

Another Fire in Towanda.

On Friday morning last, at half past three, the familiar alarm of fire aroused our citizens from their slumbers. The barn attached to the dwelling of Mrs. Nancy E. Bull, corner of State and River streets, was enveloped in flames, when the alarm was first given, threatening destruction to the adjacent property.

Franklin Fire Company, with their Engines, were speedily at work, and succeeded in arresting the flames almost at the point when first discovered.

The barn of Mrs. Bull was almost destroyed when the fire was discovered, and was consumed, with the wood shed of the dwelling. The dwelling house was partly burned, and completely saturated with water. It was occupied by John Laughlin, who had moved in but a few days previous. He had time to remove but a few of his goods, and is a heavy loser.

The barn was occupied by Sheriff Thomas—his horses were fortunately escaped—and he lost only some harness.

A heavy loss falls upon Capt. Loomis, proprietor of the Canal Docket, St. Louis, who was just commencing running regular trips between Towanda and Athens. He had in the stable three valuable horses, a quantity of harness and oats, and loss at least $500.

Mrs. Bull, we understand, has no insurance upon her building.

Messrs. Bailey & Nevins lost between 40 and 50 thousand shingles, piled upon the river bank in front of the barn. This single pile was on fire when the alarm was first given.

The dwelling south of the corner was occupied by Luther H. Scott, whose loss consists in the damage done his furniture by water and by removing a portion.

Too high credit cannot be awarded to the exertions of the Fire Company, nor too much praise given to the Engine they work. The fire had gained so much head when first discovered, that a partial destruction of Mrs. Bull's dwelling house was inevitable. The efficiency of this organization has become so apparent, that we trust the earliest favorable opportunity will be taken to procure another Engine, or at least provide reservoirs, necessary to afford protection to every part of the borough.

It is supposed that this fire was the work of an incendiary.—Bradford Reporter.

Supposed Murder of a Young Lady by her Betrothed.

[From the Lynchburg (Va.) Register.]

It will be remembered, that sometime during last spring, an item went the rounds of the papers, chronicling the sudden death of Miss Agnes Pharr, of Covington, Va., and stating that she was within a few days of her marriage to one Dr. Thompson, her father's physician.

We learn from a private source, that it is so strongly suspected that her death was caused by strychnine administered by Dr. T., that several public meetings of the citizens have been held to consider the matter. The circumstances seem to be these: Miss Pharr had been indisposed for some weeks, and had been taking medicine from Dr. Thompson. On the morning of her death, Dr. T. wrote her a note, asking a postponement of her marriage, and urging her to take the remainder of the pills he had left for her.

Among these pills there was to have been one considerable large (than the others), and this was the one left. Miss Pharr having refused to take it. Upon this hint, she took it, and in fifteen minutes was a corpse. Her death was pronounced at the time similar to that produced by strychnine. There was no suspicion of foul play, until she was engaged in dressing the body discovered certain signs, which were more than confirmed by the further discovery of a box of pills.

When the suspicion assumed a probable character, Dr. Thompson demanded that the body should be dissected and examined by a committee of physicians, named by himself; but when the committee of the unfortunate girl was obtained, he refused to have anything to do with it, alleging as a reason that he did not wish to wound the feelings of the family.

These are the facts as they have been detailed to us, by two gentlemen of standing. If they be true, there is certainly good ground for demanding an investigation. If Dr. Thompson be guilty, no time should be lost in ridding the world of such a monster; if innocent, his character as a man will be satisfied with nothing less than a full, free and triumphant acquittal at Great Bend.

The father of Miss Pharr is a Presbyterian minister, and is said to be one of the most upright, amiable and unsuspecting persons to be found anywhere.

Away through that little grove of oak-trees, do you see that church spire glistening in the red sun-light? It seems to be at least two miles distant—and here there is the whistle of the engine, and here we are at the station of a very pretty village. We stop but a moment, and off we fly again; the spire fades just as quickly behind us, and in a moment more is out of sight. The sun-beams falling upon the crimson plume cushions of the car turn to a deeper orange, and the red sun sinks down the west. We are now coming to the money-for-the-day's ride. Look away on ahead, where that silver sheet of water stretches down beyond that distant piece of woods. The sun is just going down, and we could almost fancy that

John to himself, "I'll go and see it." "Hum, I know; but I'd like to know if she's really doing any body with that bit of paper?" and entering the bank, he asked for the note which had been left there for collection against him. "It was discounted," said the teller. "Discounted! who in the world would discount my note?" said John, amazed. "Anybody, with such a backer as you've got on this." "Backer! Me—backer—who?" "Here's the note, you can see," said the teller, handing him the document, and on which John recognized the bold signature of the President of the United States. "Sold! truly!" exclaimed John, with a hysterical gasp, drawing forth the money—for he saw through the management at a glance. The note was paid, of course, and justice was awarded the speediest at once. On the next morning he found upon his
