacks who impugned the military services of General Pierce in Mexico, it would be incidents like the following:

On Wednesday last, the Missourians now in the city, paid a visit to the President, and were introduced by their talented representative, Major John S. Phelps. Each name was introduced by name.

Now this very affair at the National Bridge was one of those events that were sneered at and ridiculed by the partisan malice that stare so hard to demonstrate that General Pierce was not in one action in Mexico.

The Philadelphia Murder.

The Philadelphia Ledger, of the 16th inst., contains an account of the examination of Arthur Spring, and the testimony of his son, establishing the parent's guilt. Spring is forty-five years of age, and a native of Ireland. The father taking a piece of leaden pipe, on Tuesday night, the 8th instant, indeed the son to anticipate an attempt to rob. On the night of the murder, the 10th instant, the son went on an errand. We copy, in continuation, from the Ledger:

After returning home, at about a quarter of 11 o'clock, he opened the back door, on hearing a rapping, and saw his father with his shoes in his hand. He came in, and gave him a number of twenty and ten dollar gold pieces, telling him to put them away. He then told his son that he had murdered those two women, and had taken the money from Mrs. Lynch's trunk.

In answer to his son's enquiries, the father told him that he was let in by Mrs. Shaw, who opened the back door for him; that a man and a girl were in the house, but he kept quiet until they had gone. He then talked and drank with Mrs. Shaw, and at last got her to go to bed, and as if her sister was asleep, she came down again and told him she was; and soon after he commenced his murderous assault upon her.

Mr. Darlington on leave, reported the bill to incorporate the village of Susquehanna into a Borough, and relative to certain other matters.

The Second Trial of Arthur Spring.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.
Spring was brought up for trial again this morning. There was a great crowd in and about the Court room.

Mr. Darlington on leave, reported the bill to incorporate the village of Susquehanna into a Borough, and relative to certain other matters.

Death of Mrs. Fillmore.

Washington, March 20.—Mrs. Fillmore died at Willard's, at 4 P.M. this morning. She had been suffering with pneumonia for some time past, but no serious apprehensions were felt until within a few days past. The immediate cause of her death was suffocating by the accumulation of water on the lungs. The family and friends who leave with the remains early to-morrow morning for Buffalo.

The Case of Spring Again.

The application for a new trial in the case of Spring, based on the substitution of a false jurymen for the real one, is one of the most extraordinary proceedings, considering the circumstances, that we remember in connection with public justice.

We say that a new trial, in the case of Spring, is now going on, and the prisoner's counsel, who has openly confessed his belief in Spring's guilt. Yes! Judge Dixon, though convinced of the justice of the late verdict, is willing to avail himself of what is really but a quibble, in order to evade the law of the most abandoned ruffian, who has perhaps ever committed a crime, in which the law of the State is violated.

Mr. Darlington on leave, reported the bill to incorporate the village of Susquehanna into a Borough, and relative to certain other matters.

Should that day ever come, the guilt of those who violate the forms of law, in order to secure substantial justice, will be far less than the guilt of those who, under the forms of law set justice at defiance. Heaven forbid that Philadelphia should be disgraced by such violence! But in order that our community may be spared witnessing such scenes, the laws must not be made a mockery.

Death of General Haynau.

It is announced by telegram from Vienna of the 14th inst., that General Haynau, a decorated hero of the Austrian army, had died in the arms of his wife at Vienna.

Should that day ever come, the guilt of those who violate the forms of law, in order to secure substantial justice, will be far less than the guilt of those who, under the forms of law set justice at defiance. Heaven forbid that Philadelphia should be disgraced by such violence!
