inally adoled. In October, 1847, James In the wonth of August I introduced in the Senate of the United States an amendment to the Oregon bill, to carry out the proposition of Mr. Buchanan in the Harvest Home letter, to extend the compromise line to the Pacific ocean, in the same sense and with the same understanding with which it was originally adopted. That proposition was passed by the Senate, went to the House, and was rejected there by abolition and free TO THE LADIES OF BINGHAMsoil votes. (Three gronns were here called for and given for the free soilers.) Don't groan my friends; that sounds too much like Know Nothing music. (Laughter.) The House of Representative rejected that propo- SHEPARD BROTHERS sition by almost a sectional vote, by Northsition by almost a sectional vote, by North-em votes composed of abolitionists and free HAVE received their spring supply of house en votes composed of mooritainess and are sollers, men of abolition procedules, and arrayed against the true national democracy. It was the rejection of that proposition to examelled Ware. To such an extent did that sectional crife go, the South arrayed against the North and the North against the South, that the purest and most devoted patriots in the land feered for the safety and perpenuity of the apublic. Even the gallant and immortal gatesman, the gigat Henry Clay, who had self for a better state of existan e again took his place in the Senate, the theatre of his greatest achievements and his most patriotic and restore peace to a distracted country .-From the moment Clay arrived among us, he ion of the Union men of all parties in Congress. The voice of faction was hushed, and the voice of the patriot quelled for a time the storm. Clay was our leader, Cass was our right hand man Webster stood by his side, and your Dickinsons, Cobbs, Kings, and the other true men, whigs and democrats, alike rallied around the standard bearer of the Union, prepared to make any sacrifice for the peace and harmony of the republic. For five long months the Union menwhigs and democrats-forgot past differences, and, animated by one common object, assembled in the Senate Chamber, with Clay in the chair, to devise means by which to save the republic from the consequences which the abolitionists, free soilers and factionists were. bringing upon the country by this, sectional strift. At the end of that period a bright strict attention to business to receive our share on dawned upon the republic, and a glori-of Public patronage, Constantly on hand, Sadous day was presented to our view. At the end of that period a bright compromise measures of 1859 were passed, of Carriage Trimmings in all of its branches and the joyful intelligence went all over the will be neatly done to order on reasonable land that strife had ceased, that sectional. controversy had been quelled, faction rebukel, and that pririotism had triumphed in the land. At one of these great meetings James. Buchanan, then in private life, the sage of Wheatland, wrote his letter congratulating the country upon the great principles established in those measures -- the equality of the Spires, the right of self-government in the Territories, in obedience to the constitution-in short, those principles which it was my T Ile promise line. 1850 on the compromise measpromise line as by importing my customers at the lowest ures, and in 1852, also, in the election of New York wholesale prices.

The great principle of the democrey isequality among the States and self-government, according to the Constitution, and that each new State has a right to decide its own institutions for itself. Mr Douglas, after discussing this question at considerable length, then a welnded this speech as follows:—The Dem cracy profess to mave a creed as broad as the republic and that extends wherever the flag of the country waves. (Applause.). The enemies of the democracy. profess a creed which is sectional and with which they dare not cross the Potomic or Ohio. Their motto is sectional controversy, and their object is to excite tire North against the South, father against son brother against brother State against State, until the bondsof brotherly love shall be dissolved and the Union sink never to rise again. I ask, you. you fellow citizens, if in the head quarters of Washington, in the camp of the revolutionary army there was ever such an anomaly presented as a Know-Nothing loage prescribing (cries of no, no,) men, because of their religious belief or their place of birth. Washngun welcomed men of all religious creeds. of all nativities, from all quarters of the globe into his camp, provided they loved liberty, law and free government. Will you prove recreant to these principles, and which seven years of blood and glory acheived for us. Above all things I appeal to the democracy of the Empire State, to forget past differences and to bury forever those dissentions that have prevailed among you for the last few years. Taken in execution at the suit of Dean & Clothing, Yankee Notions, &c. &c., which he will sell as cheap for ready pay, esmicially for cash as can be bought at any other establishment in the county. That is to say that he will not be beat by any braging JEWS OR GENTILES.

He also wishes to say a word to his customers and others, in relation to the way some mean folks do their business. If they have socks, Cabbages, or Turnips or anything else unanswerable that they wish to dispose of they will take them to the store in their own town and fairly or unfairly force the merchant to buy them, and it they have money to pay for Goods, they will go to Binghamton or some other place to spend it, and then report around how much cheaper they can buy Goods away from home than they can at home, All I have to say to such customers is come to me with your cash and if I have any Goods you want, I can and will sell them to you at prices perfectly astonishing.
