The Happiest Place is Home. EY REV. SIDNEY DYER.

Though others may seek far and wide To gain but a moment of bliss, Disappointments their footsteps abide, In a world full of phantoms as this. But with loved ones the blessings to shire Ah who would be longing to roam, When taught by the joy tasted there, That the happiest of places is home!

· The world may seem brighter without With the glitter and tinsel of art; And its friendships appear more devout, With the semblance of truth to the heart But so sweet are the pleasures I share, My heart feels no yearning to roam, Since nothing on earth can compare

With the happiest of places; my home If sorrow c'er darkens my way.
Till the heart wears a burden of grief, And the friends I have trusted betray, In the hour when most needing relief; From the anguish which tortures the mind To my own little heaven I'll come, In the smiles of my loved one to find, That the happiest of places is home.

ment of his hand, this was prevented. Andre took off his handkerchief from his neck, unpinned his shirt collar, and deliberately took the end of the halter, put it over his head, and placed the knot directly under the right ear, and drew it very snugly to his neck. He then took from his coat a pocket han!kerchief and tied it over his eyes. This done, the officer that commanded (his name I have forgotten) spoke in a rather loud voice and said that his arms must be tied. Andre at once pulled down the handkerchief he had just tied over his eyes, and drew from his pocket another one, and gave it to the executioner, and then replaced his hand erchief. His arms were tied just above the elbows and behind his back. The rope was then made fast to the pole over his head. The wagon was very suddenly drawn from under the gallows which with the length of the rope, gave him a most tremendous swing back and forth; but in a few minutes he hung entirely derstood, has enabled 97 KINKELIN. (AUTHOR OF AWORK ON SELP-PRESERVATION.) to prove that nine tenths of he causes of hervous debility. local and constitutional weak uess, mental and physical-aufering, are traceable to certain habits, forming the most secret, yet density and fatal springs of demestic on sery and premature mortality.

The he in error plus Nullice There is an evillabit sometimes induced in hybors, in whitner, often growing up with them to manhood, and which if not reformed in dustime, not this heads serious observable to writing air up with them to manhood, and which if not reformed in dustime, not only beguts acrous obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a a ries of protracted, insidous, and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this peripious practice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system chattered of ed strange and unaccountable feelings, and vague hars in the mind. The unfortunate thus affected becomes feelie, is unable to labor with occustoused vigor, or to apply his mind to study in the strange and weak, he is duit, presented and engages in his steps tandy and weak, he is duit, presented and congress in his steps that with tess energy than usual. If he cman upate himself before the practice has done its worst, and one reatments.

RINKELIN'Streatment may religiously confident in homoras a quitemant and rely unon the assurance, that the secrets of Dr. K's patients will never be disclosed.

Young man—let no false modesty deteryou from oaking your case in was to one who, from education and espectability can certainly befriend you.

Too many thin's they will conceal the secret in their own hearts, and cure themselves. Alas! how often is this a fatal detailon, and how many promising young man, who might have been an ornament to society has faded from the earth.

Strictures of the urethry are capilly removed by the applied tion of a new theraneutical agent, used only by application of a new theran entired ingent, used only by Dr. K. We kness and constitution of debility promptly cured, and full vigor restored.
