Lines. BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE.

The sunset's sweet and holy blush Is imaged in the sleeping stream, All nature's deep and solemn hush Is like the silence of a dream: And each scems brooding like a dove O'er scenes to musing spirits dear & Sweet Mary, 'tis the hour of love, And I were blest if thou were here.

Thy myriad flowers of every hue Are sinking to their evening rest, Each with a tinted drop of dew Soft folded on its sleeping breast, The birds within you silent grove Are dreaming that the spring is near— Sweet Mary, 'tis the hour of love, And I were blest if thou were here.

On you white cloud the night wind-furls Its lone and dewy wing to sleep, And the sweet stars look out like pearls Through the clear wave of heaven's blue

The pale mist floats around, above, Like spirits of a nobler sphere-Sweet Mary, 'tis the hour of love, And I were blest if thou were here. The pale full moon in silent pride.

O'er you dark wood is rising now, As lovely as when by thy side I saw it shining on thy brow; It lights the dew drop of the grove, As hope's bright smile lights beauty's star Sweet Mary, 'tis the hour of love, ... And I were blest if thou were here.

Ah! as I muse, a strange wild thrill Steple o'er the fibres of my framo-A gentle presence seems to fill My heart with love, and light, and flame I feel thy spirit round me move,
I know thy soul is hovering near— Sweet Mary, 'tis the hour of love, And I were blest if thou were here.

At six the grooves and hollows will begin to fill up a little. At seven the grooves will be nigh filled up, except the corner teeth, leaving little brown spots in their place. At eight the whole of the hollows and grooves are filled up. At nine there is very often seen a small bill to the outside corner teeth: the point of the tusk is worn off, and part that Bell, Esq., of Blair county, sends us the followwas concave begins to fill up and become ing remedy for hoof crack: rounding; the square of the central teeth begin to disappear, and the gums leave them small and narrow at the top.

Heaves.—Do you know any effectual cure for heaves in horses? If not perhaps you may consider what follows as worth noticing. have a valuable horse, one of a pair, which threatened, more than a year ago, to become utterly useless, in consequence of this complaint. At the expiration of the last grass season, I was induced to try top stalks of cominstead of hay, and the result has been that the animal is entirely relieved. Permit me to add, that I have for years been in the practice of giving my horses each an ounce of fine salt every other day, and have good reasons at the top of the hoof where the hair comfor believing that their health is greatly promoted by it.—Alb. remark there are few farmers who do not feel a decided choice in having clean houses, vards, &c., and also in having the women about them, especially their wives and their daughters, nice and cleanly in their persons and habits; but if they expect to be gratified in this respect they must be willing to do their parts. They must have a proper care to keep plenty of good scrapers and mats about their outside doors, brick, stone or board walks leading to the barn and out houses, and to avoid the habit of entering the house at any time with dirty shoes, also whittling or spiting upon the floor and against the walls. Such care should be observed, not only for present comfort, but as a most commendable habit to be transmitted to children and grand children in future generations.

There is not enough of tender regard to the feelings of our wives and daughters on these accounts. In travelling recently to the west, while sitting in the large bar room at Crest-line I observed a man standing in the out-door and leaning with his back against the door frame. When he had occasion to spit, instead of turning his head and spitting ou at the door, he turned it the other way, an spit upon the floor. Such was the force of habit that he appeared not fully to relish his tobacco unless he spit on the floor. The comfort and happiness, and the affec-tion, too, of rural life, is much promoted by care in very little things. A friend of mine who, in the summer season, was in the habit of sitting near his window to shave, when he was done would throw his shaving paper into the yard. He observed his affectionate and dutiful daughter was tried with this, and without complaining would carefully gather them up and remove them. He had to much regard for his daughter to suffer this to continue, and as it was some distance to the kitchen fire, he fell upon the plan of putting his paper back into the cup, so that the servant when she brought him hot water the following morning or at a future time, could throw the paper into the fire. This may seem a A short time back I dined with a friend, a small matter to mention, but at is chiefly upon whose table I found some extraordinary intended to show in what very small matters good Irish potatoes. Cure for Crack in Horse's Hoofs. The Farm Journal says, our friend Martin

"When the crack opens and makes the horse lame, take a piece of light hoop iron, six or seven inches long, and punch six or eight holes in it, so that three or four may come on each side of the crack, and fit it to the hoof as near the hair as the solid part of the hoof will permit. Have the opposite foot held up by an assistant, and fasten the plate to its place in a workmanlike manner, with good screws about three-sixteenths of an inch in length. The holes for the screws should be made in the hoof with a small sprigging awl. If properly done the horse can be either ridden or worked without limping. But to make the cure perfect, a sore must be made mences, which may be done with an inch chisel, guarded so as not to cut to deep. A little poke root or something else should be or three months, and know from experience we witness the bright opening of a New Year: that it is much preferable to any other mode

THE MARRIAGE STATE; Shall Bappiness and Bealth, or disery and Bickness, altend it? MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Strange that countless human brings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind or reaction than though the work not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children. HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR wife Lingers from year to year la that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her licalth will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus
