Terrible Riot in Perry County, Ohio.

The following despatch appears in the Columbus State Journal:—

Zanesville, Sept. 7 1853.

Advices from Somerset, Perry county, give us intelligence of a terrible riot in that place. The origin we cannot learn precisely. The Irish laborers on the Railroad have the fire-arms belonging to the county in their possession. Two persons were killed and several badly wounded.

The Sheriff of Perry county has sent here for one hundred armed men, and one of our military companies the City Guards under Capt. Graham, have just started for the scene of disturbance. More trouble is anticipated. The life of the telegraph operator in said town has been threatened should he transmit any requests for assistance.

We learn the row commenced in Welch's Circus, last night, but cannot give the particulars.

Fall of the Table Rock at Niagara.

The Falls of Niagara are gradually moving up stream. According to our telegraphic advices of yesterday, the last of the Table Rock has tumbled in. It was inevitable. It had to go. Nothing can be more simple than the work of excavation which, from time immemorial, has been going on at Niagara Falls. Almost every year, and frequently several times in a year, some portion of the shelf over which the river plunges tumbles into the chasm below, creating some visible change in the grand curve of the Horse Shoe, or in the irregular line of the American Fall.

The process as we have said, is exceedingly simple. The general level of the country of Lake Ontario is some three hundred feet lower than that of Lake Erie. The depression is abruptly marked by a terrace drawn across Niagara river, near Lake Ontario, from which lake said terrace appears like a mountain ridge stretching across the country, the summit of this ridge forming the level of the country of Lake Erie. In the original outflow from Erie to Ontario, then, the river was very naturally precipitated over this terrace, as down the side of a mountain. But soon the fall became perpendicular, as the geological structure of this upper country will show in a glance at the sides of the chasm below the present Falls.

From Lake Erie to the descent near Ontario, the first formation under the arable soil is a mass of primitive limestone from eighty to one hundred feet thick. Underneath this a friable slate or shale succeeds, which is underlined by sand, &c. The river finds it a slow business to grind down this immense overlapping plate of solid limestone; but the work of excavation is easy by the simple process of undermining it. The stream at first, falling over the terrace, washing away the loose materials at the base, and, from the tremendous volume of water pouring down, soon scooped out a deep basin at the foot of the Fall. Then the action of water and air combined rapidly disintegrated and moved away the friable materials forming the back of the Fall, until the overtopping layer of limestone was left projecting like a shelf across the stream, over which the mighty mass of waters was thrown into the chasm below. But as the work of disintegration went on underneath, and as the pulverized materials were washed away, this impending shelf of limestone, from its superincumbent weight, broke off and fell into the basin; and thus the Niagara Falls have undoubtedly been working their way up stream for several thousand years.—Herald 11th.

Attempt to Arrest a Slave.

"On Saturday morning last our town was thrown into quite an excitement by several deputy United States marshals making their appearance in our midst, for the purpose of capturing an alleged fugitive slave by the name of William Thomas.

"The said Thomas has been a resident of Wilks Barre for the last two years and was formerly employed at Hillman's Hotel, until within a short time when he went to the Phœnix on river street. On the morning of the 3d inst. while engaged in the dining room, he was approached from behind and altogether unaware by four or five persons who attacked him and attempted to put shackles upon his arms. He immediately suspected their purpose, and dashing them from him gave battle, when a desperate fight ensued, the negro being repeatedly knocked to the floor and in turn knocked his assailants down, until at length being freed from them he fled to the river, followed by the officers. On arriving at the river he plunged in with the intention of swimming to the other side, but found he could not swim, when he returned within a few steps of his pursuers and remained in the water.—While fleeing and while in the river he was several times fired at by the officers, but one of which, however, took effect, the ball entered the back part of his head, and making a flesh wound. On being requested to come out of the water and surrender himself, he declared his determination to drown himself rather than be taken as a slave. The officers then gave up further pursuit, and immediately left town. A warrant was issued for their apprehension, but before an officer was found to serve it they had left.

"Thomas was taken up and properly cared for by his friends and although terribly wounded and bruised, we hear he is doing well and will recover."

The gentlemen who engaged in this exciting and rather novel sport, are of the class, we presume, who are endeavoring to stop the agitation of the slavery question, and take this method of accomplishing their object. The sight of a man, whether black or white, thus driven to the water, in attempting to preserve the blessing guaranted as the inalienable right of all men, and fired at like a wild beast, is certainly intended to convince community of the efficacy of the fugitive slave law, and to impress them with its beauties. —Luz. Union.

Premature Interment.

The possible occurrence of premature interment, and all the inconceivable agonies that must attend a return to life and conciousness in the 'narrow house appointed for all living,' is almost too horrible to think of. That such cases have occurred there can be no doubt; but the following well-authenticated instance of apparent death, and narrow escape from such a burial, is one of the most extraordinary we have ever met with. It is mentioned by the late Dr. Manenish in his 'Philosophy of Sleep:'

"A young lady, in the suite of the Princess of N——N——, had been long confined to her bed by a violent nervous ailment, and ultimately, to all appearance, died. Her lips were quite pale, her face assumed a death-like hue, her body was icy cold. She was carried from the chamber where she lay, laid in a coffin, and a day appointed for her funeral. It came, and according to the practice of the country, several dirges and spiritual songs were chanted before the house. Just as the people in attendance were about to nail down the coffin lid, they remarked a sort of sweat upon the body, which every moment increased, and at last a convulsive motion in the hands and feet became perceptible.—Some minutes afterwards during which fresh signs of returning animation were apparent, she opened her eyes, and gave utterance to a loud and most piteous wail. In a few days, she had entirely recovered. The account which she gave of her state of mind during the continuance of this lethargy is extremely curious. It seemed to her as though she dreamed that she was really dead, only she was perfectly conscious of everything that was passing around her. She heard distinctly the whispers and lamentations of her friends beside her. She felt them robing her in her shroud, and laying her in the coffin. The feeling occasioned her an agony beyond description. She strove to scream out but had not the power to do so. The will had lost its control over the corporeal functions. She had the excruciating feeling of being in the body and out of it at one and the same time. To stir hand or foot, or to open her eyes, was alike impossible.—Her torture reached its height when the dirge commenced, and the coffin-lid was on the point of being nailed down. The thought of being interred alive at length brought back the nervous system to activity, and enabled it to operate upon the muscular powers."

AN UNLUCKY BLOW.—We are pained to state that on Saturday last a difficulty occurred at Monroeton, in this County, between John Hanson and Nelson Warford, in which the former gave the latter an unlucky blow on the neck, which, strange to say, proved fatal. We are not fully apprised of the facts of the case. We can only say that it was unfortunate blow, given in a moment of passion, with of course no design or thought of such a serious result. It is a wonderful and lamentable circumstance, and we deeply sympatise with the unfortunate and bereaved parties.—Bradford Argus.

CARPENTER'S HOTEL

(FORMERLY "LUSK HOUSE,") GREAT BEND, PA.

THE subscriber, having rented this well known house, and re-fitted and re-furnished in good style, is now prepared to receive and entertain guests. This house is delightfully situated in the banks of the Susquehanna river, on the line of the New York and Erie, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroads; overlooking a most beautiful section of country, and is the panorama of scenery unequalled anywhere.

As a SUMMER RESORT for the business man seeking quiet and freedom from the noise and din of city life, and for ladies and gentlemen in pursuit of pleasure amid the rural scenery of the country, this location cannot be equalled. Here the weary traveller is secure from the confusion incident to the continual arrival and departure of trains, which, especially in the night time is a very great annoyance to those stopping at houses very near the Depot.

His Rooms are new, pleasant, and well furnished; his TABLE with all the delicacies which both country and city markets afford; and no pains will be spared to make his house a pleasant home to all his guests.

☞ Guests will be conveyed to and from the cars, at any hour day or night, in a good Omnibus, free of charge.

☞ A LIVERY STABLE is attached to the House.

New-York Dry Goods Store.

THE Proprietors of the New-York Store, No. 7 Court street, Binghamton, Broome County, N. Y. takes unfeigned pleasure in returning his sincere thanks for the patronage bestowed upon him since his opening, as his trade thus far has surpassed his highest anticipations. He now takes pleasure in announcing, that his arrangements for the Summer Campaign are complete, having made his arrangements in New York to be supplied with every article at cost, which enables him to sell goods in any quantity, by the case, piece or yard, at the same prices that they are sold in New York at wholesale. This will at once satisfy every mind that goods can be sold at this establishment 15 to 20 per cent. cheaper than any other house in town can sell.

Merchants in this vicinity are advertising goods cheap and at cost. Their old stocks are flooding the market at the very highest prices, even at cost. Don't be humbugged by them—come to the New York Store, where you can get goods new and fresh from the Atlantic steamers and the manufactorys. I have just received 20 cases of the newest styles of rich black fancy, brocade, check and changeable Silks, Barages, Challies, Lawns, Jaconets, Linens, Damask Table Spreads, Embroideries, Demi Veils, Parasols, Shawls, Vizetres and Mantillas, Gloves, Hosiery, Mitts, a large assortment of Dress Trimmings, Trunks, Valices, Satchels, De Lanes, Prints, bleached and unbleached Shirtings and Sheetings, Ticks, Stripes and Denims.

The New York Store is the Banner store.—We buy for Cash, sell for cash and charge nothing for showing goods. The summer campaign is open. Come and see the battle already begun, and buy a pile of cheap new and fashionable goods. Remember the number and place New York Store No. 7, Court st. a few doors east of the Chenango Bridge, Binghamton, Broome Co., New York.

F. BROWN'S Essence of Jamaica Ginger.

This Essence is a preparation of unusual excellence. In ordinary diarrhœa, incipient cholera, in short, in all cases of prostration of the digestive functions, it is of inestimable value. During the prevalence of epidemic cholera and summer complaints of children, it is peculiarly efficacious; no family or individual or traveller should be without it. As it enables the system to resist the influence of insipient disease which lurk in a changing climate.

CAUTION.—Be sure to get the genuine essence which is prepared only by F. BROWN, at his Drug and Chemical Store, N. E. Corner of Fifth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, and for sale by all the respectable Apothecaries in the United States, and at Montr
