

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION IN THE NORTHWEST.
E. B. CHASE & ALVIN DAY, Editors.
Montrose, Thursday, March 8, 1855.

Good Night.
Good night! in tones that never die,
It speaks along the quivering ear,
And tender glances of memory
Forever watch us o'er.
When silent the waning moon
That shall breathe "good night" again,
"Good night!" it speaks us from the grave,
It whispers that strange world's bound,
From whence there flows no backward wave,
It calls from out the ground,
On every side around—
"Good night, good night!" to life and love!
"Good night!" O, wherefore fade away
The light that lived in this dear world?
Why follows that good night, no day,
Why are our souls so stirred?
O, rather, our dull brain, more
"Good night!" thy time of rest is o'er.

Orders of the Day.
The meeting was called to order by the President, S. T. Scott. Exercises opened with prayer by Prof. W. Richardson.

B. F. Tewksbury gave an extempore report of the meeting held in Jackson on the 10th inst. On motion, a committee consisting of A. B. Kent, A. J. Gerritsen, and S. W. Tewksbury was appointed to report amendments to the Constitution.

R. F. Tewksbury moved that the duty of nominating officers for the new year be added to those of the Committee. Agreed to.

Prof. W. Richardson spoke at length on the subject. Proposed that competent men be elected in the different towns to perform the several duties of Poor Masters, Supervisor, and School Directors. Said he thought it would tend more directly to advance the interest of the Schools than the present mode of having six Directors, who receive no pay, and consequently take but little interest in the matter.

S. T. Scott gave his experience in regard to the attendance of pupils at School. Said he believed in the great necessity of the want of progress was irregular attendance. Spoke of the School Law and the opposition to it. Regretted that instead of proposing amendments, many wished to undo what had been done for the public good.

Rev. L. Richardson took the floor and spoke for three quarters of an hour with much ability. Supported the principle of the Common School Law, showing the almost incalculable good already derived from it.

On motion of A. J. Gerritsen, the Association adjourned to meet in Springville, on Saturday March 17, 1855, at 10 o'clock P. M. S. T. SCOTT, Pres.
