

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NORTHERN PENNSA. B. B. CHASE & J. B. MCCOLLUM, Editors ALVIN D. J., Publisher.

Montrose, Thursday, Apr. 6, 1855. To the President and Secretary of the American Republican Association, High Street Ward.

GENTLEMEN—The enclosed circular was handed to me last evening by a gentleman whom I suppose to be one of you, and as I cannot conscientiously accept your invitation to join your association, it becomes my duty to tell you the reason why.

The political party of which your association forms a part, has existed for some months in this country, and has sprung from my youth taken an interest in political affairs and the origin and progress of parties. It was natural that this party of yours should receive, as it did, from me, considerable attention, and that thereby I should become acquainted with its principles and dogmas.

I am a "native born" citizen, was born and bred in the county of Philadelphia. My ancestors, both paternal and maternal, although of German descent, were for two or three generations back, born and reared on the soil of Pennsylvania; so that if native inspired patriotism, I ought to be a patriot, and if I know myself, I will, whenever circumstances require it, take "a bold and decided stand" in the defence and protection of the "flag of my country" and in its interests, which has been designed to protect, and of which it is the emblem.

And if I have a proper conception of my own feelings, I would be second to no one in "resisting the encroachments of foreigners upon the rights and privileges of the citizens of this country; and I would with equal alacrity resist all influences, whether foreign or domestic, that would in any degree jeopardize or disturb those invaluable rights, liberty of conscience, and freedom of opinion, under which our country has so long existed in peace and quietness.

But you ask me to come and aid you in resisting the encroachments of foreigners upon the rights and privileges of native born citizens. Your circular and your party assume that those who were by accident born upon the soil of the United States, have rights and privileges which those born elsewhere have not. In this assumption I most decidedly differ with you. The framers of the Constitution very wisely provided that every office under the United States, even to the highest, should be attainable by a citizen of the proper qualification, no matter where born, and every man who seeks a home on our shores, even if born in the desert of Siberia or on the icy shores of Lapland, is, when naturalized according to the constitution and laws of the United States, entitled to the same rights and privileges equal to those whose accidental birth-place was upon the soil of the United States.

And why should you ask me to protect the flag of my country against the encroachments of those who did not happen to be born in the same place? I would not be the noble-hearted patriot and thinker that those noble-hearted patriots and thinkers that were dear to me on earth—merely that one race of men—merely that those born on one spot of earth should enjoy the blessings of liberty and free government?—think you that those brave soldiers of foreign birth fought side by side with Washington and Gates, with Green, Sumpter, Marion and Morgan, merely that the fruits of their soil should be enjoyed by those who did not plant and defend the "Star-Spangled Banner" in the blood of the patriot? No, no. Our fathers fought for and established a government that was a promise "Asylum to the oppressed of all lands and climes, whether he bore the cross of Christ or the crescent of Mahomet, should find a home and a resting place."

Or do you want me to give evidence of the disposition of those foreign birth to retain and defend the "Star-Spangled Banner" to go to the plain of Chippewa—to the battle grounds of Bridgewater and Fort Erie—there you will find that the blood of foreigners was freely poured out in defence of the American flag and American institutions, and there you will find the bleached and mouldering bones of foreigners mingled and commingled with those of native born citizens.

It is not the same "Star Spangled Banner" differing only in the number of stars, that they waved over that gallant band, who so nobly fought, and some of whom so nobly died under the white flag of peace, that they carried to the body of that noble and valiant man, Richard Montgomery, who there fell fighting in its defence? Is not the same "Star-Spangled Banner" under which Lafayette, Pulaski, De Kalb, Kosciuszko, Stubben, and many others of foreign birth fought the battles of our Independence, and in defence of which many of them shed their blood? Is it not the same "Star-Spangled Banner" which waved in triumph on the ramparts of our town, over the victorious allied armies of France and America? Why then do you ask me to aid you in excluding the fellow countrymen of these men from the protection and support of this same "Star-Spangled Banner"?

And do you not know that in that noble band which assembled in the morning of the 4th of July, 1776, and there signed and sealed that sacred instrument which gave birth to our nation, there were many foreigners? Is that body there, was not seeking to exclude or proscripe any one, because of his birth-place or religion, but all—albeit joined in pledging their lives, fortunes, and sacred honors, in support of the liberties of America? I will sell goods as low as I can, if they can be bought elsewhere in this Town or county. All I ask is that patronage from the public which will enable me with industry to procure and gradually reduce the cost contained in said bill, being the hard earnings of a life of anxious toil.

Store at the lower end of the burned district, on Main Street, a few rods below the corner.

of the party of which it forms a part, are almost exclusively devoted to the proscription and denunciation of one sect of Christians.— With the Roman Catholics as religious as I have no part or lot, having been born and reared in the Protestant faith; but I know that the Constitution of my country declares that "no man has a natural and indefeasible right to worship his Creator according to the dictates of his own conscience;" and I hope that so long as God gives me breath I may hold in sacred remembrance this provision. When I stand before the bar of my dwelling on the night of the 8th of May, the bright flames that enshrouded the lofty dome of St. Augustine, I thought of the Constitution of my country. I thought of those departed souls who declared that in this land there should be "liberty of conscience for all men." I thought of that ancient bell whose tones first proclaimed the birth of my country, and the solemn glad tidings of American Independence! I turned and saw the reddened spire and roof of the sacred Hall of Independence and the whole high vault of Heaven blushing in deep crimson at the scene. I turned aside and wept—not for the edifice or its contents, for they were in decay, but I wept over our bleeding Constitution—the so soon forgotten admonitions and precepts of our fathers—at the introduction of religious intolerance and religious bigotry into our favored land—at the bright and glaring evidence of the existence in our midst of a spirit of persecution for opinions sake. I am glad to find that it is not the only one of its kind that is said to have been seen on the fall of the cross that entomped the dome of St. Augustine, for it would have given me pain. Those who could exist at the fall of the emblem of that system of religion given to us by him "who was meek and lowly of heart," must forget that God will have mercy rather than sacrifice, and acknowledge of himself rather than honor, and recognize that we are commanded to love one another, and to do unto others as we would they should do unto us.

That should give evidence of the existence among us of the same spirit that brought Michael Servetus and John Rogers to the stake—that banished Roger Sherman and Mrs. Hutchinson from their homes—that murdered and maimed the offending Quakers. That burning and that exult, has implanted a fear upon the character of our city and our people that will endure unto the remotest posterity. It can no longer be said of us in the language of poetry— "Ah! call it holy ground, The spot where first they trod, They have left unstained what they found, Freedom to worship God."

One more reason why I cannot join your association is, that I have with my youth upon being born, and I am still attached to a political party—a party that has its origin in the institutions of our country—its origin in whose principles depend mainly the preservation and perpetuation of those institutions—a party that has occasionally, as all others have, been disgraced by the action of those it has elevated to place and power, but has always thus far possessed energy and vitality sufficient to enable it to throw off the vitiated humors that have distressed it—a party that has always sought to extend the rights of suffrage instead of to diminish it—that would allow a man to participate in the affairs of government because he was a man endowed with reason and understanding, and not because he was born in a certain place, possessed a certain amount of property, or professed a certain religion—a party that has never by its knowledge disgraced itself respecting to intolerance and multiplicity to avenge wrongs or redress injuries—a party in which edifies devoted to the worship of God and the purposes of education have always found favor and protection. Belonging to this political party, so much superior to yours in all respects, I would be very foolishly did I leave it for the purpose of joining your association.

Yours with great respect, Andrew MILLER. High Street Ward, May 24th, 1844.
