Principles of Manuring Crops. We have not yet by any means discovered the whole of the principles of manuring crons. One practice has been too long blindly followed. But is now found to be of now use. The climate—the quality of the soil, mechanical as well as chemical—the aspect—the clevation—and even the erop—are modifying circumstances, as well as the influence of the geological strata on which the soil rest.-Tho' the latter is often modified by drifts, yet He had recourse to the supplications used the mechanical character of the soil, as well such cases. as the chemical, has much to do with the valthe of the superincumbent strata. Ancient Grave Yards. We love to visit old grave yards, we love to wander among the memorials of former renerations, and spell out the records of which mourning friends have placed over the decaying tenements of departed life. Philadelphia affords ample opportunities for gratifying this passion. We have several grave yards, to which the dead have been consigned during the last hundred years, and one—that of the Sweeds, church—we have tombs of a much older date may be found. In the vicinity of Fith and Arch streets, there are three of these ancient grave yards, we have whiled away many an hour, viewing the time stained slabs, and numbering the instances in which the distinguished merit of other days has been suffered to lie in neglect and cold obstruction." We regret that strangers and the curious among our own citizens are not acquainted with the means of gaining an entrance to these cemeteries, and especially to the one on the south east corner of Fifth and Arch streets, which contains the grave of Benjamin High and Stool Chairs, &c. Franklin, an object of interest to the civilized world. A simple slab covers that spot of earth but the memories of millions of minds, and the affections of millions of hearts, grateful for services to the human race, centre in that piece of marble. Our citizens often express an anxiety to visit the place, and strangers usually inquire as to the whereabouts. In the same grave yards are the tombs of many persons well known in the history of Philadelphia. In the old grave yard on the north side of Arch street, above Fifth, may be seen the tombs of Knox, Shippen, and other distinguished citizens of the past generations. The slabs above their graves are deeply stained by the long exposure of years, but their brief "In memories," must be read with intense interest. Tea and Coffee Sstts. The third grave yard to which we have alluded is situated at the corner of Fifth and Cherry streets, around the ancient Dutch Church, which is we belive, one hundred and nine years old. There also may be seen many tomb stones, from which time has almost erased the names. The venerable aspect of the church and the surrounding grounds is remarkable, in the midst of so much that is new and progressive. What is to become of these grave yards. If they are to be treated in the to the remains of the distinguished dead there reposing. What shall be done with the bones of Franklin, Knox and others, whose names are too illustrious to permit their remains to

THE MARRIAGE STATE; Shall Happiness and Bealth, or Misery and Bickness, altend it ?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS

Reflections for the Thoughtful. Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the carth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induced and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not ladmit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always alling.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and monthly preservations. mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But eftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

RENIGHTED IGNORANCE, AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE! How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and enuses of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incarable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physicological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.
