Would grow to the perfect day. My brother men! the time comes on Let not your faith grow dim, Above the strife of buisy life, We hear its swelling hymn; The music gives to fainting souls A new and wonderons nower: The day foretold, by those men of old, Draws nearer every hour.

The day when rulers shall no more Abuse their kingly trust,
And the first free start of the people's heart Crushed down, in blood, to the dust, When the reign of Peace shall gladeneth earth, As it doth the world above: There shall be no tears in those happy years; For all shall be blessed Love."
