Printers Convention. "We observe that our bretheren of the Press, in different parts of the country, are conferring together in adopting plans to advance their interests, and the better to secure their rights. In the cities, the associations of printers and publishers gives system to the business and good wages to the workmen; but in the country we are not only subject to the impositions of the city press, but otherwise labor under many disadvantages that night, we think, be bettered. A meeting to confer together upon a uniform and remunerative scale of prices for job-work and advertising, to adopt some system of advance payments for newspaper subscriptions, and to say what class of publie notices shall be inserted gratis, as well as to cultivato, an acquaintance and friendly intercourse, we think would not be a bad move for the followers of "the Art preservative of all Arts," in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

We endorse the foregoing suggestion of the Montrose Democrat, as highly appropriate, and second the move for a Convention .- Wy oming Democral.

CONVENTION OF THE PRESS. It has been auggested by several members of the Press in Northern Pennsylvania that an Editorial Convention be held at the Wyoming House in Scranton, on the second Tuesday of Septemher next. A HOME SICK COLT .- The following story which we find in the Onondaga Standard presents one of the most ramarkable cases of equine instinct that we have ever heard of: O. B. Herrick, Esq., of this village, purchased Ohio, about twenty miles from Toledo.—He led the colt to Toledo, then shipped him to Buffalo, on board a steamboat. From Buffalo he was brought by railroad to Syracuse, and then led to this place. Since he has been here he acis like a prisoner; has broken out of his pasture several times, and started off west. The nucleus appears to the naked eve in the direction of Syracuse, but he has been as large and brilliant as one of the larger plandence and affection of his commander, who alovertaken and brought back. At last a heavy yoke was put upon him, to prevent his jumping. Last Monday night, however, he again escaped and ran to Syracuse. He got to the car-house about 3 d'clock in the morning, and ran immediately to a freight car, and tried to get aboard of is, but did not succeed .- When zs Geddes, but steam was too much for him ing rather too near the Earth. and he was obliged to give up the chase. He then returned to Syracuse, and tried to jump on another car, but he was prevented by his yoke. Some men about the cars then drove him there and brought him back.

The colt is a three year old roan, with black mane and tail. We are thus particular about describing him, as he may have a further inclination to travel, and may some day take a passage on the cars, in which event his owner would be glad to hear form him.'
